PRESIDENT HITS PARTY OFFICERS WHO SELL 'DRAG'

Resignations Come Rapidly.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Reports that Postmaster General James A. Farley will resign soon as Democratic national chairman and disclosures of the resignation of other members and officers of the Democratic national committee flowed from an ebullition of ethical considerations at the White House today.

President Roosevelt cracked down on Democratic national committeemen who as lawyers sell to clients their reputed influence with the administration.

Within an hour thereafter the air was filled with disclosures of resignations of Democratic national committeemen and rumors of resignations impending.

Jackson Out as Secretary.

Robert Jackson, who opened a law office in Washington shortly after the Roosevelt administration came in, said that he resigned "some time ago" as Democratic national committeeman for New Hampshire and as secretary of the national committee.

J. Bruce Kremer, another lawyer who hung out his shingle here after March 4, resigned a few weeks ago as Democratic national committeeman for Montana.

Arthur Mullen, still another Democratic lawyer who set up shop in the capital upon the advent of the Roosevelt régime, was on his way to Omaha, but when he left he was in a defiant mood. He said he was elected Democratic national committeeman by the people of Nebraska, than whom he recognizes no higher authority. He intimated he would refuse to resign.

Former Gov. O. Max Gardner of North Carolina, another who migrated to Washington when his party regained power, is still practicing law here, but he resigned as Democratic national committeeman for North Carolina last summer.

Exposed by Tribune.

THE TRIBUNE exposed the operations of the Democratic law firms last October, since which time they have been under an increasingly hot fire much to the embarrassment of the President and such other administration officials as possess a sense of the proprieties.

It also transpired during the day that Frank C. Walker of Montana and New York has tendered his resignation as treasurer of the Democratic national committee. In his case the ethical question is different. He is not practicing law. He is a member of the administration, being secretary of the President's national emergency council.

Farley Refuses to Talk.

Although Mr. Farley refused tonight to affirm or deny the reports that he is about to resign as Democratic national chairman, it was learned in an authoritative quarter that he has discussed the step with other officers of the committee. There is also reason to believe that he has talked the matter over with the President.

The ethical question in the case of Mr. Farley was raised most pointedly by Senator George W. Norris [Radical, Neb.], who pioneered the radical Republican support of Mr. Roosevelt in the 1932 election and who bulks large in influence at the White House.

Senator Norris wrote a letter to the President, in which he pronounced it nothing short of scandalous that the postmaster general, the great patronage dispenser of the Democratic administration, should be also the chairman of the Democratic national committee, the great patronage getter.

Threatens to Air Views.

The senator suggested, somewhat forcefully, that Mr. Farley should resign from the Democratic national committee or from the office of postmaster general. Mr. Farley is also chairman of the Democratic state central committee of New York.

Senator Norris has intimated that unless Mr. Farley resigns from the cabinet or from the Democratic committee he will air his views of the matter in the senate and possibly initiate legislation to make a national chairman ineligible to the position of postmaster general.

Come at Press Conference.

It was at the White House press conference this morning that Mr. Roosevelt cracked down on the Democratic national committeemen practicing law in Washington.

In response to a question regarding the proprieties of their operations, the

DOCTOR SAYS HE'S TOO WEAK TO QUIT GREECE

Appeal of Fugitive Up Tomorrow.

BY EUGENE SPECK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 17.—Samuel Insull, fugitive Chicago utilities promoter, on the eve of a hearing next Friday before the state council on his appeal against an order to leave Greece by Jan. 31, took to his bed today, on his physician's orders, because of a weak heart. Insull is 74 years old.

The heart condition, according to Dr. Vollas, "is greatly aggravated on account of recent shocks" and will prevent moving the former utilities magnate even though the decision Friday is against him.

"In my opinion he is unable to travel and thus comply with the government's order," the physician added. "If requested, I am ready to issue a certificate to this effect."

Britain Bars Fugitive.

With only two more days before a decision in his case is made, Insull heard tonight that one refuge to which he has looked with great longing has been denied him. His lawyers had to tell him that the land of his birth has refused to allow the most obstinate fugitive of any modern financial collapse to cross its shores again.

England will not receive him, at least not until after he has returned to Chicago and answered the charges against him. Until then to England he is just another man under indictment who is in flight to avoid trial and is undesirable there.

It was learned tonight that Insull began an investigation recently to find out whether England would have him back. If the British government had agreed, Insull planned to reopen his country home near Reading and live an undisturbed life in the peaceful English countryside the rest of his days.

Reviews Chances of Appeal.

By all appearances tonight very thin legal hair splitting stands between allowance and rejection of Insull's appeal before the state council. All depends on who Minister of Interior John Moundjourides was last December when he issued his decision that Insull must leave, in the opinion of George Lazarimos, one of the fugitive's attorneys.

If Moundjourides was acting on behalf of the government—which is legally interpreted as the country itself—then, in Lazarimos' opinion, Insull's plea will not even be considered. The council acts only in internal affairs.

But if Moundjourides sent his blunt note to Insull merely as an upstart minister who had exceeded his authority, then he might quickly be reversed. For the council has supreme authority regarding internal affairs and sometimes acts with volcanic suddenness in overturning domestic ministerial decisions.

Wording of Note an Issue.

The wording of Moundjourides' short notice to Insull might itself have considerable bearing on the outcome. Permits to remain in Greece must be renewed monthly. Insull duly applied last December. Moundjourides replied: "We do not approve your request for renewal of your permit to stay here and you must leave the country before Jan. 31."

The council, Lazarimos says, might want to know whether Moundjourides was not compelled to tell Insull why he was asked to leave. Under Articles 7 and 10 of the Greek law an alien cannot be deprived of his liberty in Greece unless treaties provide to the contrary, nor can an alien be arrested, prosecuted, imprisoned, deported nor confined except by law. Obviously in Insull's case no treaty is able to touch him nor has any legal action been taken against him in the courts on any charge.

On that, Lazarimos indicated plainly, the wily fugitive's plea is based and that is the line which will be taken in Friday's hearings.

Melvin Traylor Reported on His Way to Recovery

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, who has been suffering from a mild attack of pneumonia, was reported last night to be on his way to recovery. His wife said he rested well yesterday and that his two physicians, Drs. N. C. Gilbert and William R. Cubbins, had visited him at his home at 426 Barry avenue during the day and pronounced him in good condition. Early this morning the banker was sleeping comfortably, according to a report from his home.

Give Up Gold Mementos to Coffers of U.S.

Seizure Held Legal

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Attorney General Homer Cummings today handed down the opinion that the monetary gold stock of the federal reserve system may be seized by the government in the exercise of the "right of eminent domain" and that such power extends to every form of property required for public use. —Details on page 8.

A steady stream of hard, glittering, cheery gold pieces, on which the federal government intends to take a handsome profit by devaluation, flowed yesterday into Chicago's banks from nooks and crannies where individual owners, principally for sentimental reasons, had kept them hidden away.

For those who contributed their mites of gold to the New Deal yesterday were not the hoarders of legend, hoping to make a smart man's gain out of monetary changes. They were, observers reported, mostly hoarders of memories—simple folks to whom their shining coins were symbols, reminders of affectionate giving in a gracious and happy past.

Modify Treasury Order.

That is why, perhaps, they surrendered as ordered only at the last moment. Had not Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. set Jan. 17 as the deadline for the turning in of gold? It was not until last night, after the former announcement had had its full effect, that Mr. Morgenthau modified his order to authorize the federal reserve banks, assay offices, and the treasurer of the United States to continue "indefinitely" to receive gold coin and certificates and pay for them at face value in other currency.

So seriously did Chicagoans take the voice of command that it was estimated $100,000 in coin and $400,-

CITY WILL BUY BULLET PROOF VESTS FOR POLICE

The Chicago police department may soon be equipped as well as the desperadoes with whom it must contend. Bullet proof vests are to be purchased for part of the members of the department, it was announced last night. Commissioner Allman directed Supervising Captain Matthew Zimmer to look into prices. It is said the vests weigh about 11 pounds and cost about $50 apiece.

Though the city council cannot purchase the vests for all of its 6,000 policemen, it is expected that enough will be provided to equip Capt. John Stege's special detail, now hunting escaped convicts, and to distribute a number of them so that they may be used by policemen sent out on extremely dangerous missions.

Britain Swept by Flood and Gale; 6 Die

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 17.—At least six persons are dead, scores were injured, many towns were flooded and widespread damage was caused by a terrific gale which lashed the coasts of the British Isles today.

Scotland suffered the full force of the storm. The river Clyde, whipped by fierce winds, overflowed for the first time in 30 years.

Three men were drowned in the river Tay at Dundee and two others in a lake near Glasgow. The sixth victim was a railroad worker at Irvine, Ayrshire, who was killed when he failed to hear an approaching train in the height of the storm.

People Trapped By Floods.

Remarkable scenes were witnessed as the Clyde poured millions of gallons of water into the surrounding streets. Women and children were trapped in their homes and were rescued in boats. At Renfrew, 5 miles west of Glasgow, the postoffice, cinema and tenements were inundated to a depth of several feet.

At Broomielaw quay, Glasgow, water poured over the dockside and skids had to be used to prevent bigger craft crashing over the wharves. The wind reached a velocity of 84 miles per hour and was accompanied by torrential rain. Several children were injured. The storm also caused heavy damage at Edinburgh and Leith.

Ireland suffered severely and at Tory island, off the north coast, which has been cut off for three weeks, there was a 98 mile wind. The gale raged througout Tyrone and Donegal counties; slate shingles were ripped from roofs, trees were blown down, blocking roads, and floods were general in the coastal districts.

High Tides Flood Roads.

Phenomenally high tides, lashed by the gale, caused severe floods at many points on the northwest coast of England. The seas invaded the main road and railroad along the Cambrian coast, walls were washed away and motorists were stranded.

Head of Cuban Army Names New President

BY GUSTAVO RENO.
(Pictures on Back Page.)

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 17.—President Carlos Hevia, who was sworn into office yesterday to succeed Ramon Grau San Martin, resigned tonight.

Col. Carlos Mendieta, Nationalist party leader and the choice of Col. Fulgencio Batista, commander in chief of the army, was named to replace Hevia. Col. Batista was immediately accorded the posts of secretary of war and interior in Mendieta's cabinet.

Mendieta becomes the fifth president the troubled island republic has had since last Aug. 12, when Gerardo Machado was deposed.

Promised U. S. Recognition.

Jefferson Caffery, personal representative of President Roosevelt here has promised the delegates of all revolutionary factions, it is understood, that the United States will recognize the Mendieta government within 24 hours after the Nationalist leader becomes president. Mendieta has been voted support by members of all opposition organizations.

Mendieta is a conservative of the old school of Cuban politics who is expected to revoke Grau San Martin's extreme measures and to grant full protection to all foreign-owned investments in the island. He told Caffery tonight he would fully guarantee American interests here.

A few hours before the announcement of Hevia's replacement was made, Batista had paved the way for a military dictatorship with himself and Col. Mendieta in absolute control of the government.

Orders Troops to Capital.

Stung into action by a strike of government employes to oust him from the army, Batista ordered 3,000 troops to move from Santa Clara into Havana to reinforce the 5,000 troops in the Camp Columbia garrison. He announced that he would use every means at his command to end the existing chaotic political situation.

The strike of government employes had been organized by Antonio Guiteras, secretary of war and interior under former President Grau.

Batista issued a statement in which he announced the following platform:

"I will not tolerate under any conditions the communist and Socialist tactics of the Grau San Martin administration. With the help of my army I shall stop the prevailing anarchy, regardless of cost. I now realize that the Grau régime brought chaos to Cuba. The junta made a costly mistake when it established the Grau régime. I realize the mistake now and will rectify it.

Disavows Radical Policies.

"I will place Mendieta in the presidency sooner or later, regardless of opposition. He is the only man capable of continuing the junta's revolutionary program without the extreme leftist measures which were responsible for the lack of recognition by the United States."

The campaign to oust Batista was launched early this morning when an ultimatum was delivered to him in the name of President Hevia demanding that he resign as head of the army by noon. A strike was threatened if the ultimatum was not complied with. Batista's answer was to send troops into Havana to take over the work of the civil servants.

"If Hevia wants my resignation, let him come to Camp Columbia and get it," Batista said.

Batista said he does not attach great importance to the general strike planned against him by the federation of labor. He issued an ultimatum to the government employés warning them that unless they returned to work by 8 a. m. tomorrow they would all lose their jobs and all departments would be taken over by the military.

GUN CLEANING IS TABOO IN THIS POLICE STATION

"In the future no gun cleaning will be permitted in the front office of this police station. If you want to shoot yourself, go into the back room to do it."

Lieut. Edward Mihic, a veteran of the Waukegan force, was cleaning his revolver in the front office early yesterday when it discharged and sent a bullet through the water cooler. Two years ago, while cleaning his gun at home, Lieut. Mihic shot off one of his big toes.

STATE OPENS UP ITS EVIDENCE ON DEATH MOTIVE

Jury Gets Details of Rheta's Policy.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

The insurance agent who wrote a $5,000 double indemnity policy on Rheta Wynekoop's life and the undertaker who thirty days afterward prepared Rheta's body for burial gave their testimony yesterday in the Criminal court of Judge Joseph B. David, where the slain girl's mother-in-law, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, is on trial for her murder.

From the state's viewpoint neither witness was wholly satisfactory. The undertaker, Thomas J. Ahern—he was once alderman of the old 13th ward and is still a bit of a politician—was willing enough to do his part. But he provoked laughter when he strove to tell his story in the legal form demanded by Judge David and Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty.

Insurance Agent Evasive.

The insurance agent, Julia McCormick, a small, gray haired spinster who appears to be about Dr. Wynekoop's age, was frequently evasive and sometimes slightly hostile. She has been Dr. Wynekoop's close friend and frequent visitor for the last three years since she began "servicing" the insurance policies the doctor carried on members of the family, including Rheta.

At the conclusion of the day's court session the 62 year old defendant, who had reclined languidly in her big leather chair throughout the afternoon, leaned forward to tell her daughter, Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, that the proceedings had been "terribly tiresome."

First Evidence on Motive.

Miss McCormick, who has represented the New York Life Insurance company for 14 years, was on the stand two hours. By her testimony Prosecutor Dougherty introduced the first evidence to support the state's charge that Dr. Wynekoop had a mercenary motive in chloroforming Rheta and shooting her in the back, as the state contends she did.

Confronted with the records, Miss McCormick had to admit that Dr. Wynekoop arranged the whole insurance matter, applying for a $10,000 policy which the company later reduced by half, paying the first premium with her own check, naming herself and her son, Earle, as beneficiaries, and even having the application for the policy signed in another room by some one Miss McCormick "presumed" was Rheta.

She Never Saw Rheta.

"It's true," Miss McCormick responded to a summarizing question. "I didn't see Rheta at any time about the policy. But Dr. Wynekoop left the room [in the Wynekoop home at 3406 Monroe street] and I heard footsteps overhead. When she returned with Rheta's name on the application blank I assumed Rheta had signed, and so I witnessed the signature."

This was on last Oct. 23, the day after Dr. Wynekoop had telephoned Miss McCormick at her home and asked her to call.

Miss McCormick admitted a bit ruefully that the irregularity in the signing of the application blank was in violation of the company rules. But she would not admit, as Prosecutor Dougherty claimed she previously had told the police, that Dr. Wynekoop had shown extraordinary haste in getting the policy through or that the doctor was in arrears on premiums for one of Dr. Catherine's policies when she paid the first $42.25 installment on Rheta's.

Provokes Ire of Judge.

Whatever Dr. Wynekoop had done in that regard was in the usual course of business, or else was done at Miss McCormick's own suggestion, the witness averred. With growing impatience Prosecutor Dougherty shot his questions from divergent angles, but the witness was as artful as he, and dodged the questions, at last provoking the ire of the judge.

For a full three minutes the prosecutor fenced for a direct answer to his question whether Miss McCormick had ever discussed the Wynekoop family finances with the doctor. Without defiance, but quite adroitly, she eluded answering directly, until at last the impatient judge broke in.

"Did you or did you not discuss the doctor's financial position with her?" he thundered. "It's a simple question he's asking you."

"No, I didn't," the agent answered meekly.

Thus the examination stumbled on. The prosecutor scored one minor point when the witness admitted an "assumption" that Dr. Wynekoop desired speed on issuance of the policy. The doctor, Miss McCormick said, had told her that Rheta was leaving soon with her husband, Earle, on a trip to Arizona. Dougherty expects to show later that no such trip was contemplated by Rheta.

Undertaker More Willing.

No such obstinacy was met in Undertaker Ahern. A bland and smiling man with a slight brogue and twinkling eye, he paused behind the large upright exhibit board in the courtroom to arrange his tie and smooth his curly hair before stepping to the witness stand. He came in a black cutaway, gray striped trousers, Ascot tie and wing collar, and saluted Judge David with a beaming smile.

Obviously pleased by his important rôle, the undertaker launched into a detailed account of the strange manner in which Dr. Wynekoop summoned him to her home and told him the news of Rheta's death. Her story, he said, was of a morning at a hospital, lunching with Rheta at noon, sending her downtown for music or to "pop into a movie," returning home, preparing supper, and finally discovering that the girl was dead in the basement operating room.

Judge Begins to Glower.

But, unfortunately for the undertaker and to the wrath of the judge, Ahern did not repeat the defendant's exact language, but paraphrased her remarks. The judge began to glower.

"Just a minute," Prosecutor Dougherty interrupted. "You must use her words, not your own. Repeat exactly what she said."

The undertaker smiled as if he had grasped the idea, though a wrinkle between his eyes betrayed uneasiness. He resumed the narrative, still paraphrasing.

"Then the doctor prepared dinner," he said, "and still Rheta had not come home—"

"Use her words," thundered Judge David. "If she told you 'I prepared the dinner,' you say, 'I prepared the dinner.'"

He Gets Straightened Out.

The undertaker smiled and nodded nervously.

"All right," he compromised, "I prepared the dinner—"

A howl of laughter swept forward from the bosoms of the women spectators and stopped the recital again. Judge David silenced the merriment with a glare. The witness, cautioned again, went on with his story and except for another lapse or two, switched conversational rôles at the proper places.

Dr. Alice, Dr. Catherine, and Miss Enid Hennessey, the Wynekoops' school teacher lodger, accompanied him downstairs to the operating table where Rheta lay, he testified. He quickly perceived that she was dead, but when he asked Dr. Alice if she had notified the police she said she had not, he declared. He then called the police himself, he testified.

Another Insurance Question.

Miss McCormick's testimony provoked speculation as to who, if any one, will ultimately profit by Rheta's insurance. Prosecutor Dougherty expressed the opinion that the death payments, including $10,000 on the New York Life policy and $2,000 on the policy of another company, would accrue to Dr. Wynekoop or to Earle, whether the doctor was acquitted or convicted.

"The law holds that even death by murder must be regarded as accidental, and such it was as far as Rheta was concerned," he observed. "It is true that the law prohibits death payments to the specified beneficiary, if that beneficiary be convicted of murdering the insured. But that rule does not absolve the company from payment.

Earle May Get Money.

"The practice in cases of conviction is to make the death benefit payable to the deceased's estate and through the estate to the heirs. In this case the legal heir is Earle. I would say that, barring proof of fraud by the insurance company, the doctor will get the insurance if acquitted, and Earle will get it if she is convicted."

A possible exemption for the companies, Dougherty said, may be found in Dr. Wynekoop's statement in the application that she had not previously applied to other companies to insure Rheta when, in fact, she had. Mr. Dougherty said he would prove such applications and rejections by other witnesses.

WOMAN DIES OF POISON.

DAY'S TESTIMONY IN MURDER TRIAL OF DR. WYNEKOOP

Witness by Witness Story of the Evidence.

As the third day of testimony began in the murder trial of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop yesterday morning Policeman Arthur R. March of the Fillmore station resumed the witness stand. March, one of the policemen who went to the Wynekoop home at 3406 Monroe street on the night of last Nov. 21 when the murder of Rheta Wynekoop was discovered, completed his direct testimony for the prosecution Tuesday and was under cross-examination by the defense when court was adjourned late Tuesday afternoon.

When Judge Joseph B. David had ascended the bench yesterday morning and the courtroom spectators were settled, Defense Attorney Milton Smith resumed his cross-examination of the policeman. During the course of an hour he elicited a repetition of the now familiar story of the arrangement of the clothing, pistol, blanket, and operating table in the basement room of the Wynekoop home where Rheta's body was found.

Judge and Lawyer Clash.

Judge David finally halted the questioning and ordered the lawyer to phrase one of his questions in a different manner. Attorney Smith jumped to his feet, his face red, and said:

"I'll ask my questions the way I want to ask them and not the way the court wants me to ask them."

Shortly after this there was another flare of temper between Smith and Judge David. After the judge again interrupted him Attorney Smith said:

"I don't know why the court keeps telling me what to do. I'm doing what I think is right in the defense of this woman."

POLICEMAN KELLY CALLED

A few minutes later March was excused and his partner, Policeman Walter Kelly, was called to the witness stand.

Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty asked Kelly if he had conversed with Dr. Wynekoop on the night when the murder was discovered and then asked what was said in the conversation. There were objections by defense counsel and Judge David asked the prosecutor to rephrase his question. Instead Dougherty asked the policeman if he had inspected the basement of Dr. Wynekoop's home on the night of the murder.

Q.—Did you inspect the doors and windows? A.—Yes.

Defense counsel objected, but the objection was overruled. Dougherty continued:

Q.—Where did you go first? A.—I went to the back door.

Q.—What was its condition? A.—It was locked.

Q.—Were you alone? A.—No, Dr. Catherine Wynekoop accompanied me.

Cross-examination Begins.

Prosecutor Dougherty announced that he had finished with his examination and Defense Attorney W. W. Smith began the cross-examination.

In contrast to the state's brief questions the defense lawyer led Policeman Kelly over a long description of all the details of the finding of Rheta's body.

The policeman's story was clearly told, conforming with previous state testimony. Attorney Smith stood with his hands on the operating table which had been introduced into evidence by the state on Tuesday and which he dragged once more in front of the jury box.

It was the consensus of court attachés that the defense, by sheer repetition of the blood stained narrative, was seeking to rob it of its impressiveness for the jurors. Apparently this stratagem was succeeding, for the jurors followed the testimony without interest.

Roused by a New Clash.

They were roused only once when, during an objection by the state, Attorney Milton Smith jumped up and asked the court to refrain from interrupting the testimony.

Judge David bounced to his feet and leaned over his bench to shake a finger under the lawyer's nose.

"I don't want to be lectured any more by you, Mr. Smith," he shouted.

"I don't want to lecture the court," replied Smith in tones equally stentorian. "I would like, however, to have my objections noted."

TWO MESSENGER BOYS

Two messenger boys, John Brennock, 3704 Lexington street, and William Russell O'Banion, 3549 South Hamlin avenue, were the next state witnesses.

O'Banion was slow in entering court from the witness room and Judge David said: "We can see by the promptitude of this witness that he is a messenger."

Both boys testified that they had visited the Wynekoop home to deliver telegrams on the day the murder occurred. Brennock said he had gone to the home at 4:27 p. m. He said he saw lights on the first floor and in the basement although he got no response to knocks on the front door and rings at the bell.

O'Banion said he had delivered the telegram which Brennock had been unable to deliver. It was delivered to Miss Enid Hennessey, the school teacher who boarded in the Wynekoop home, O'Banion said. The delivery was made at 7:55 p. m., he testified.

Neither boy was cross-examined at any length. Judge David then adjourned the morning session.

AFTERNOON SESSION

When the afternoon session began Thomas J. Ahern, undertaker at 3246 Jackson boulevard, was called to the stand. He wore a wing collar which matched in severity the neckwear of Judge David. At times he brushed at the graying topknot of hair curling above his forehead. He was questioned first by Prosecutor Dougherty.

Q.—Do you know the defendant, Dr. Wynekoop? A.—I do.

Q.—Directing your attention to the evening of Nov. 21, 1933, did you receive a phone call from her? A.—Yes.

Q.—At what time? A.—9:35 o'clock.

Q.—Did you go to her home? A.—I arrived there ten minutes after her call.

Q.—Who met you? A.—Miss Hennessey.

Q.—Did you see any one else you knew? A.—Yes, Dr. Alice and Dr. Catherine Wynekoop.

Q.—Did you have a conversation with Dr. Alice Wynekoop? A.—Yes.

What Dr. Alice Said.

Q.—Tell us what she said and give your answers.

This proved quite a task for Mr. Ahern. He began his recital of the conversation in the third person, and it took half a dozen corrections from both the judge and the prosecutor before he swung into the narrative in the first person.

Once started, he said that Dr. Wynekoop told him her daughter-in-law, Rheta, had gone downtown that afternoon to buy sheet music and might have gone to a movie. She told Rheta to "pop right in" to a movie, she said, according to Ahern. When the girl did not appear for dinner the doctor became worried, she told Ahern, he said.

"Up to this time I had had no time to visit my office," said Dr. Wynekoop, according to Ahern. "When I went there I found Rheta on the operating table. She was dead."

Ahern paused a moment, then continued: "I asked her if I could view the remains, and Dr. Alice and Dr. Catherine and I went downstairs and looked at the body."

Once again the silent courtroom heard of the dead girl's position on the operating table.

"No Publicity Wanted."

"I asked Dr. Alice Wynekoop if she had notified the police," Ahern went on, "and she answered 'No, I don't want any publicity.'

"I said, 'Well this is a murder,' so I went upstairs and called the police. Then I asked Dr. Wynekoop if she had touched the clothing and she said that she hadn't. I told her not to touch it."

Q.—[By Mr. Dougherty]—After the police arrived was the body taken away? A.—Yes, to my place.

Q.—Was it warm or cold? A.—Cold.

Q.—How long have you been an undertaker? A.—28 years.

Q.—What was the condition of the body in regard to rigor mortis? A.—It had set in completely.

Q.—How long after death does the body retain the body heat? A.—From three to six hours.

"You may cross-examine," said Mr. Dougherty. The defense attorneys whispered a moment, then W. W. Smith announced: "No cross." Ahern retired.

LIEUT. DUFFY TESTIFIES

"Call Thomas Duffy," Prosecutor Dougherty ordered, and Police Lieutenant Thomas J. Duffy, who was in command of Fillmore station on the night of the murder, took the witness stand. In his dark clothing and spectacles, he looked more like a college professor than a policeman. Preliminary questioning by Mr. Dougherty led finally to this:

Q.—Did you go to the Wynekoop home the night of Nov. 21? A.—I did, about 10:40 or 10:45 o'clock.

Q.—And did you have a conversation with the defendant? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was it reduced to writing? A.—Yes.

Mr. Dougherty produced three sheets of yellow paper which he showed to the witness. Lieut. Duffy identified the sheets by the signature, "Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop" on each one. The pages were shown to the defense. Then Dougherty went before the jury box and read them.

Doctor's First Statement.

This was the first statement that Dr. Wynekoop made to the police on the death of her daughter-in-law. She told of her three children, Walker, Catherine, and Earle (Rheta's husband), and went into detail as to Rheta's movements the last day of her life.

Some of the questions asked by Lieut. Duffy and the answers given by Dr. Wynekoop, as recorded in the statement, were:

"Q. (by Lieut. Duffy)—Do you know of a motive for this crime?" "A. (by Dr. Wynekoop)—No. Unless some one came in looking for money. They did before, on Oct. 20. They took $100."

"Q.—Was that reported to the police?" "A.—No, because I knew money could not be identified."

At the end of the statement Lieut. Duffy questioned Dr. Wynekoop about John Van Pelt, an elderly man who occasionally did odd jobs about the Wynekoop home. The defense lawyers have intimated that they may attempt to link a man named Simmons, friend of Van Pelt, with the murder.

Prosecutor Dougherty asked Lieut. Duffy if any robbery at 3406 Monroe street had been reported to the Fillmore street police station. Defense counsel objected. The objection was overruled and Lieut. Duffy said no robbery ever had been reported at the Wynekoop home. He then was excused.

Neighbor Woman Testifies.

The next witness was Mrs. Yvonne Spring, 3880 South Homan avenue. Under questioning by Prosecutor Dougherty she explained that the rear of her home faces the side of the Wynekoop home. She said that on the afternoon of the murder she noticed lights in the library and basement of the Wynekoop house.

Defense Attorney Frank Tyrrell, upon the prompting of Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, who poked him in the back and hurriedly whispered in his ear, asked Mrs. Spring if she had seen the same lights in the home on other days. When she replied that she had, she was excused.

DOCTOR'S TESTIMONY

Mrs. Spring was followed on the witness stand by Miss Julia McCormick, insurance agent, whose testimony is reported elsewhere in this issue. After Miss McCormick, Dr. Frank Chauvet, of 500 South Euclid avenue, Oak Park, was called to the stand. He said that Dr. Alice Wynekoop had telephoned to him the evening of the murder and asked him to come to her home.

"I asked her what was the matter and she said something terrible had happened," Dr. Chauvet said. "I asked her what, and she said that her daughter-in-law had been shot. I asked how badly she was hurt and Dr. Wynekoop said she was dead. I then said I couldn't come and suggested that she call Dr. Berger."

Dr. Chauvet said he had examined Rheta six weeks before she was slain. He said that Dr. Wynekoop had cautioned him to be considerate and not upset the girl. He said he had been asked to examine her for a psychosis—"a mental disease," he explained—as well as for physical ailments.

He said that he had detected no mental illness but said there was a large abdominal swelling which he advised Dr. Wynekoop to "take care of." He said Dr. Wynekoop had said she would do so and he had departed.

Another Doctor on Stand.

The next witness was Dr. Joan M. Berger, 145 South East avenue, Oak Park, a physician who was summoned to the Wynekoop home after the murder was discovered. He said he had known Dr. Wynekoop "for 15 or 20 years."

A Miss Esther English was called to the witness stand, but Judge David adjourned court for the day as soon as she had told her name and no indication of the state's purpose in summoning her was given the jury. She will resume the stand when the trial continues this morning.

As the day's adjournment was announced, Dr. Wynekoop slowly lowered her head to the counsel table and rested it there for a moment. Dr. Catherine and a bailiff immediately raised her in her chair. She was given medicine and then, apparently completely recovered, was taken back to the county jail.

Notes of the Wynekoop Trial

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

The women friends, wives and relatives of bailiffs and deputy sheriffs filled Judge Joseph B. David's courtroom yesterday, particularly the privileged seats inside the railing. These seats have been increased until they are four rows deep and almost touch Dr. Alice Wynekoop and others on the defense side of the counsel table which stands before the judge's bench. In addition to these four rows, two more rows of spectators' chairs have been placed in front of the seats reserved for the press.

The Rev. John Henry Hopkins, spiritual adviser of Dr. Wynekoop, who hitherto had occupied a chair in the front row of the privileged seats, yesterday found his view obscured by two rows of women spectators.

Even Dr. Wynekoop's sister, Mrs. Mabel Fairclo of Sycamore, her husband, George, and other relatives failed to get front row seats in the privileged space.

The bailiffs and deputies' preference in guests apparently runs to large bosomed women wearing fur coats. A considerable portion of them boasted blondined hair. In front of the Rev. Mr. Hopkins sat a large woman with peroxide blonde hair, on which a black postage stamp hat was perched.

Occupying the same seat she has been in daily since the beginning of the trial appeared a plump woman whose short fingers glittered with diamond rings. Asked for her name and the secret of her success with seats, she fixed a glance of hauteur upon the questioner and replied: "You shall get no information from me."

Despite her languor, Dr. Wynekoop displayed her characteristic imperiousness in even her slightest gesture—a beckoning hand to a bailiff, a nod of the head to one of her lawyers. Even while sipping a glass of water containing a heart stimulant her shrewd eyes were fastened on the center of activities, opposing counsel and witnesses.

Making their first appearance in court were Ira Lindsay of Onarga, brother of the defendant, and his wife. Mr. Lindsay is a bald, gray mustached man wearing eyeglasses. Both he and Mrs. Lindsay embraced Dr. Wynekoop.

Dave Eichner, Judge David's personal bailiff, said that yesterday was his nineteenth wedding anniversary. "Instead of being home with Marie where I belong, I have to play nurse girl to a bunch of jurors," said Eichner. "By the time I'm able to go home I'll have lost my money playing cards with the jurors, and then Marie will be mad."

Apparently the fatal operating table and the mound of Rheta Wynekoop's clothing placed beneath it had lost their horror and significance for the courtroom audience as the day's proceedings progressed. Twice the spectators were reproved for laughing aloud, the clerk pounding for order with his gavel.

During the reading to the jury of the first statement made to the police by Dr. Wynekoop, Dr. Catherine Wynekoop turned to her mother with one of her rare expressions of tenderness and took the elder woman's wrist to count her pulse. Dr. Alice smiled faintly at Catherine as if to reassure her.

Judge, lawyers, court fans, virtually every one in the courtroom, smiled at Undertaker Ahern's jovial manner, cheerful rotund countenance and language on the witness stand. Even his words, "I then asked to view the remains," were spoken with a merry ring. Only the jurors remained unsmiling.

Faces Prison Again After Quarrel with Cab Driver

John Doyle, alias Sullivan, 28 years old, 6937 South Claremont avenue, quarreled with a taxicab driver over his fare last night at 95th street and Western avenue and was arrested. As a result he may have to go to Joliet penitentiary for a long while. Doyle, convicted as a robber, was sentenced to Joliet for 1 to 10 years in 1927. He was released on Dec. 15. He was to be turned over to the state parole agent, who will determine whether the quarrel with the cabman constitutes a violation of parole.

SHURTLEFF ASKS FOR REHEARING IN SAMMONS' CASE

Circuit Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of Marengo, McHenry county, filed a petition at Springfield yesterday for a rehearing of the writ of mandamus issued last Dec. 22 by the Illinois Supreme court directing him to expunge from his records a habeas corpus writ on which he freed James (Fur) Sammons, notorious Chicago gunman and public enemy, in July, 1932.

Sammons is now serving a life sentence in the Indiana state penitentiary at Michigan City, having been found guilty under the habitual criminal act last Nov. 30 at Crown Point of attempting to bribe a deputy sheriff.

Despite Sammons' long record as a robber, murderer, rapist, public enemy and former member of the Capone gang Judge Shurtleff granted him his freedom on the ground that the hoodlum was being held illegally. The judge ruled that Sammons' sentence for the murder of Patrick Barrett, a saloonkeeper, in 1904, was finished with a previous parole.

STEFFEN TO HEAR TRIAL OF 17 IN T-N-T PLOT CASE

Judge Walter P. Steffen was assigned yesterday by Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court to hear the trial of 17 defendants on charges of conspiracy growing out of the activities of the Trucking and Transportation Exchange, which is alleged to have extorted $500,000 yearly from Chicago business men. Judge Steffen set Feb. 16 for the hearing of preliminary motions.

Thirteen of the defendants appeared in court and four others are still sought by police. They are William [Three Fingered Jack] White, hoodlum and labor racketeer; Sam Alex, business agent of the Excavating Teamsters' union, and brother-in-law of George Barker, gangster, who was slain some time ago; Thomas Sullivan, another business agent of Alex's union, and Danny Cain, former president of the Coal Teamsters' union, local 704.

Indictments against the defendants charged that they conspired to extort money from contractors, teaming and excavating companies, coal yards and engineers, by means of threats, violence, and strikes. The state charged that the Trucking and Transportation Exchange, known in labor circles as TNT, was formed to carry out the conspiracy.

SNATCHES WOMAN'S PURSE.

A young man leaped out of a dark doorway last night and wrested a purse containing $18 from Mrs. Anna Feisel as she walked near her home at 6609 Maryland avenue. She is the wife of an auditor for the Illinois Central railroad.

INSURANCE AGENT ON THE STAND AT WYNEKOOP TRIAL

Tells Jury Her Story of Rheta's Policy.

The most important witness in yesterday's session of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop's trial was Miss Julia McCormick, an insurance agent. Through her testimony the prosecution began its effort to show a mercenary motive for the murder of Rheta Gardner Wynekoop, wife of Dr. Wynekoop's son, Earle, in the basement office suite of the family home at 3406 Monroe street last Nov. 21.

Miss McCormick, who for the last 14 years has been a representative of the New York Life Insurance company, was on the witness stand before Judge Joseph B. David during a large part of the afternoon.

Questioned first by Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty, Miss McCormick said that she had known Dr. Alice Wynekoop since the fall of 1931, when she wrote a $10,000 insurance policy on the life of Dr. Wynekoop's daughter, Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, a resident physician at the County hospital. The prosecutor then plunged into a series of questions bearing upon Rheta Wynekoop.

Q.—Did you get a telephone call from the defendant? A.—I did.

Q.—What day? A.—It was on a Sunday, at my home, 4414 Drexel boulevard. The date was Oct. 22, 1933.

Q.—Did you go any place as a result of that call? A.—Yes, I went to the home of Dr. Wynekoop upon business.

Q.—Did you go that same day? A.—No, I went the following day, Monday.

Opening Statement Recalled.

In his opening statement to the jury last Monday, Prosecutor Dougherty had said he would prove that Dr. Wynekoop had been in "unseemly haste" to get an insurance policy on Rheta's life and that Miss McCormick had gone to the Wynekoop home the same day she got the call. The prosecutor's face reddened and his questions were delivered in a sharper tone after the witness made her last answer.

Q.—Who was present when you arrived? A.—Dr. Wynekoop.

Q.—Did you have a conversation about a policy? A.—When I went in she told me to write Rheta a policy exactly like I had written for Dr. Catherine.

Q.—When had you seen the defendant immediately prior to that visit? A.—About the 13th or 14th of that same month.

Q.—What was the occasion? A.—I went to the house to make arrangements with her to have the paid up value of a policy upon Dr. Catherine take care of a quarterly payment that was due.

Q.—Why did you go to the home? A.—Because the due date of the payment was drawing near.

A Financial Discussion.

Prosecutor Dougherty then attempted to get the witness to say that she had discussed Dr. Wynekoop's financial position with her at the earlier meeting in October. Miss McCormick would not reply directly to the question.

Judge David impatiently halted the exchange and shouted at the witness:

"Did you or did you not discuss the doctor's financial position with her? It's a simple question he's asking you. You're not afraid of him are you?"

Miss McCormick replied she was not afraid and then said that she had not discussed Dr. Wynekoop's money matters with her at any time. Then the prosecutor changed his approach.

Q.—What did Dr. Wynekoop say to you when she asked for Rheta's policy? A.—She told me that Rheta might go to Arizona with Earle and if so they wanted the policy before they left.

Q.—Did you talk with Rheta? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever talk with Rheta about the policy on her life? A.—No.

Application in Evidence.

Q.—Did you bring out the original application for a policy? A.—Yes.

The witness handed over the application, which was marked as "People's Exhibit No. 29."

Q.—In whose handwriting is this application made out? A.—In my own.

Q.—Is it in the same condition that it was at the time you last handled it? A.—Yes, except for the amendment the home office has added to it.

Dr. Wynekoop and Dr. Catherine put their heads together at the counsel table before the judge's bench. Dr. Wynekoop's lips moved rapidly. Both she and her daughter then watched the witness as the prosecutor pointed out that the application had been witnessed by Miss McCormick.

Judge's Interest Aroused.

Judge David jumped up and asked: "Do I understand that the application was signed by the defendant and not by Rheta?"

"No, it was signed by Rheta," replied Miss McCormick.

JUDGE DAVID—Well, how did that happen? A.—Dr. Wynekoop took the application upstairs to Rheta and she signed it.

JUDGE DAVID—Is it usual in your line of business for the assured not to answer the questions on an application, but for them to be answered by some one else?

Before the witness could answer Prosecutor Dougherty said that he wanted to get at those matters in other questions. The judge waved for him to continue with his examination of Miss McCormick.

Q.—(By the prosecutor) Did Rheta ever tell you who the beneficiary of her policy was to be? A.—No.

The defense lawyers jumped up after the witness had answered to make objection, but their plea was overruled by the judge.

Signed by Rheta Upstairs.

Q.—Did you give the application to Dr. Wynekoop to have Rheta sign it? A.—Yes, she took it upstairs to have it signed.

JUDGE DAVID—Did you know Rheta was there? A.—I heard some one walking around upstairs.

Q.—(By Dougherty) Had you ever seen Rheta's signature? A.—No.

Q.—Did the defendant ask you who was the doctor your company would have to examine Rheta? A.—Yes. Most everybody does.

Q.—What was said? A.—I said that we had a west side doctor whom I would try to get. I did try and I wasn't able to reach him.

Q.—Did Dr. Wynekoop say anything to you about when the company doctor was to examine Rheta? A.—Yes.

Q.—I mean about examining her that same day? A.—Well, I don't know. She——

There was a series of objections by defense counsel. Judge David overruled them and then the witness continued with her answer:

Dr. Alice and Dr. Catherine again began talking together at the counsel table. They watched the witness and once Dr. Alice smiled faintly.

Q.—Just what did Dr. Wynekoop say? A.—She said that Rheta was going to Arizona with her husband and I assumed that they wanted the examination and the policy as quickly as possible.

Q.—Did you hear from the defendant again? A.—Yes. She called once and wanted to know whether the policy would be issued.

Q.—Did the defendant tell you that she had made application to other insurance companies?

Violent objections were made by the defense lawyers, but these were immediately overruled by the judge.

Application Answers Question.

The witness nevertheless did not answer the question and Prosecutor Dougherty did not press her. He carefully read the insurance policy application and then said:

"Question No. 8 on this application says: 'Has the applicant applied for insurance of this type from any other company or companies?' And the answer written in by Miss McCormick is 'none'." Then he lowerd the paper and addressed the witness:

Q.—How much insurance is applied for in the original application? A.—$10,000 worth.

The prosecutor was showing the document to the witness. Defense Attorney Milton Smith objected, saying that the application had not been offered in evidence. The prosecutor then asked that it be placed in evidence and it was accepted by Judge David. Dougherty then handed the application to Miss McCormick and asked:

Q.—What is the amendment which the home office made in this application? A.—The policy requested was reduced from $10,000 to $5,000.

The Double Indemnity Clause.

Q.—[Pointing to the paper] What does this phrase—double indemnity—mean? A.—It means that in case of accidental death the beneficiary of the policy will receive twice its face value.

Q.—Who delivered the policy? A.—I did.

Q.—To whom? A.—I gave it to Dr. Alice Wynekoop.

Q.—What was the arrangement for paying the premium? A.—It was to be paid in quarterly installments of $42.25 each. I was paid the first one in a check.

The prosecutor then read the complete application to the jurors who sat forward in their chairs and evidenced interest. The last line of the policy read: "Signed, Rheta Wynekoop; witnessed, Julia McCormick."

Judge David asked: "Does that mean that you saw the signing of the applicant?"

The witness replied "No." Then she asserted that it was the usual thing for insurance agents who get applications by mail to sign their names as witnesses of the signatures.

Under Cross-Examination.

On cross examination by Defense Attorney W. W. Smith, Miss McCormick said that she had called often at the Wynekoop home to discuss insurance with Dr. Wynekoop. She said that Dr. Catherine Wynekoop had two policies. Attorney Smith then asked if Rheta had signed the application for her insurance.

The state objected and Judge David told Smith to explain why we wanted the question asked. Smith replied that he preferred not to tell his purpose. His colleague, Milton Smith, then jumped up and said:

"The court lets the state ask questions without knowing their purpose."

Judge David became red in the face. He jumped to his feet also and shouted:

"Mr. Smith, I've warned you. You must not criticize this court. I'll stand for it no longer."

Questioning Is Resumed.

After a moment of discussion among all the lawyers the examination of the witness continued while Judge David and Attorney Milton Smith sat glaring at each other.

Attorney W. W. Smith repeated his former question to Miss McCormick: "Did Rheta sign this application?"

Prosecutor Dougherty shouted: "The witness on direct examination said that she had not seen Rheta sign. I don't know that she signed and I don't know Rheta's signature either."

Judge David interposed to coach the witness into saying that so far as she knew Rheta Wynekoop actually did sign the application.

Attorney Smith asked Miss McCormick: "Had you talked about the benefits of Rheta's policy with Dr. Wynekoop?"

"No; we talked very little about those things," the witness replied. "All she said was to give her one exactly like Dr. Catherine's."

Miss McCormick then was excused, being told by Judge David that she probably would be recalled as a defense witness later in the trial.

MANUFACTURER TURNS OVER $90,000 IN GOLD TO U. S. GOVERNMENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 17. — [Special.]—Under protest and with the demand that it be returned if the federal gold hoarding act be declared unconstitutional, George J. Meyer, wealthy Cudahy manufacturer of bottling equipment, today surrendered $90,000 in gold to the United States government. He also furnished satisfactory proof that $10,000 in gold had been used for pay roll purposes.

Federal action against Mr. Meyer, charging him with holding $100,000 in gold contrary to the provisions of the act, were dropped, B. J. Husting, United States district attorney, announced.

The district attorney moved before U. S. Court Commissioner Floyd L. Jenkins to quash the proceedings and approved the return of the $10,000 in bail on which Mr. Meyer has been held.

He contended the gold would get into the hands of speculators and be used for less necessary purposes than for the pay rolls and manufacturing costs which he proposed to pay with it.

SCHOOLS' FIRE LOSS LOWEST FOR 20 YEARS

The property loss from fires in the Chicago schools for 1933 was only $1,000, the lowest in twenty years. This was pointed out yesterday by John Howatt, chief engineer of the school system, in a report to James B. McCahey, president of the board of education.

Howatt called attention to the low fire loss along with the fact that $186,198,897 invested in school buildings and equipment is uninsured. Losses for previous years included: 1932, $12,020; 1931, $159,665, caused by a large fire at the Curtis Junior High school; 1930, $6,580, and 1929, $13,735.

In a second report on burglaries and vandalism Howatt revealed that the property loss for 1933 was $31,359 while the property recovered was valued at $13,000. The losses from these activities in previous years were 1932, $25,366; 1931, $29,522; 1930, $13,928, and 1929, $13,422.

Howatt declared the reason for the increase lay in the widespread unemployment and the large number of vagrants on the streets. There were 878 instances of burglary and vandalism in the schools last year. The report showed that 546 arrests had been made and 230 convictions obtained.

ROOSEVELT GIVES LAW ENFORCERS PLEDGE OF U. S. AID

Three hundred law enforcement officials, attending a dinner of the Chicago Regional Peace Officers' associations in the Hotel Sherman last night, received a telegram from President Roosevelt promising the coöperation of the government in the fight against crime.

"Your responsibility as regional peace officers," the President said, "is identical with that of the law enforcement authorities of the federal government. It is, therefore, our joint purpose to suppress banditry, murders, lynchings and kidnapings, to preserve peace and security for all our people. In the discharge of these duties I assure you that the strong arm of the federal government will support and coöperate with you."

Among the speakers were Melvin H. Purvis, Chicago chief for the bureau of investigation, department of justice; U. S. District Attorney Dwight H. Green, Prosecutor Robert Estill of Lake county, Ind.; Chief Justice Philip Finnegan of the Criminal court, and Mayor Charles H. Bartlett and Chief of Police William O. Freeman of Evanston.

WOMAN SLASHES WRISTS.

Mrs. Louise Bois, 68 years old, slashed her wrists with a razor yesterday in her home at 6329 South Kenneth avenue. Police took her to the South Town hospital, where it was said she will recover.

STEVE, SELLER OF PEANUTS, STAYS AT HIS CORNER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Steve Vasilakos, the genial Greek gentleman who has been providing Presidents with peanuts for the last 28 years, can continue to park his stand on Pennsylvania avenue, near the White House.

Franklin D. Roosevelt and Eleanor Roosevelt, independently of each other, interceded for him when the local chamber of commerce, going on a beautifying spree, ruled that his celebrated corn popper and the peanut roaster must no longer mar the "Avenue of the Presidents."

Now, Steve, who always knew just how much butter to put on the popcorn President Harding munched, who knew how fond President Coolidge was of chestnuts, who sold crackerjack to President Roosevelt and tossed peanuts to Mrs. Roosevelt's dog, Maggie, is proud of his position. So when the order was issued he rushed in anguish to the newspapers. They printed his lament.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt read it. Mrs. Roosevelt sent the clipping to another "Steve" (Presidential Secretary Early) with a penciled comment: "Must this man go?"

Her husband meanwhile sent word to the chief of police asking consideration for the Greek who has borne gifts to many Presidents.

So Steve is smiling a warm smile this chilly evening. He approved of President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

He threw in a bag of peanuts with the interview.

HOLD UP PLANS FOR ANNOUNCING MILK PRICE CUT

Plans for announcing a cut in the retail price of milk in Chicago were held in abeyance yesterday.

The dealers who had agreed to accept the decision giving the farm producers $1.85 a hundred pounds for milk resold as whole fluid held a short meeting, but adjourned with the statement that conferences will not be resumed until after the funeral of Frank H. Kullman, Bowman Dairy company vice president and dominant figure in the industry for a quarter of a century. Mr. Kullman's death occurred Tuesday.

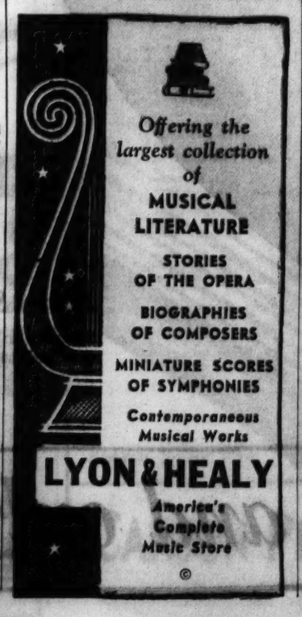
Union milk wagon drivers were awaiting new proposals on a wage scale from the employing dairies. It was held probable that they would be asked to take a cut from their present $40 a week, since the reduction in farmer returns is barely more than half a cent a quart.

A delegation from the Pure Milk association called on Mayor Kelly, who told them he was still sure their price agreement with the dealers could be enforced. Dispatches from Washington indicated that AAA officials were considering whether to come in and aid enforcement.

WINES ARE KEY TO FRENCH TRADE, SAYS U. S. CONSUL

PARIS, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The flow of French wines to the United States was pictured by Consul General Leo J. Keena today as promising to swell American trade with France.

"We have to thank the repeal of prohibition for giving us the first opportunity of drawing cards in the quota game" in which France is restricting American imports, Keena said at the annual meeting of the American chamber of commerce. "A flourishing trade in wines will mean that many of our products will enjoy a reciprocal freedom of entry into France."



ESTIMATE 2,000 DEAD, 10,000 HURT IN QUAKE IN INDIA

Air Surveys Show Great Destruction Done.

CALCUTTA, India, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Estimates as high as 2,000 killed and 10,000 injured were made today as further reports trickled in over crippled communication systems from all parts of India shaken in violent earthquakes Monday.

In addition to the 300 estimated by the Bihar provincial government to be dead at Darbhanga, an airplane survey showed that Monghyr also suffered heavily, its death toll being set at several hundred.

300 Killed at One Town.

Heavy losses of life also were reported at Muzaffarpur, where 300 were killed, in the Chapra district, where 100 lost their lives, and other places, including Bankura, Bezwadas, and Patna.

Reports from hundreds of outlying villages, where great destruction was believed wrought, were not expected for several days.

Airplane reconnaissances showed that the bazaar at Monghyr was a heap of ruins and that public buildings in the town of Chapra were wrecked. The hospital at Motihari was condemned as unsafe. Although damage was great at Darjeeling it was learned that only five coolies were killed.

Survey Shows Ground Gaps.

The aerial survey showed also extensive cracks in the ground in north Bihar province. Reports to the India office indicated no Europeans and comparatively few Indians were victims of the quakes and the resulting floods there.

In Darjeeling the panic that followed the first shock subsided today.

At Trivandrum, in south India, an earth tremor lasting four minutes was felt last night. There was no serious damage, but a number of boats capsized.

Tents and provisions were rushed to Jamalpuhr, the most important center on the East India railroad, where 133 buildings were destroyed.

HOLD UP NAUVOO BANK FOR HALF HOUR; GET $8,000

Nauvoo, Ill., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Four or five unmasked men, armed with a machine gun and revolvers, raided the Bank of Nauvoo late today, locked three employés in the vault, and escaped with about $8,000 in cash.

Three of the bandits entered the bank at 4:15 p. m., shouted "it's a stickup!" and covered Cashier C. A. Saling, Assistant Cashier Carl J. Reinhardt, and Edgar Lauther, bookkeeper.

Informed that Chicago police said descriptions of the men tallied with Dillinger and his gang, Assistant Cashier Reinhardt said tonight that Dillinger was not among the robbers.

"I have seen pictures of Dillinger recently," Reinhardt said, "but none of the four men who entered the bank resembled him." One man was about six feet tall and another, the ringleader, who carried a machine gun, was about 5 feet 7 inches, but not so heavy as Dillinger, the assistant cashier said.

The trio of robbers remained in the bank about 30 minutes, took all available cash, locked the vault, dashed outside to a waiting automobile and speeded away.

Mae West Steals Show Again at 3d Day of Robbery Trial

BY GEORGE SHAPPER.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Unable to get through crowded courthouse corridors until the police pushed her through, Mae West "stole the show" from Defendant Edward Friedman, on trial charged with robbing her, today. It was her third successive day as a witness.

In "stealing the show" from Friedman she also stole it from the latter's sandpaper voiced attorney, W. J. [Wild Bill] Clark, who peppered a hot cross-quiz at the blonde witness and at times got more paprika on his answers than he dished out.

Hints Publicity Stunt.

Clark once brusquely demanded:

"You wouldn't say that you staged that jewel robbery as a publicity stunt, would you?" Just as Mae hitched her shoulders to give the proper emphasis to her reply Superior Judge Harry Sewell motioned angrily and said, "That question need not be answered."

Prosecutors used the quick witted witness to introduce words of confession from Friedman after the introduction of a confession in any form had been bitterly resisted by defense counsel as having been "beaten out of him." Friedman told her he was sorry for the robbery, the witness said, when officers brought him to her apartment to look at for identification.

Voller's Name Angers Clark.

Clark, who also had acted here as attorney for Harry Voller, Chicagoan, who was arrested in Illinois on the charge of being the "finger man" in the robbery but who was not extradited from Illinois, became nettled when the witness dragged Voller's name into her answer to one question.

He asked Miss West how she placed the time of the holdup.

"Well, you see," she said, "Mr. Voller [who sat in her automobile with Mae while she was being robbed by two men—one identified by her as Friedman] was not robbed when I was and he had a diamond studded watch." Clark demanded the answer to be stricken, but the judge refused.

Carrying $3,400 Cash.

Miss West told the jury she was carrying $3,400 in cash, which represented her weekly movie studio pay check, at the time of robbery because she had to pay $3,000 on a mausoleum for her mother. She testified that Voller knew she had the cash.

Friedman confessed to her, Miss West testified, that he had been engaged by Voller to do the robbing and that his share was $1,000 of the loot. Friedman's attorney called it a "purported confession" and introduced photographs, testimony by Mrs. Friedman, and statements by physicians to show that Friedman had displayed bruises he said resulted from a police beating.

IL DUCE TO QUIT TWO MINISTRIES; KEEP OTHER FOUR

ROME, Jan. 17.—(AP)—A new cabinet shake-up, with Premier Mussolini relinquishing the portfolios of corporations and interior and retaining the ministries of war, navy, air, and foreign affairs, was reported imminent tonight in high official circles. Belief was expressed that announcement of the shift would come tomorrow or shortly thereafter.

The report was given support by Mussolini's words to former Air Minister Italo Balbo when he departed from Rome Saturday to assume the governorship of Libya. "You will not be the only minister to leave his portfolio," Mussolini said. "Before the month ends there will be other changes."

High circles indicate that Count Costanza Ciano will be the new minister of the interior and Edmondo Rossoni, long known as the economic genius behind the polishing of many of Il Duce's corporative ideas, will assume the corporations portfolio. Ciano shares with Mussolini the honor of being the grandfather of the children of Edda Mussolini and Count Galeazzo Ciano. Rossoni at present is sub-secretary in the presidency of the council of ministers.

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Jan. 17.—The proposal for the Belgian government to issue a 10 billion franc loan [about $440,000,000], part of which would be used to take advantage of this favorable moment to repay Belgium's indebtedness to the United States, was made today at a caucus of parliament members by the Liberal Deputy Marquet.

Marquet proposed that the loan should be issued at 3.5 per cent, with lottery prizes, and used for financing public work in Belgium, as well as payment of debts. Commment among the members of parliament, which is not in session, was favorable.

The argument that Belgium would benefit by the exchange situation and revaluation of United States currency made progress against those who have argued for a flat refusal to pay.

ONLY 20 IN U. S. REPORT INCOME OVER A MILLION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Only 20 multimillionaires drawing an annual net income of more than a million dollars are left in the United States out of a group which once numbered 513, the treasury department announced today.

Two men, whose identities are cloaked in secrecy, stand head and shoulders above the other sole surviving multimillionaires. Each of these two has a net income of between four and five million dollars a year, the largest in the country, the treasury revealed.

Making public statistics on incomes earned in 1932, the last year for which a national survey has been completed, the treasury disclosed that the net taxable income of American private citizens and corporations has shrunk from 35 billion 844 million dollars in 1928, the peak year, to 13 billion 37 millions in 1932.

Taxable Dollar Now 36 Cents.

Each dollar of taxable income in 1928, in other words, had shrunk to 36 cents by 1932.

The treasury's statistics also revealed that the virtual disappearance of large incomes since the coming of the depression has converted the federal income tax from a levy carried by the wealthy into one which rests more heavily on persons with small or medium incomes.

Besides the 20 multimillionaires, each with his net income of a million dollars or more, there were 216 persons in the country in 1932 who probably were much more than millionaires since each one of them drew an income of $300,000 or more.

Compared with these 216 in 1932, however, there were 2,617 in 1929, more than ten times as many. Decimation of millionaires, the treasury's report shows, is due largely to shrinkage in speculative and investment profits, the source of most large incomes.

No One Over Five Million.

Of the 20 multimillionaires with net incomes over a million in 1932, 12 reported incomes between a million and a million and a half, three reported incomes between a million and a half and two millions, three reported incomes between two and three millions, and two reported incomes between four and five millions.

No one reported an income over five million dollars, although in 1928 38 persons were in this income bracket, the highest one listed by the treasury.

The country's 20 multimillionaires had aggregate incomes of almost 35¼ million dollars, of which they paid 15½ millions to the federal government in income taxes. The 20 taxpayers out of 3,769,402 who filed returns in 1932 paid five per cent of the total income tax, although their incomes made up only three-tenths of 1 per cent of the total incomes reported.

Gross Income Near 14 Billions.

The three million and a quarter persons filing returns on their 1932 incomes reported aggregate gross incomes of 13 billion 764 million dollars, derived as follows: Wages, 7 billion 764 millions; business profits, 1 billion 238 millions; stock dividends, 1 billion 951 millions; interest on other than tax exempt securities, 1 billion 163 millions; rents and royalties, 493 millions; partnership profits, 450 millions; speculative profits, 107 millions; investment profits, 50 millions; fiduciary profits, 305 millions, and miscellaneous, 194 millions.

DINNER FOR LEGION CHIEF.

Edward A. Hayes, national commander of the American Legion, will be guest of honor at a testimonial dinner to be given by Chicago Police post, No. 207, in Hotel Sherman Monday.

U. S. CORPORATIONS LOST 4½ BILLIONS IN 1932, FIGURES SHOW

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.] — Although America's 500,000 corporations had a gross income of 65 billion, 652 million dollars in 1932, they operated at a net deficit of 4 billion 568 million dollars, the treasury department announced today.

Revealing the income statistics which corporations reported on their income tax returns, the treasury showed that only 78,775 corporations out of 481,368 showed any taxable income in 1932, the last year for which figures have been compiled.

The net income of these 78,775 corporations amounted to only 1 billion 852 million dollars, the smallest net income for American corporations reported in a decade and a half or more.

The remaining corporations showed a deficit of 6 billion 420 million dollars, the largest aggregate deficit rolled up in any year reported. Gross income of the corporations reporting deficits was 38 billion 493 million dollars; the gross income of those reporting taxable incomes was 27 billion 159 millions.

PROPOSE TAXES ON STATE AND FEDERAL BONDS

Credit for Income That Is Earned Also Asked.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Two far reaching tax reforms were proposed today by Republican members of the house ways and means committee, as that group resumed its effort to draft legislation to plug loopholes in the present tax laws.

A constitutional amendment authorizing the taxation of federal and state government bonds was suggested by Representatives Allen T. Treadway, with the statement that there are now some 40 billions of such securities outstanding and free from taxation.

At the same time, Representative Isaac Bacharach [Rep., N. J.] proposed the restoration to the federal tax laws of a credit against earned income. His plan, Mr. Bacharach declared, would lighten materially the tax burden of the small salaried class without seriously cutting into present income tax revenues.

Reciprocal Tax Proposed.

Mr. Treadway's plan would permit the states to tax the income derived from federal bonds and the federal government to tax the income from state bonds. It would not be retroactive, he said, and would apply only to future issues of state and national government securities.

Representative Treadway, who is the ranking Republican on the ways and means committee, requested an early hearing on his proposed amendment to the constitution. He said, however, that he had no desire or intention of embarrassing the administration at this time by suggesting the removal of government bonds from their tax exempt status when the treasury is faced with the necessity for heavy borrowings.

Would Cut 12½ Per Cent.

The credit against earned income suggested by Representative Bacharach would be in the form of a 12½ per cent deduction, instead of the 25 per cent credit which former tax bills have carried. No credit at all was allowed in the so-called "budget balancing" tax bill of 1932.

For administrative purposes, under Mr. Bacharach's plan, the first $5,000 of net income reported by the taxpayer would be "presumed" to be earned and would be eligible for the 12½ per cent deduction.

MORGENTHAU PLANS A HOUSE-TO-HOUSE INCOME TAX CANVASS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Two hundred million dollars in back taxes must be dunned out of delinquent federal taxpayers, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. told his internal revenue collectors whom he summoned here today for a conference.

At the same time Secretary Morgenthau suggested that he institute a door-to-door canvass throughout the nation to make sure that every one with a taxable income files an income tax return. He said he would apply to the civil works administration for funds for the canvass if his collectors approved the idea.

Income tax returns on 1933 incomes must be filed with district offices of the bureau of internal revenue by March 15.

COL. M'CORMICK SPEAKS AT N. C. PRESS PARLEY

Chapel Hill, N. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, delivered the principal address here tonight at the opening of the three day session of the tenth annual North Carolina Newspaper institute, with Duke university coöperating.

Presenting a detailed outline of the origin and development of different forms of government, Col. McCormick asserted that demagogy had been the cause of the fall of various republics and that one common happening in all of these breakdowns had been the elimination of the newspapers.

Col. McCormick was introduced by Talbot Patrick, publisher of the Goldsboro News Argus.

President Frank P. Graham of the university, who welcomed the editors, declared: "Freedom of the press, which is guaranteed in the constitution, should be freedom to print and criticize and interpret, but not freedom to exploit either workers in the composing room or writers at the desk.

"There was a time when big business considered itself above social control," he said. "But it has learned better. Newspapers as business enterprises should be subject to the same control as other enterprises."

DOLLAR, POUND LINKED IN DEAL, LONDON HEARS

Secret Visit of Roosevelt Envoy Reported.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—A secret mission to London recently by a member of President Roosevelt's "brain trust" was reported here today as the basis of an informal currency agreement which may hold the British pound around a five dollar ratio.

Americans in close touch with official circles in London had various reports of an American monetary expert who came here soon after the resignation of Prof. Oliver M. W. Sprague as financial and executive assistant to the secretary of the treasury on Nov. 21.

The expert was said to have had conferences with Bank of England officials and to have arrived at an understanding about methods by which London and Washington would be kept informed of each other's policy.

No Currency War.

No formal agreement was proposed or deemed necessary, but the basis of the understanding was believed to be to let market trends take their course, with exchange equalization funds used to iron out fluctuations in currencies.

Highest authorities, meanwhile, gave the assurance that rumors of an Anglo-American currency war as the result of President Roosevelt's revaluation program were without foundations.

American buyers were believed to have obtained the bulk of £500,000 worth of gold sold in the open market today at 131 shillings 6 pence a fine ounce—3 pence cheaper than yesterday. The United States dollar gained 1⅝ cents to the pound and closed at $5.07⅞ to the pound, compared to yesterday's close at $5.09⅝.

Japan Will Follow U. S.

TOKIO, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Japan probably will follow the monetary policies of the United States as laid down by President Roosevelt, Finance Minister Korekiyo Takahashi indicated today in an interview.

"If America returns to the gold standard with the gold content of the dollar reduced, as seems likely," declared Takahashi, "Japan probably will be compelled thereafter to devaluate the yen similarly in order to resume gold payments."

Collections Total Half Million.

Into one of the large loop banks during the afternoon walked an elderly woman. To a clerk she tendered a $10 gold piece.

"It was a gift," she said. "My husband gave it to me on a wedding anniversary twenty-five years ago. I had hoped to keep it and have it buried with me. Isn't there any exception to the rule?"

The clerk said there was none. He was sorry. The elderly lady took a green $10 bill and walked away, without even looking at it.

Following her was a brisk middle aged business man.

"Here's a $5 piece," he announced "I gave it to my son on his fifth birthday. That was eleven years ago. Guess he can spend the bill now just as well as he could save the gold."

Another elderly woman, with a tin can, tottered into Federal Reserve bank, where four windows were set aside to accept coins and certificates. Out of the can tumbled a couple of dozen bits of shiny metal, and a courteous attendant paid her in crisp paper.

"Somehow it doesn't seem the same," she said as she took up her cane. "But the President is doing something fine for the country and I'm glad to help along."

An excited gentleman called THE TRIBUNE last night to report himself an unwitting lawbreaker.

"I took down $55 in gold and traded it today," he asserted. "When I got home I found another $5 piece I had overlooked. Can I be prosecuted for that?"

He expressed relief when told that the new order made it possible for him to escape his crime today.

The new order of the secretary of the treasury made it plain that the penalties of the law were not abrogated if, in the opinion of the treasury, gold paid in today or later had been hoarded for profit anticipation However, it relieved merchants, who had been fearful of the consequences should yellow coin or certificates get into their tills.

The penalty for hoarding gold, under the emergency banking law, is a maximum of 10 years in prison, $10,000 fine, or both.

TRIES TO TURN IN HIS GOLD COIN TO U. S., BUT NO ONE WILL TAKE IT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—(AP)—"I was just keeping it as a souvenir."

So a man, rather shabbily dressed, told a guard at the treasury today, displaying a $20 gold piece.

When he went to the bank to turn it in under government orders, he found the bank, under local clearing house orders, had stopped taking gold at 1 o'clock.

At the treasury, he found the cash room had closed at 3 o'clock, so even the treasury was without machinery for taking the gold.

The man need not have worried, for late tonight the treasury indefinitely suspended the order for time limit on returns.

The first gangster to turn state's evidence in recent years took the witness stand in Judge Thomas J. Lynch's court yesterday and accused Gail Swolley and Frank Souder, his former gang associates, of kidnaping James J. Hackett, Blue Island gambler, for ransom.

The witness was Julius Augustus [Babe] Jones, a member of the kidnaping gang headed by Theodore [Handsome Jack] Klutas, former University of Illinois student, who was slain by state's attorney's police ten days ago while being sought in connection with the Hackett kidnaping. Jones has already pleaded guilty on the kidnaping charge.

Testifies in Low Tones.

Jones told his story of the kidnaping, which occurred May 27, 1933, in low tones as though he feared the vengence of the two defendants. His vengeance of the two defendants. His story told on the witness stand Tuesday by Hackett, who said that he had paid $1,500 for his release, although he had promised to pay $10,000. Hackett was kidnaped once before by the same gang and forced to pay $75,000 for his release. That was in 1931.

A crowded courtroom heard Jones describe the events leading up to the kidnaping. Often a reluctant witness, the gangster was emphatic in his replies when prodded by defense attorneys. Then he shouted his answers and glared at Swolley and Souder. But most of the time he chose to avert the steady stare of Souder, whose glasses give him an appearance that belies the ruthlessness ascribed to him by the prosecution witnesses. Souder is a Benton, Ill., gambler and sporting goods salesman.

Swolley Is Jovial.

Swolley, who is a Peoria saloonkeeper, flushed several times as Jones' testimony linked him directly to the kidnaping, but most of the day he was in a jovial mood and smiled now and then at his attorney, T. J. McCormick.

In his direct testimony Jones said the kidnaping gang had gathered at 127th street and Cicero avenue in Alsip on May 27 last, planning to hijack a truckload of bootleg liquor consigned to a Chicago Heights liquor merchant. While they were discussing the liquor robbery, he said, Hackett drove by on his way to the Navajo Golf club.

When the liquor cargo failed to arrive the gang decided to kidnap Hackett as he returned from the Navajo club, which is on 127th street, west of Alsip. The gang overtook the gambler, Jones testified, when his car was stopped by a freight train at the crossing at 119th street and Ridgeland avenue. He was held prisoner in a garage at the rear of Jones' home in Aurora.

Price on Klutas' Head.

Under cross-examination by Defense Attorney James M. Burke, Jones disclosed that internal feuds had split the kidnaping gang and that as a result a price had been put by the gangsters themselves on the head of Klutas, their leader.

"Souder and I spent over $18,000 looking for Klutas," Jones said.

Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan explained that Klutas had tried to have Jones and Souder murdered, and that they in turn had started a man hunt of their own. The cause of the gang feud was not made known.

Jones testified that he was an automobile painter and that he became a bootlegger and later went into the "snatch" racket, his term for kidnaping. Jones tried to take a moral tone in some of his testimony. He said the kidnaping gang did not want "blood money" from any victim, nor did they think it wrong to take "filthy money" from such persons as Dennis Cooney, south side vice lord, or Beck Moriarity, Aurora bootlegger, who were suggested as possible kidnaping victims.

Jones, who is about 35 years old, short and heavy, with a low forehead and heavy black hair, looked the part of the kidnaper as he sat on the witness stand and broke the tradition of gangland by turning state's evidence. It was the first time that the authorities have been able to get one of them to "turn squealer" since the bootleg era brought swift methods of punishment for infractions of gangland's code of rules.

Jones was questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Coghlan. His story was as follows:

Q.—Do you know the defendant Frank Souder? A.—Yes, since about 1931.

Q.—Do you know the defendant Gail Swolley? A.—Yes, since 1933, but I knew of him in 1926.

Points Out the Men.

Q.—Do you see the men in the courtroom? Jones arose, and without looking at the men, except to cast a furtive glance toward the table to make sure of their positions, he pointed them out.

Q.—Did you see the defendants on May 27, 1933? A.—Yes, I met them at 12:30 o'clock at 127th street and Cicero avenue [in Alsip]. I went there in my car, and Souder, Swolley, and Eddie Wagner [who has never been apprehended] came in Wagner's car. We had previously made an arrangement to meet there.

Q.—What did you do then? A.—We went to a barbecue stand and got some lunch and then pulled off the road to eat.

Q.—While there did you see Hackett? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did you men talk about at that time? A.—We went to the place to knock off a truck of whisky.

Defense Attorney Objects.

Defense Attorney Burke objected that the answer was not responsive to the question. Prosecutor Coghlan repeated the question, but the witness said no other talk occurred right then.

Q.—Then what happened? A.—An auto drove past and either Wagner or Souder said, "There goes Hackett." Some one said he didn't look like he was very rich because he was driving a 1930 car.

Q.—What else was said? A.—Souder or Wagner said there is $50,000 riding down the avenue. Some one remarked there was quite a difference between 50 grand ($50,000) and a truck of whisky. Some mention was made of kidnaping Hackett.

Q.—Did you say anything? A.—I suggested we grab either Beck Moriarity or Dennis Cooney.

Q.—Did Swolley say anything? A.—He said he did not go for the kidnap racket. Souder said Hackett was pretty good before.

Witness Seems Confused.

The witness at this point either was reluctant to go on or was confused by a flood of objections from Attorney Burke.

Q.—Tell all that was said and who said it. A.—Swolley said he did not go for kidnaping and for us to get out and look for the truckload of whisky. We went to U. S. highway 30, where the liquor was supposed to come by.

Jones then told of the unsuccessful search for the liquor.

"Then we went back to 119th street and Ridgeland avenue finally," Jones continued. "About that time Souder said, 'Hackett just drove by.' He told me to keep my license plates from being seen, and to stay on the 'cat' road [side road] while they seized Hackett.

Jones said he tried to follow the car used by the kidnapers but lost it in traffic. He then drove past Hackett's home in Blue Island and later to the Blue Island police station to see whether Wagner's car was parked around the place, which would have indicated to him that something had gone wrong and that his companion had been arrested.

Drives to Own Home.

Q.—What happened next? A.—I drove to my home at 234 Sunset avenue, Aurora, and found Souder and Wagner on the front porch [from this Jones knew that the kidnapers had brought Hackett to his house for safekeeping].

Q.—Did you say anything? A.—I said, "With 10,000,000 homes in America, why bring the sucker to my house?"

Jones told how Hackett was finally released on his promise to pay $10,000. Jones said he drove Hackett to the place where he was released and later he received the ransom money from Hackett. The payment took place in Sycamore.

Q.—Did you see Hackett in Sycamore? A.—Yes, I saw him and went up and shook hands with him. He said he thought he had missed us and that he was going to give the money to Sam Hare to give to us.

Gets $500 from Priest.

Q.—What was said by you or Hackett? A.—Hackett said that we would be disappointed. He said his wife pawned the piano for $1,000 and he got $500 from a Catholic priest. He said $1,500 was the best he could do.

Q.—Did you say anything? A.—I said us fellows never took blood money, we are not that kind. I told him he could keep some of it, but he said no, to take it. I asked him if he had any money left and he said he had enough to get him home.

Jones said that the other members of the gang were disappointed when he told them he only obtained $1,500, but that they went out into the country and split the money, $375 each.

Q.—What were you doing at the time of your arrest? A.—I was working for Harold Hayes of the Metropole hotel.

Q.—What was your business prior to that? A.—In the wholesale liquor business since 1926.

Q.—Did you pay the government any taxes? A.—No.

Q.—You have pleaded guilty to this charge? A.—Yes.

Q.—You are a kidnaper, aren't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—And a holdup man? A.—I never have been arrested for one. I was a hijacker; that is a racket where we take things by persuasion of a pistol from people who are not within the law.

Q.—You were going to kidnap Beck Moriarity, you said? A.—Yes, I wanted to spend some of his filthy money.

Although a bootlegger, Jones said he did not drink the liquor he peddled.

Jones occupied the witness stand all day. He will be followed to the stand by Pat Roche, former chief investigator for the state's attorney, who as a private detective solved the Hackett kidnaping. No session of court will be held today because of the funeral of Edward Burke, brother of Defense Attorney Burke.

Warn of NRA Fines

A warning that NRA code violators are subject to a fine of $500 a day for each violation of which they are convicted was given yesterday to delegates to the National Association of Cleaners and Dyers convention in session at the Palmer house by Louis G. Caldwell, attorney for the organization. Mr. Caldwell, who is the Washington member of the Chicago law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, discussed the constitutionality of the association's code, of which he is the author. He expressed the belief that neither state legislation nor an amendment to the constitution will be needed to enforce NRA legislation because of the attitude of a majority of the Supreme court judges.

Blast Kills Two Brothers in Canadian Gold Mine

TOUHY JUROR IS THROWN OUT IN A COURT UPSET

State Exposes His False Answer to Question.

CRIMINAL COURT.

John Marguez, murder, sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary; Anthony Brunkala, receiving stolen property, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; Benny Sabella and Joseph Borgo, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge Harry B. Miller.

William Littlejohn, Rosellus Jenkins, and William Sullivan, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge Grover C. Niemeyer.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

A sudden halt was called late yesterday in the selection of a jury to try four Touhy gangsters charged with kidnaping John Factor when the state discovered that one of eight jurors already sworn had concealed a police record from the court.

Russell H. Brownell, 35 years old, 1319 North La Salle street, manager of an apartment hotel at that address, was the juror in question. He was immediately summoned before Judge Michael Feinberg, who is presiding in the case, and charged with perjury and contempt of court.

His dismissal from the jury after he had been locked up with seven others agreed upon by both the state and defense resulted in a flurry of excitement. The attorneys adjourned with the judge to chambers, where heated arguments followed.

Rejects Defense Motion.

Defense Attorney William Scott Stewart made a motion to dismiss the three jurors who formed a panel with Brownell because they had been present when the charges were made against him. This motion was overruled by the court after Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley cited legal decisions to prove that such action was not legally necessary.

The judge, however, assented to the plea of the defense lawyer that no sentence be pronounced upon Brownell until after the selection of the entire jury. Judge Feinberg denounced the would-be juror, terming his conduct "monstrous," then continued the case against him to Jan. 31, allowing Brownell his liberty on a $1,000 personal bond.

While being questioned by the state during his examination in the jury box Brownell had declared that he had never been arrested. The speedy acceptance by the defense of the panel in which Brownell was included puzzled Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney.

Finds Record of Arrests.

An investigator was dispatched to inquire into the records of the four men. He hurried back to court with the disclosure that Brownell had twice been arrested, in 1926 and 1931, first on a charge of disorderly conduct and next upon suspicion. In each case he had been held overnight in jail and released in court the next day.

Questioned by the judge, Brownell admitted the arrests but asserted he had not intentionally made a false reply to the prosecutor. He said he believed that the arrests did not "count" because he had been freed upon arraignment.

"I'll admit I wanted Brownell on the jury," said Defense Attorney Stewart in chambers to the judge. "But it was merely a hunch that he might be favorable to the defense. I knew nothing of these arrests."

"The state, of course, would never have accepted him," pointed out Prosecutor Crowley, "if it had known about these arrests."

The dismissal of Brownell left four jurors sworn and three more tentatively accepted by both sides. Under the law, the jurors are sworn in groups of four.

Due to the fact that each side was allowed 30 peremptory challenges, prospective jurors were rejected freely by both sides. Prosecutor Crowley and Attorney Stewart engaged happily in a juggling contest in which bewildered veniremen were tossed back and forth.

The first panel of four was finally agreed upon at 2 p. m. The state proceeded with the examination of the veniremen and finally tendered another four men, among them Brownell, to the defense. The questioning of Attorney Stewart was almost perfunctory and he suddenly announced that the men were agreeable to the defense.

Court Observers Surprised.

Surprise was evident upon the faces of the judge and observers, but the second four men were sworn and taken out to join the first four. It had required only 25 minutes to pick them in contrast with 7½ hours for the first panel. Attorney Stewart whispered to Roger Touhy, much publicized as the ferocious gang leader but who appears frightened and furtive in court.

Touhy whispered to Gloomy Gus Schaefer, also known as Stevens, who brightened for a moment. Gus passed the good word to Albert [Polly Nose] Kator, who smiled. Polly Nose told Edward [Father Tom] McFadden, who adjusted his gold rimmed spectacles and tried to appear benevolent. But the satisfaction of the Touhys was spoiled a little later when Brownell was removed from the jury.

Willing to Serve on Jury.

There was one feature of the questioning of the jurors which surprised veteran observers. This was the willingness of those summoned to the jury box to serve. Only a very few showed a disinclination to shoulder the task of determining the guilt or innocence of four reputedly desperate and powerful gangsters.

At the height of the prohibition era, when gangsters were most prosperous and influential, prosecutors found citizens fearful of the consequences of sitting in judgment upon criminals who boasted of their wealth and their political affiliations. There has been no such sentiment evident at this trial.

Factor, the state's principal witness, has been threatened with death because of his announced intention of testifying against the defendants, and this fact has been given much publicity, but none of the veniremen has shown a reluctance to place himself in a position where the vengeance of the Touhy gang may become a matter to be feared.

In addition to the usual questions concerning possible scruples against the death penalty, the presumption of a defendant's innocence until he is proved guilty, and the like, Prosecutor Crowley yesterday stressed the fact that this is not a case of John Factor versus the men who kidnaped him but the case of the people of the state of Illinois against the alleged kidnapers.

KLUTAS AID SENT TO PRISON FOR LIFE IN MICHIGAN

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Tommy Harris, alias Joe Bush, Chicago gunman and member of the kidnaping gang led by Theodore [Handsome Jack] Klutas, pleaded guilty to robbery here today and tonight had started serving a life sentence in the Jackson penitentiary. Klutas, two of whose companions are on trial in Chicago on charges of kidnaping James Hackett, gambler, was using Harris' automobile when Chicago detectives trapped and killed him more than a week ago in Bellwood, a suburb.

Harris pleaded guilty before Judge Thaddeus B. Taylor to the armed robbery on Aug. 3 last year of the W. T. Grant & Co. store here, in which he and a companion got $1,804. He refused to name his accomplice.

Harris was wounded and captured, with other members of a bandit gang, by the police in Springfield, Ill., shortly before Klutas was slain. Police armed with riot guns guarded the courtroom when he appeared today; and two heavily armed carloads of deputy sheriffs escorted him to prison.

3 Women, 11 Men Rescued from Their Sinking Yacht

Passaic, N. J., Jan. 17.—(AP)—The sailing yacht Alamyth, 24 hours out of Passaic, adventure bound in southern seas with 14 aboard, ran afoul of the weather 75 miles off Barnegat light today and was abandoned in a sinking condition.

Wireless messages to the Coast Guard from the steamer Gulfland, which rescued the 11 men and three women during heavy seas, told the story of the near-tragic end of the party's search for romance and adventure.

Two hours before the rescue the master of the Gulfland reported to the Coast Guard that the Alamyth was sinking and in immediate need of assistance. The Coast Guard dispatched the cutter Thetis at full speed. Two other cutters, the Hermes and Cahoone, later were dispatched.

Forced to Abandon the Boat.

The Gulfland apparently had some difficulty in effecting the rescue, for it was reported it was forced to abandon its No. 3 lifeboat because of heavy seas. It was believed the No. 3 boat took the passengers and crew safely from the Alamyth but could not be hauled back to the davits after they were taken aboard because of the heavy seas.

The Gulfland, out of Beverly, Mass., is bound for Port Arthur, Tex. The cutter Thetis was expected to take the 14 rescued persons from the Gulfland and return them to New York, while the other cutters, if they arrive in time, may be able to tow the Alamyth back to port.

Besides Capt. John Metsal and Cook Peter Peterson, the others aboard the yacht were Mr. and Mrs. George A. Conklin, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kobbe of Teaneck, honeymooners; Paul Clifford of Teaneck, Ethelbert E. Furlong, Montclair landscape artist; Miss Medora Gehben of New York, who last year toured Africa in a small automobile; Charles Bradley, New York lawyer; George Fischer and Walter Dodge, both of Brooklyn; James E. Hewes and Horace Robbins, both of Baltimore.

Gets Quick Response.

The idea of the voyage was that of Conklin. He advertised for some one to share adventure with him, and also the expenses. He got quick results.

"We don't intend to follow the beaten path," said Conklin before the party sailed yesterday, as he outlined a tentative schedule calling for stops at ports in Bermuda, the Virgin islands, Antigua and sunny Martinique.

The galley was well stocked, for Cook Peterson had sailed the south seas with Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania.

Identify Man Who Killed Himself in Loop Hotel

The body of a man about 28 years old, who shot and killed himself on Sunday in a room at the Morrison hotel, was identified yesterday as that of Alton Russell Hatt of Shillington, Pa. The identification of Hatt, who had registered as A. R. Hart, was established after Detectives Roy Kindt and Guy Willoughby, finding a Shillington address among his papers, telegraphed to his former home.

LIQUOR CONTROL BILL ATTACKED IN COMMITTEE

Chicago Board Project Is Center of Fight.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Provision for the proposed home rule for Chicago included in the state liquor control bill withstood successfully today a serious attack in the joint conference committee of the house and senate.

First there was an effort to shake up the proposed personnel of the commission by providing for minority—meaning Republican—representation. A motion to that effect was beaten down by a combined vote of 14 to 4. Then came reconsideration and the representation was granted, 16 to 2.

An effort to strike from the pending bill all provisions for a Chicago license appeal commission separate from the state control commission. The debate on this was warm, but wound up with an adverse combined vote of 14 to 3.

As now planned a minority member of the state commission would have a like place on the Chicago commission.

Predict "Emergency" Defeat.

During the scrapping Republican house members threatened to defeat the bill when it comes out in the house again. Repeated predictions were made that it never will receive the two-thirds vote of 102 required in that chamber to give the bill emergency effect.

The conference committee of eighteen, nine from each house, worked all day. Meantime the other legislators were loafing. The house adjourned until next Tuesday. The senate shortly followed suit. But the big committee continued its labors in a house committee room.

The amendment, as presented by Representative W. M. Powers [Dem., Chicago], in modified form, found its way into the bill. As agreed on by the conference, blends containing less than 75 per cent of whisky aged four years in the wood and offered for sale at retail in Illinois must contain the label "Imitation Whisky." Similar labels must go on whisky imported into Illinois and intended for retail sale in the state.

Searcy Starts Debate.

The debate on the "Chicago section" was opened with a quiet suggestion from Senator Earl B. Searcy [Rep., Springfield] that there should be a compulsory requirement for the Chicago license appeal commission. The bill provides that it shall be composed of the chairman of the state commission, an appointee of the governor, the secretary of state, and a third member named by the Chicago council. Under the present conditions, it was said, all three probably would be Democrats. This has aroused the Republicans.

David E. Shanahan [Rep., Chicago] suggested that the insertion of only a few words would provide for minority representation and later made a motion for such change.

Then began the really heated opposition. Representative Leroy M. Green [Rep., Rockford] predicted that if the Chicago commission provision were left in the bill it would be defeated decisively.

For Appeal from Mayor.

"It won't have a Chinaman's chance if the dual commission system is left in," said Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago].

"The governor insisted there must be some sort of appeal from the Chicago mayor's power," said Senator L. O. Williams [Dem., Clinton].

"I'm against it," said Green, "because it is a classification that has no reasonable basis. I can see no more reason for a special commission for Chicago than for Rockford.

"In my opinion this is nothing but a division of political power, granting control over downstate to the governor and control over Chicago to the mayor of that city. The situation should be controlled by one commission that has the same interest in all parts of the state."

"As sensible men," said Williams, "we should be able to put some plan into effect before July 1."

"But unless this matter is settled," interjected Searcy, "the only way out will be the adoption of a package liquor law."

The first test came on Boyle's motion to table Shanahan's motion for minority representation. It was carried by the vote of the contingent of each house.

The senate group divided 8 to 1 and the house group 6 to 3. The only ones who stood by the minority representation idea were Representative Lewis Devine and Shanahan and Senator Searcy. Later came reconsideration, due, it was said, to phone calls by Mayor Kelly and the governor, and the vote for minority representation was 16 to 2.

Considers Local Option.

The committee ordered the preparation of an amendment that in a vote on local option the voters of the proposed dry district shall have an opportunity to determine whether the territory shall be bone dry or the sale of beer shall be permitted therein. The vote of the house members was 7 to 1 and that of the senate members 6 to 3. The committee eliminated as unconstitutional a provision for a dry bill for a mile around dry cities, villages, and towns.

WOMAN RAPS ILLINOIS HOUSE AND GOES HOME

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Lottie Holman O'Neill, Illinois' first woman legislator, today staged a "one woman strike" in protest of the general assembly's "unnecessary delay" in acting on liquor legislation.

Mrs. O'Neill, at the conclusion of today's session of the house, said she was going home and would not return to the present session, at which nothing other than liquor legislation is being considered.

"Those of us who are interested in eliminating the old evil previous to prohibition by barring of saloons and the maintaining of dry territory through local option cannot possibly subscribe to the committee report now under consideration," Mrs. O'Neill said. This session is costing the taxpayers approximately $500 a day."

SENATE PASSES SALE-BY-DRINK BILL FOR CAPITAL

Warned It Will Mean Saloon's Return.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—(AP)—A new liquor law for the national capital, permitting sale by the drink in hotels, restaurants and clubs, was approved by the senate today despite warnings that it would mean a return of the saloon.

The senate passed a house bill to set up a private license system here after only two hours of consideration and virtually no debate.

A substitute proposed by Senator Capper [Rep., Kas.] to provide a dispensary system was rejected without a record vote. Capper contended the license system would mean a return of the saloon with all its evils.

Goes to Conference.

The bill goes to conference for adjustment of minor differences between the house and senate and is expected to be approved in time to permit legal liquor in the district early in February for the first time since 1917.

Supporting the bill, Senator Reynolds [Dem., N. C.], said it was "aimed at a return of some semblance of sobriety and temperance which were broken down in the prohibition era." He denied it would permit saloons.

Senator Logan [Dem., Ky.], however, suggested there would be "bigger and better saloons," and Senator Clark [Dem., Mo.], in calling attention to party pledges against return of the saloon, said any place where you could buy liquor by the drink was a saloon.

Warns of Old Evils.

"The license system will reopen the avenue for private profit and bring back all the former evils," Capper said. "We are going back to the evils of the pre-prohibition age instead of profiting from experience."

The only major change made by the senate was to adopt an amendment by Senator Walsh [Dem., Mass.] to prevent sale of liquor on Sunday, except for medicinal purposes.

CLEANER LOSES BLUE EAGLE, BUT LAUDS NEW DEAL

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Ordered by the National Recovery administration to surrender his Blue Eagle because of his refusal to comply with fixed prices placed in the national cleaners and dyers' code, Robert T. Moore, owner of the Economy Dry Cleaners, replied to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, that he had already taken his Blue Eagles down, anticipating such a demand.

He added that he would comply with wage and hour requirements of the dry cleaning code because "I am wholeheartedly for the new deal."

"I have consistently charged prices lower than some of my competitors because my services do not command a higher price," Mr. Moore said. "I do not extend credit to my customers, nor call for and deliver throughout the city. If I am forced to charge the same prices as others, it is easy to see I will quickly lose my business to those who have credit systems and delivery routes covering the city.

"I will continue to abide by the wage and hour requirements of the code and I understand that is what Mr. Roosevelt wants. I am wholeheartedly for the new deal."

Surrender Three More.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Three Blue Eagles were ordered surrendered today by employers charged with violating codes, two in Michigan and one in Louisiana. Sterling Cleaners, Grand Rapids, Mich., had to surrender the insignia because it had cleaned suits at a 49 cent price instead of the 75 cent code minimum. The Indian Village Harbor restaurant of Detroit was charged with working waitresses 60 hours a week. The Shell Laundry, Lake Charles, La., was reported by the local compliance board with violating both wage and hours provisions.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—J. T. Kiggens, retired lawyer, who is 90 years old and deaf, was in serious condition today after being brutally beaten by two holdup men whose commands he failed to hear.

FIVE JAPS SEIZED TAKING PICTURES IN JERSEY RELEASED

Kearney, N. J., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Five Japanese, arrested when they were discovered taking pictures from the Pulaski skyway, were freed this afternoon by the police here. The men had seven cameras.

Unconditional releases were accorded four of them, while the fifth, was paroled in the custody of Takeo Nimiya, vice counsul of Japan in New York City, for appearance when wanted.

The releases came after Thomas G. Galvin, a member of the legal staff of the immigration bureau at Ellis island, examined them and announced that the immigration bureau gives the men a "clean bill of health."

FREEDOM OFFER DIES; FILIPINOS HURL EPITHETS

Quezon Is Accused of "Duplicity."

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

MANILA, Jan. 17.—The Hawes-Cutting Philippine independence offer expired today with the same apathy as greeted the original passage of the American measure proffering these islands separate government within 10 or 12 years.

Despite attempts to work up a big funeral demonstration, including the serving of a free lunch in the public plaza, the Roxas faction was able to muster only 3,000 persons in a city of 500,000 to hear eulogies over the demise of the offer.

Osmeno Seeks to Revive Law.

Little was said regarding the law itself. The entire meeting rapidly became a bitter attack on Manuel Quezon, speaker of the senate, who opposed the law. Manuel Roxas, former speaker of the house, hurled charges of "duplicity" against Quezon. Other speakers of the Roxas faction heaped epithets on their political opponents, but did not defend the law itself.

Senator Sergio Osmeno in a speech said if his party wins the June election he will forthwith undertake to revive the Hawes-Cutting measure. He said he believes it is the best solution of the Philippine problem obtainable.

Quezon Leaders Silent.

Pro-Quezon political leaders were silent all day. The pro-Quezon press, however, openly jeered and hooted the passage of the time limit for acceptance of the law. The papers printed cartoons on the law similar to American prohibition cartoons.

The real issues of the independence question have now assumed a minor rôle compared to the exchange of personalities. Roxas still seems hopeful of gaining a majority in the next election, but impartial observers believe this quite unlikely, especially since the lapse of the Hawes-Cutting law weakens his position, putting the entire argument in the past tense and making pleas merely academic.

"DOLLAR DAY" TOMORROW ON STATE STREET

124 Stores to Offer Unusual Values.

State street merchants announced yesterday that all is ready for their demonstration tomorrow that the American dollar still has full purchasing power on the famous shopping thoroughfare. That will be Dollar day when the unit of currency will take on larger proportions in its ability to be exchanged for many articles which it never bought before.

"The 60 cent standard will not apply to the dollar on State street Dollar day," said Walter L. Gregory, president of the State street council. "All those who have become fearful as to the result of devaluation will be cheered by a tour through State street stores."

124 Stores Participate.

The Dollar day, it was announced, will be the largest ever held, with 124 retail shops and stores participating. For many of the smaller stores, it is the first time they are taking part in the event, which includes the establishments from Congress to Lake street.

Flags and banners will be strung up high along State street, where they may be seen from a distance by the hundreds of thousands of shoppers for whom provision has been made by surface lines, bus, "L," suburban electric trains and railroads. Special traffic supervision and arrangements by garages and parking lots will give all possible convenience to those who motor to the loop.

Preparations for the huge sales event began four months ago, and proceeded steadily even in the midst of the holiday bustle.

Offer Many Values.

As a result of the months of combing of the world's markets, all aimed at the single shopping day, officials of the State street council said that values were more varied and offered greater thrift opportunities than ever before. Because the actual buying was done some time ago the 60 cent dollar will do far more than should be expected of it in these days, it was said.

The merchants say they look upon Dollar day more as an opportunity to add to the fame of State street rather than to make profits.

Store executives threw up their hands when asked to enumerate some of the items that will be offered under the Dollar day banner. It can be said, however, that these include, under "items for the home," rugs, furniture, house furnishings, linens, towels, sheets, pillow cases, etc.; under "items to wear," coats, hats, suits, dresses, shoes, corsets, silk and other underwear, etc., and as "items for personal use," athletic accessories, cameras, films, perfumes, fine soaps, and other toilet articles.

EVANSTON FIREMEN HURT.

Firemen George Pougel and John Schippemann of the Evanston department were cut and bruised yesterday when the bracket on a fire truck to which they were clinging gave way, throwing them to the street. The truck was answering a false alarm.

DEMANDS SENATE SIFT $500,000 SEAWAY LOBBY

Clark Renews His Fight on Proposed Treaty.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—A demand that the senate investigate the half million dollar lobbying fund admittedly spent by advocates of the St. Lawrence treaty, was made on the senate floor today by Senator Bennett C. Clark [Dem., Mo.], one of the foremost opponents of the pending agreement with Canada.

The Missouri senator's invitation to the treaty supporters to look into the influences which had been used both for and against the treaty was made as a sequel to queries by Senator J. Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.], opposition leader, as to the inspiration behind certain editorial opinions in Canadian newspapers.

Cites Tribune Article.

Picking up the suggestion, Senator Clark cited a recent CHICAGO TRIBUNE article containing a statement by Charles P. Craig, executive director of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater association, that his organization had spent a half million dollars in furthering the seaway. Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.], foreign relations chairman in charge of the treaty, remarked on the dubiety of basing senatorial statements on newspaper reports.

"Then I, for one, would be very glad to have an official and full senate investigation of the influence of lobbies, either for or against the St. Lawrence treaty," countered Senator Clark, but his proposal brought forth no ready agreement from Senator Pittman.

Still more was heard concerning lobbying in behalf of the treaty when Senator Lewis charged that former Senator Henry J. Allen of Kansas had been allowed to sit in at secret negotiations between former Assistant Secretary of State Rogers and the Canadian minister.

Claims Allen Shared in Fund.

"Senators who inquired were told that no such negotiations were going on," said Senator Lewis. "But former Senator Allen was allowed to attend, the reason given being that he was there as a 'private citizen' in the public interest. Actually, he was drawing compensation from that very $500,000 fund to which reference has been made.'

In answer to arguments made by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], an active proponent of the treaty, Senator Lewis asserted that the pending agreement voided the former agreement contained in the 1909 treaty under which a one year's notice might be served to end the grant to Canada of the right of free use of Lake Michigan. The new treaty would make that grant irrevocable, Senator Lewis pointed out. Senator Vandenberg agreed, but defended the necessity of such a grant and vehemently rejected the fears expressed by the Illinois senator, that Great Britain is seeking by the treaty to gain a military water route to the heart of the United States.

Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.] also spoke against the treaty. Construction of the waterway, he said, might well strike a death blow to eastern railroad systems already tottering.

WILLITS CITED BY COURT FOR SLAPPING WIFE

John McGregor Willits, insurance broker, repeatedly slapped the face of his divorced wife, Mrs. Margaret Liggett Willits, Tuesday evening, her attorney, Frank B. Teed, charged yesterday before Judge Joseph Sabath in the Superior court. Judge Sabath ordered Willits cited for contempt of court today.

Mrs. Willits charged that she went to her ex-husband's home at 2215 Maple street, Evanston, Monday evening, to see their children, Jane, 6 years old, and Anne, 2, of whom he has custody. He refused her admittance.

Tuesday night, she said, Willits called her and asked if she wanted to see the children. When she went to his home, she charged, he slapped her face. She went home. Willits followed. He forced his way in and slapped her again. The butler threw him out. Then, she charged, Willits forced his way back in, slapped her a third time, and was thrown out again.

Mrs. Willits is the daughter of the drug chain magnate. Willits is the son of Ward Willits, vice president of the Adams and Westlake company, railway supply dealers. They are engaged in a contest before Judge Sabath over the custody of their children.

SENATE AIR MAIL GROUP HEARS OF FABULOUS SWAP

$253 Stock Traded for 21 Million.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Testimony that W. Irving Glover, second assistant postmaster general, had directed the destruction of some of his records just before he left office and another tale of how a few hundred dollars was turned into millions in aviation stock investment were heard by the senate committee investigating airmail contracts today.

Chairman Black announced that Glover would be called to testify regarding the alleged record burning. The committee already had announced that Walter F. Brown, postmaster postmaster general in the Hoover administration, would be summoned in connection with previous testimony that his records, both official and personal, were burned. Brown has denied that his official records were destroyed.

Admits Destruction.

After J. J. Doran, a postoffice inspector, had testified that correspondence relating to airmail contracts was missing from Glover's files, R. L. Johns, personal secretary to Glover from 1921 to 1933, testified he had ordered all the correspondence destroyed on Glover's instructions. He denied, however, that it pertained specifically to mail "contracts." Robert E. Smith, a Negro messenger, testified he did the actual burning.

Fabulous aviation profits again were related by a man who had been on the Pratt and Whitney ground floor. F. B. Rentschler said he received United Airways stock quoted at $21,301,588 early in 1929 in exchange for Pratt and Whitney shares that cost him $253 four years previously.

Had Unbelievable Rise.

In May, 1929, the stock he received had a market value of more than $35,000,000. By that time, he said, he had sold 159,604 shares for $9,514,000. The remainder is worth $2,100,000 today it was shown.

Republican members of the senate committee investigating airmail contracts said today they would widen the scope of the inquiry to include the present Democratic postal régime.

ALIMONY DEBTOR IS SENT TO JAIL A SECOND TIME

Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday sent Daniel P. Cooney, 60 years old, 1302 Elburn avenue, a retired coal merchant, to the county jail for failure to pay $382 in alimony to his divorced wife, Mrs. Gertrude Cooney, 1012 South Throop street. Cooney has served one alimony term, having been released at Christmas time. Attorney Robert E. Cantwell Jr., representing Mrs. Cooney, suggested that Cooney allow his wife to collect rents on three flat buildings which he owns, in lieu of alimony. When Cooney refused, Judge Desort ordered him to jail.

Would You Pay $2 To Lose 36 Pounds of FAT

"I am using Kruschen to lose fat. My weight was 254 lbs. I've taken 3 jars—this is 4th one and have lost 36 lbs. I sleep better and feel better in every way. I'm 5' 6" tall. Am more than pleased and will keep taking Kruschen until my weight is 136 lbs." Mrs. Evelyn Hise, Clinton, Ind.

Here is a wise, intelligent woman who refuses to accept the terrible handicap of fat. She has set a certain goal for herself and gradually but surely she's obtaining it—a youthful slender figure filled with glorious energetic health. It can be yours, too, if you'll cut down on fatty foods and take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water first thing every morning.

Kruschen is actually a health treatment—if you have no FAT to lose you can't lose WEIGHT with Kruschen. Thousands of normal and slender folks who have no fat to lose take a little daily dose (as much as will lie on a dime—tasteless in tea or coffee), to keep feeling fine and fit—to keep liver normally active, bile flowing freely, bowels blissfully regular, kidneys free from poisons and to get rid of indigestion, gas, acidity, headaches, and shortness of breath.

That's why so many practicing physicians prescribe Kruschen—they know it's an effective, safe way to take off fat and improve health.

A jar lasts 4 weeks and costs but a trifle at any reliable drug store. Imitations are numerous—make sure you get Kruschen—the safe, healthy treatment.

In Office Tomorrow

George W. Young, vice president of Marshall Field & Co., wholesale, yesterday was elected to succeed George W. Rossetter as president of the Chicago Association of Commerce. The new president, nominated Jan. 5, will be installed with other officers and directors at a noon banquet tomorrow in the Palmer house.

The six vice presidents who will head the association's various activities are: Robert C. Ross, C. D. Southard, C. C. Coldren, Martin H. Kennelly, William M. Ellis, and F. B. Ernst. Harvey G. Ellerd was elected general secretary and Guy E. Reed was named general treasurer.

Directors elected for two years each are A. R. Bone, J. H. Fall, Thomas S. Hammond, David A. Crawford, James B. Forgan, Henry L. Kellogg, Bruce MacLeish, Richard Hackett, Elmer F. Wieboldt, and James C. Cox.

The association's announced program for 1934 includes trade promotion and market expansion at home and abroad, continued development of Chicago's industrial, commercial, and civic possibilities, maintaining Chicago's supremacy as the world's convention capital and an effort to lower taxes and develop greater economy and efficiency in government.

M'DONALD BOOED AS HE SPEAKS TO HIS CONSTITUENTS

SEAHAM HARBOR, England, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald today visited his constituency for the first time since the election which put the national government into the saddle and was the butt of some booing and considerable heckling. The remarks, however, did not faze him.

Speaking in defense of the government's policy, the premier gave his critics the goods he received from them. He said he was not afraid to return and face them again.

Boos mingled with cheers as Mr. MacDonald rose, but he calmly called them "a most excellent augury," adding that "the last time I was here was before the election and on that occasion the booing was more successful than tonight."

HOUND TRAILS FLEEING FELON; OTHERS ESCAPE

Minor Convict Retaken at Huntsville, Tex.

Huntsville, Tex., Jan. 17.—(AP)—J. B. French, one of the five convicts who escaped when Clyde Barrow, Texas desperado, raided the Eastham state prison farm yesterday, has been recaptured. Bloodhounds chased French into the cabin of Gabe Wright, Negro farmer, who pointed a shotgun at him.

When raiding the prison farm Barrow wielded a machine gun. Raymond Hamilton, Joe Palmer, Henry Methvin, and W. H. Bybee escaped and drove away in an automobile.

Maj. Crowson, one of the guards, was shot in the abdomen by the escaping convicts. He was in the prison hospital today and hope was held out for his recovery. Olen Bozeman, another guard, was convalescing from a wound in the hip inflicted by the fleeing felons.

French said today that when he heard the shooting he ducked into the brush and hid there until he had a chance to run for the timber. He was returned to his wood chopping today.

Bozeman expressed the belief that Barrow or his confederates used an airplane to obtain the "lay of the land" for the convict delivery.

Hamilton, killer and former companion of Barrow, had boasted last August when starting to serve sentences totaling 263 years: "I won't be here long—Clyde Barrow won't let me lie around a prison farm."

SET FORTH NEW HOPE FOR SALE OF CANALS TO U.S.

Get Figures on Cost of Reproducing System.

A new plan for the sale of the Chicago sanitary district canals to the federal government began to take definite form yesterday with the disclosure of an engineering report. The details were revealed by Thomas J. Bowler, president of the district, who expressed optimism over the outlook for the sale.

The report, which is nearing completion under the direction of Philip Harrington, chief engineer for the district, states that the estimated cost of reproducing the canals would be $96,000,000 in comparison to the actual cost to the taxpayers of $66,143,185. Mr. Harrington expects to present the report to the canal trustees at their meeting today if he has completed his final figures by that time.

The Canals Involved.

The canals, which the district will offer to Uncle Sam, in order that cash may be obtained to complete the costly sewage disposal program in Chicago, are the main drainage canal from Damen avenue to Joliet, the south branch of the Chicago river from the mouth at Lake Michigan to Damen avenue, the Calumet-Sag channel, which starts east of Blue Island and extends westerly to a connection with the main channel near Lemont, and the Little Calumet river between Blue Island and Lake Calumet.

The four streams were all placed under the jurisdiction of the war department by the rivers and harbors act adopted by congress in 1930. The north shore channel, which is not under federal control, will not be offered for sale.

In a second group of figures Mr. Harrington estimated the costs for a nine foot water depth. This is the depth for the inland waterway, but the main drainage canal is 22 feet deep and the Calumet-Sag channel has a depth of 20 feet. It would cost the government $79,000,000, according to Harrington, to reproduce the present canal system with 9 foot channels. However, the same amount of work in the creation of the present canal system cost the sanitary district only $55,498,087.

Expect Congress Debate.

Any basis which the federal government may accept probably will be preceded by a lively debate in congress. The two United States senators from Illinois, James Hamilton Lewis and William H. Dieterich, are backing the sale, according to Mr. Bowler. Congressman A. J. Sabath of Chicago has been working on the plans with trustees of the district.

Mr. Bowler pointed out the saving that would result for the district's taxpayers if the sale were made. Already $100,969,212 has been expended on the program, which is made necessary by the United States Supreme court mandate in the lake diversion litigation.

The federal public works administration has allotted $41,938,000 to push the program forward for two years, but an additional sum estimated at $78,247,000 will still be needed. Mr. Bowler declared that a sale of the canals would put an end to the district's financing problems.

"It was a branch of the federal government, the Supreme court," asserted Mr. Bowler, "that ordered Chicago to go ahead with this staggering project. Another branch of the government should put nothing in the way of releasing funds so that the work can be completed without breaking the backs of Chicago taxpayers."

Cut in Diversion Ordered.

The major point in the Supreme court's ruling was that the diversion of water from Lake Michigan at Chicago should be cut to 1,500 cubic feet a second by the end of 1938. Because of this order Mr. Bowler instructed Mr. Harrington not to include any structures used to control the flow of water.

"If we have to average 1,500 cubic feet," explained Mr. Bowler, "the district must keep control of the flow. When a storm comes along it is sometimes necessary to increase the flow to 10,000 or 12,000 feet so that the river won't reverse itself and run back into the lake, Chicago's water supply."

Unless there is a reversal in policy the dams and power house at Lockport and the controlling gates at Blue Island will remain in the possession of the district.

Mr. Bowler summed up the situation with the remark that it was the federal government's business to operate waterways and the sanitary district's job to dispose of sewage.

Great Dismal Swamp canal, a waterway project from Norfolk, Va., to the sounds of North Carolina, bought by the government from the Lake Drummond Canal and Water company for $500,000 on March 30, 1929.

Cape Cod canal in Massachusetts, connecting Buzzards and Cape Cod bays, purchased from the Boston, Cape Cod and New York Canal company for $11,500,000 on March 31, 1928. The government assumed $6,000,000 worth of the company's bonds and paid the rest in cash.

Chesapeake and Delaware canal, in August, 1919, $2,514,290.

Willamette Falls canal and locks, Oregon City, Ore., in April, 1915, $300,000.

Chesapeake and Albemarle canal, between Elizabeth river in Virginia and Albemarle sound in North Carolina, in April, 1913, $500,000.

Little Kanawha river, West Virginia, in November, 1905, $75,000.

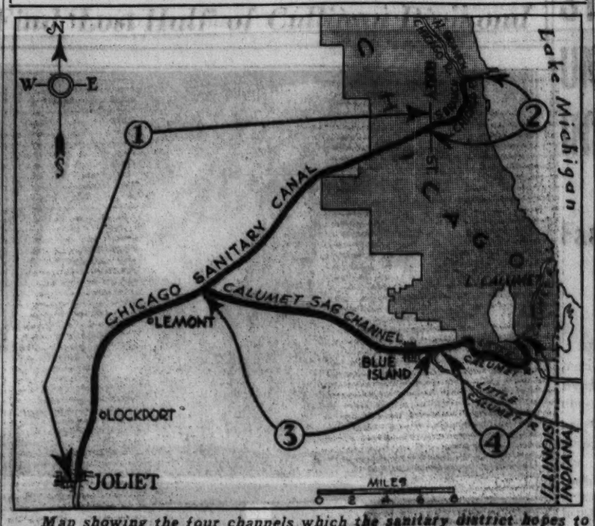
Lock and dam in the Monongahela river in Pennsylvania, in 1887, $3,601,000.

Fox river, Wisconsin, certain property rights, 1872, $145,000.

After looking over this list Mr. Bowler declared that Chicago could match the arguments that sold canals for other areas in the country.

PROPOSE SALE OF CHANNELS TO U. S.



Map showing the four channels which the sanitary district hopes to sell to the federal government. They are (1) the main drainage canal from Damen avenue to Joliet, (2) the south branch of the river from the mouth at the lake to Damen avenue, (3) the Calumet Sag channel from Blue Island to main channel near Lemont, and (4) the Little Calumet river from Blue Island to Lake Calumet.

Industry Using New Measure of Success, Richberg Says

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

As one of the new viewpoints in the changing world under the New Deal American industry is now measuring its success in terms of employment and workers' well being rather than in profits and dividends, according to Donald R. Richberg, general counsel of the NRA. In two lectures on "Government and Business" he addressed the class in contemporary thought at Northwestern university last night in Thorne hall on McKinlock campus and in the afternoon in Harris hall at Evanston.

"When the iron and steel industry," he said, "made a report of its first 90 days' operation under a code of fair competition, the success of the industry was measured in these startling figures: 75,000 additional employés; pay rolls increased $7,429,000 per month; average hours of work reduced from 39 to 32 per week; average hourly earnings increased 22 per cent; average weekly earnings maintained for the shorter hours of work.

Record of Progress.

"Perhaps even more remarkable than these figures were, first, the public recognition that this was a record of industrial progress, and, second, the resolution adopted by the board of directors of the Iron and Steel institute expressing the 'satisfaction' of this industrial management with the result of working under a code which required shorter hours, higher wages, and increased employment in handling a smaller volume of business.

"Can any one recollect any previous time in our history when the managers of huge nation-wide industry have reported a diminishing volume of business, accompanied by a great increase in the number of employés and in the size of the pay rolls, with a consequent curtailment of profits, and have announced amid popular applause that they were proud of it?

"The shift in public opinion to an understanding that the success of an industrial enterprise should be measured, not merely by the profits which it reaps for a few, but also by the wages it pays and the service it renders to the many, is a change in public attitude of extraordinary significance.

Ground for Social Advance.

"That is the reason for my venturing now to repeat what I said here two years ago: 'If the habit of the public mind should be so changed as to see that the first purpose of industry must be to give men the opportunity to earn a decent livelihood, and to see that profit making by investors, even though a legitimate object and an incentive to the saving and employment of capital, is only a process of achieving the first purpose of industry, and is not its end and aim—the ground would be laid for a great social advance.'

"If the NRA had accomplished nothing more than a slight change in the habit of the public mind it would presage a social and economic advance far beyond the vision of those economists who are only squinting with nearsighted eyes at the train of events rushing by them, creating much noise and confusion, but freighted with ideas that will affect profoundly our political economic system."

Mr. Richberg said some of the learned professions are often unaware of changes in public viewpoint which lead to great social changes.

Recalls Repeal Predictions.

"Two years ago," he said, "the lawyers, the economists, and probably a vast majority of all the learned professions, would have agreed that a repeal of the 18th amendment was impossible. Enforcement or nullification were the only practical alternatives. The public attitude shifted slightly, and before our learned counsellors could get ready to lead the people where they were going, or to stop them from going there, the impossible had happened.

"And so two years ago if any one had brought forward the program embodied in Title I. of the national recovery act and proposed to accomplish the gigantic task of writing codes of fair competition for all the trades and industries of the United States in six months—and of setting up a machinery for the adoption and then for the administration of the codes—there is no question that an overwhelming majority of lawyers and economists would have assured this rash experimenter, first, that the job could not be done; second, that it should not be done, and third, that if done it would not be a success.

"Let it be clearly understood that any claim of the permanent success of the industrial recovery program would be almost as poorly grounded as present claims that the program is a demonstrated failure. The program is today a demonstrated success, because it has served mightily to promote and hasten the improvement of industrial conditions.

Sees Further Advance.

"It is reasonable to believe that the gains achieved can be maintained and that a further advance can be made in the administration and strengthening of the codes. But it is also possible that temporary gains may be lost and that our newly devised mechanisms of coöperation may break down, and new methods may have to be devised with different legislative sanctions.

"We can wisely wait to appraise the first year's achievements when the first year is ended. But out of the work of the NRA we can arrive even now at a better judgment as to our fundamental problem and the measures with which we can intelligently experiment in seeking its solution.

"The objective is clear. There must be government in industry. We are trying to achieve a process of self-government of industry so that we may thereby retain the freedom and security of our democratic institutions of political self-government."

SO. SIDE GROUPS PROTEST PLANS FOR FILTER PLANT

Appear at Hearing Before Park Board.

Representatives of a dozen south side business men's and improvement associations appeared at a hearing held by the south park commissioners yesterday and voiced opposition to the construction of a filtration plant off the lake shore at 67th street. Most objections were to the location of the plant, which would include structures and towers ranging from 30 to 90 feet in height.

Arthur E. Gorman, city engineer in charge of water purification, bore the brunt of the questioning by the club representatives. A number of individual property owners were also among the 100 persons who packed the south park board room.

Would Cost $21,000,000.

Mr. Gorman explained that the architecture proposed for the plant, which, with the installation of water meters on the south side, would cost $21,138,000, would be similar to that employed at the University of Chicago. It would, he said, make the Jackson park shore line the most beautiful part of the lake front. A large portion of the 50 acres of made land would be landscaped, he said.

"I can buy twice as much land for half as much as you would spend to fill in the lake," said Frank Ayers of the Oakland Business Men's association.

"But I'll concede for the moment that the plant can be built for less on the lake front. What of it? Chicago has plenty of land—we don't have to mess up our lake front."

Mr. Gorman said that city engineers had not been able to find 50 acres of vacant land away from the lake. The possibility of taking over this much of a "blighted area" and tearing down buildings, and the cost thereof, had not been considered seriously, he said.

Objections of Land Owners.

Attorney Charles F. Rathbun, representing a number of owners of real estate near the site of the proposed plant, declared that these men had paid high prices for the advantage of being able to see the lake from their homes. Commercial structures on an island near the shore would spoil the view, he said.

Every foot that the proposed plant would be moved northward would mean a $227 addition to the cost of connecting with the water tunnel at 73d street, Mr. Gorman said. Seven other possible sites along the shore line have been considered, but the cost would range between $2,200,000 and $6,800,000 more than the present estimate, he declared.

Strong objections to the 67th street location have been made by members of the South Shore Country club, which is just south, and of the Jackson Park Yacht club, to the north.

The filter plant would be financed by the public works administration, according to the present plan. The PWA would contribute $5,600,000 as an outright gift and the remainder would be a PWA loan secured by the city's water certificates. Immediate action is not possible, since action by the state legislature is required to authorize the city to issue more than $3,000,000 worth of water certificates in one year.

Mayor Kelly, as president of the park board, was present at the meeting. It was decided that the representatives of the opposing groups should confer with Mr. Gorman in an effort to reach an agreement.

BRITAIN AWARDS CONTRACTS FOR 8 DESTROYERS

LONDON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The admiralty today awarded contracts for eight destroyers to cost $11,250,000 under the normal replacement program of 1933. Like other vessels of the naval replacement program in recent years the construction of the ships has been long delayed.

Still to be awarded are contracts for the two 9,000 ton cruisers and one 5,200 ton cruiser which the admiralty announced its intention to build several weeks ago.

The eight destroyers will each be of 1,375 tons, powered with 36,000 horsepower turbine engines giving a speed of 35½ knots with a capacity for 470 tons of fuel oil. They will carry four 4.7 inch guns and anti-aircraft armament.

ANTI-TAMMANY FORCES GROWING; CURRY IS IN PERIL

McKee Group to Continue Fight.

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The onslaught against Tammany Hall gained strength rapidly today as the news spread through political circles of the move made by the recovery party to form a permanent organization.

That, combined with the defeat yesterday of the Tammany aldermen in the election of a member to fill a Bronx vacancy, has convinced the Democracy that John Curry's days as a leader are numbered.

It now appears he and John H. McCooey, Brooklyn boss, can be thrown out of power as soon as their foes wish it.

Senator Thomas I. Sheridan, elected chairman of the recovery organization last night, issued a statement. He declared he would not seek the leadership of Tammany Hall, but he intended to fight Tammany until the primaries in the autumn.

Predict Blow to Tammany.

Senator Sheridan insists that his associates believe they could whip Tammany today in a primary in many districts, including the 7th, 9th, 10th, 13th, 16th, 21st, 22d, and 23d. He says they have 250 speakers already recruited and that they are going out every night to attack Tammany and Curry at every point within the county.

Before the statement was issued, the leaders of the new movement expressed their satisfaction in the battle yesterday and in the alignment of forces displayed in the election of John S. McKinley of Riverdale as alderman from the 32d Bronx district. On the roll call, 49 voted for McKinley. Only 13 stood under the Tammany banner.

See Defeat of Curry.

This growth of the rebellion indicates that the overthrow of Curry and McCooey is not only possible, but that it will take place at a much earlier date than was expected. It shows conclusively, qualified observers say, that the Curry forces and the McCooey forces in Brooklyn are rapidly falling to pieces. Against them were the forces of the East side, led by the Ahearn organization. This was taken to mean that the uptown leaders are now definitely on the side against Tammany and, more important, have made an open break and are ready for the last desperate battle.

The fact that the Ahearn aldermen and the followers of Albert Marinelli, the county clerk, together with the Dan Finn forces, stood out against Tammany is of prime importance in calculating the ease with which Curry will be overthrown, when the word is passed out.

Called Curry Victories.

Finn's office as sheriff and Marinelli's office were two of the very few jobs that Curry won in the last election. The patronage of the two offices, amounting to about 150 jobs each, forms a large part of the patronage left to Curry, the only power that he has to hold his organization together. If those jobs are gone from his grasp, as the rebellion certainly indicated, he has little strength to wage a fight against his enemies.

CHARGES STONE OFFICIALS SOLD BAD SECURITIES

Assistant United States Attorney Joseph A. Struett, making his opening argument in the trial of five former officials of H. O. Stone & Co., defunct real estate investment concern, charged yesterday that the defendants disposed of $4,500,000 in worthless securities between August, 1929, and May, 1930. The defendants, headed by Henry F. Norcott, president of the Stone company, are on trial before a jury in Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan's court on charges of using the mails to defraud.

Convicted at a previous trial and sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary, the defendants obtained a reversal and new trial in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

"The government will show that the defendants violated the mail fraud laws in disposing of the worthless securities," Attorney Struett said. "In 1929 the depression brought failure to the business, and then these defendants entered a conspiracy to violate the laws to bolster the business.

"They declared that the business showed a profit, that the company was paying dividends, and that the company had $20,000,000 in assets. All of these statements, the government will show, were false, fraudulent, misleading, and contrary to fact."

FOUND DEAD IN HIS ROOM.

Anthony Tolny, 30 years old, a roomer at 4523 South Lafin street, was found dead yesterday in his room, apparently a victim of heart disease.

"BOY! OH BOY!! THERE'S NO YESTERDAY'S TASTE IN THIS COFFEE . . ."

Any woman can make better coffee without changing her favorite brand. Simply "Micro-clean"* the inside of the coffee pot daily—with S.O.S.—and air out. That eliminates all bitter "coffee crust"—all taint of yesterday's coffee. Thousands are adopting this simple plan—with S.O.S.—the magic scouring pad. Try it. See for yourself.

S. O. S. is new—convenient. Soap and pad are all in one. Works three times as fast as old style cleansers. Merely wet edge of pad—rub and rinse. Results are amazing. S.O.S. "Micro-cleans"* and polishes, dirtiest, greasiest aluminum pots and pans, skillets, roasters, soup kettles, even oven doors, drip pans, drain boards, faucets. Keeps them like new. No muss. No bothersome extra soap. No waste. Nothing to go down the drain.

Use S.O.S. for everything. Saves money. One pad often lasts a week. Saves cost of other cleaners, too. Get S.O.S. from your grocer at once. Use half the package at our risk. If not satisfied, return remaining pads and get all your money back. The S.O.S. Company, Chicago.

THE STORE FOR MEN

first for STYLE!

In the year just past there has been a world of new ideas developed in the field of men's clothing. If you've followed The Store for Men's advertising even casually you've received advance news on these ideas first; news on the ideas when many men probably shrugged their shoulders and said, "Just another fad"; news on the ideas when they actually were little more than ideas yet which, before the season was out, developed into some of the smartest things available for your everyday wardrobe.

Way last March we talked about what a big season was ahead for slacks with the odd jacket; you know how that grew. A little later we told you that British striped tab collar shirts would be big in the Fall. You're probably wearing one now. And so on down the line. Plaid suitings, Balmacan coats, drape suits, air-cooled panamas and straw hats, the brown hat with the black band, initialed braces, double-breasted lapels on the single-breasted coat, ventilated shoes, eyelet collar shirts, houndstooth checked overcoats, wide striped ties, bow ties, streamline custom-type shirts, celanese underwear, checked shirts with matching ties rough fabric suits, double-breasted drape dinner jackets, chalk striped suitings,—ad infinitum. But suffice it to say—news of all these things came FIRST from The Store for Men.

University men and young chaps in business have come to accept The Store for Men as authentic in informing them what's what—and what is going to be what. That's the real test of style leadership! And for the next twelve months you can assure yourself that we are going to do our utmost in scooping the world on letting you know in advance what will be high style months later.

Watch these!

Bi-swing back (plaited) coats; shawl collar white dinner jackets for summer; a further growth of the odd jacket and trouser combine; a swerving to color instead of white for summer; bow ties and button down shirts. We'll tell you more later.

CUMMINGS PUTS LEGAL O. K. UPON SEIZURE OF GOLD

Tells Committee Power Is Fundamental.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The constitutionality of President Roosevelt plan to seize all gold in the federal reserve system was pronounced "as clear as a bell" by Attorney General Homer Cummings today.

Mr. Cummings had a few moments previously given a more formal and erudite opinion to members of the senate banking and currency committee behind the locked doors which hid their consideration of the bill designed to give the President the full powers deemed necessary to cut the gold content of the dollar to between 50 and 60 cents and to set up a two billion dollar monetary management fund.

Right of Eminent Domain.

"The monetary gold stock [of the federal reserve system] may be taken by the government in the exercise of its right of eminent domain," the attorney general's opinion declared. "Such power," he went on, "extends to every form of property required for public use."

The section of the bill in question provides that all title of the federal reserve board, the federal reserve banks, and every federal reserve agent in all gold coin and bullion shall pass to the United States, payment being made in devalued gold certificates, and the treasury reaping the profit.

President Roosevelt had received an oral opinion from the attorney general confirming the power of the government to take over all gold as far back as last spring when the country went off the gold standard, it was said today.

Seek to Push Legislation.

Plans to push the monetary legislation through congress, meanwhile, were being whipped into shape in the face of a stubborn, but admittedly hopeless opposition.

Senator Duncan U. Fletcher [Dem., Fla.], chairman of the senate banking committee, announced that the closed hearings would continue and that he did not as yet know when the bill would be ready for presentation to the senate. In addition to the attorney general, Gov. Eugene Black of the federal reserve board, and Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. attended the senate committee's session.

Gov. Black began testimony which he will conclude tomorrow. He was described by Chairman Fletcher as persisting unchanged in his opposition to the seizure of the federal reserve gold and the loss of the profit which will accrue when the devaluation of the dollar is completed. Further witnesses will be heard, Senator Fletcher said.

Committee Chairmen Clash.

In the house, an explosion of jealousy between two committee members injected an element of farce into the serious consideration of the legislation. Piqued because he had first been given the monetary bill to handle and then had it taken away from him by a ruling of Speaker Rainey which sent the bill to the coinage committee of Representative Andrew Somers [Dem., N. Y.], Chairman Henry B. Steagall [Dem., Ala.], of the house banking and currency committee called his committee members into secret session this afternoon.

There, an ancient "rubber," or commodity dollar bill was resurrected and stripped of all but its enacting clauses. The text of the new monetary measure was substituted and Chairman Steagall had the bill introduced and on the house calendar before administration leaders came awake in time to protest.

Stung by such an affront to his dignity, Chairman Somers of the coinage committee made hasty plans to hold a quick hearing tomorrow morning with Secretary Morgenthau as witness and get his own [and identical] version of the measure introduced as speedily as possible.

Glass Not Convinced.

Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], most militant of the bill's opponents, asserted following the attorney general's appearance before the senate committee that the official sanction given by Mr. Cummings had not changed his personal opinion that the measure authorized governmental stealing.

Senator William G. McAdoo [Dem., Cal.], sought anxiously to amend the reports of his outright opposition which were given out yesterday. He had not yet reached a final decision, he said. But his protests were punctured by a gleeful jibe by Senator Glass, who overheard them in passing.

"Now, don't you deny all the things you've been saying to me in private," said Senator Glass and departed chuckling at the California senator's plain discomfiture.

Various Amendments Discussed.

Various amendments to the bill have been discussed but none so far have been put into concrete form and few are given a chance of adoption. The only suggestion meeting with anything like congressional favor is that come supervisory authority be invested in congress or some other body to overlook the actions of the treasury in handling the two billion dollar fund through which it is intended to stabilize the exchange value of the dollar.

HEAD OF PARTIES FOR ROOSEVELT ARRIVES IN CITY

Piloted by Wiley Post, round-the-world flyer, Keith Morgan of New York, national director of the President Roosevelt birthday parties to be held throughout the country on Jan. 30, arrived yesterday at the Chicago airport. The two with J. C. Cusack, Morgan's assistant, were met by several Chicagoans including John Root, chairman of the decoration committee of the Auditorium theater celebration, and Mrs. Ernest R. Graham, head of the box committee.

Mr. Morgan said the birthday party plans are being met with enthusiasm in all parts of the country, and a huge contribution is predicted for the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation for sufferers of infantile paralysis, the President's favorite charity. More than 6,000 parties are planned in New York alone, he said.

PRESIDENT HITS PARTY OFFICERS WHO SELL "DRAG"

Resignations Follow Rapidly.

President, making clear he was thinking of principle and not personalities, said that it is not quite in accord with the spirit of the administration that any individual who holds a high political place such as a national committeeman should earn a livelihood by practicing law, because in a sense he holds himself out as having access to the back door of the administration.

It has been done, the President admitted, but he thought it should not be done.

Asked what he was going to do about it, the President referred his questioners to Mr. Farley within whose province as national chairman would come any remedial or disciplinary action. But when Mr. Farley was reached he declined to discuss the matter.

Learn Jackson Resignation.

The word flew through Washington that the President had walloped the Democratic national committeemen who have come here to represent clients seeking favors from the administration. The reporters raced to find Secretary Jackson of the Democratic national committee, who is reported to have made a fortune since March 4 representing clients having business with the administration.

Between telephone calls from clients that were fairly raining in, Mr. Jackson broke the news that he had already sent his resignation to the chairman of the New Hampshire state committee.

"I was asked personally by President Roosevelt," he said, "to become secretary of the national committee at a critical point in his campaign.

"I have taken no part whatsoever in distribution of patronage. I have declined to represent any client who has had matters that would conflict in any way with the administration's program. I found that the office of secretary was a serious handicap and an embarrassment in representing clients. I submitted my resignation some time ago."

Says He Rebuffed Rosenberg.

Mr. Jackson was extremely indignant at suggestions that he might have used his influence with the administration to get favors for clients. He wanted it understood that he had turned down every such proposition that had been made to him. The late Moe Rosenberg of Chicago wanted to retain him, it seems, to get the indictments for evading income taxes dropped, but Mr. Jackson sternly rebuffed the intermediary.

Mr. Jackson denied also that James L. Bernard was in his employ at the time Public Works Administrator Ickes excluded Bernard from the public works administration for lobbying public works allotments. He said he had fired Bernard prior thereto. It had been supposed that Mr. Jackson was high in the President's favor as he was a guest a few weeks ago at a White House dinner.

Kremer Close to Cummings.

Mr. Kremer is reputed the closest among the Democratic lawyers to Attorney General Cummings. The attorney general and Mrs. Cummings lived at the Kremer house in Spring Valley for a time.

Mr. Kremer's resignation is said to have been the result of getting into the bad graces of Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Rexford Guy Tugwell, chief of the brain trust. Mr. Kremer had some drug concern clients who were against the Tugwell food and drug bill. Dr. Tugwell registered a protest at the White House that reacted powerfully against Mr. Kremer.

ARTHUR MULLEN. O. MAX GARDNER.

MONTANA GOVERNOR MAY FACE EFFORT TO IMPEACH HIM

Helena, Mont., Jan. 17.—(AP)—By six votes the Montana house of representatives today refused to drop its consideration of a proposal to cite Gov. Frank A. Cooney for impeachment.

The vote was against a motion by Albert Besancon, floor leader, to postpone indefinitely consideration of charges against the governor. Previously the house has refused to go into executive session to consider the matter.

The house already has adopted a resolution censuring the governor and secretary of state. The matters involved in the inquiry preceding that vote were contracts awarded for foodstuffs and for repairs of the dome of the state capitol, without calling for bids, and award of the state fire insurance contracts toaling $6,000,000.

K. E. Von Zimmer, an Idaho contractor, was employed last summer to make repairs to the dome of the capitol. The house investigating committee of seven said "the prices charged by Von Zimmer to the state have been increased from 100 to 200 per cent over actual cost."

HARRISON SAYS U. S. WILL STICK TO GOLD BASIS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Senator Harrison, chairman of the senate finance committee, predicted tonight that "there never will be a time when gold will not be the major basis upon which this government will issue currency."

The Mississippi Democrat, who attended the Sunday night conference at the White House at which the decision to devalue the dollar was reached, said "we may add to the base, but gold will never be discarded as one of the bases of currency."

Turning to governmental revenue with which his committee is directly concerned, Harrison spoke of a substantial upswing in business.

"As an illustration of how business is improving," he said, "let me cite the increases of important excise taxes during the last six months over the corresponding six month period of last year.

"Estate tax receipts have increased 190 per cent. Stock transfer tax receipts have increased 43 per cent. Tax receipts on automobiles, trucks, and accessories have increased 184 per cent. Tax receipts on toilet preparations have increased 30 per cent, and tax receipts on tobacco products have increased 2½ per cent."

AUCTION IN EDITH M'CORMICK HOME BRINGS $47,676

Daughter Heavy Bidder on Closing Day.

The furnishings of the home of the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick at 1000 Lake Shore drive, sold at auction Tuesday and yesterday, brought a total of $47,676.50. This was announced at the end of the last session of the sale last night.

Receipts from the bidders on Tuesday were $28,032. Yesterday's buying sent the figure up to the total.

Most prominent of the purchasers yesterday, as on the previous day, was Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard [Muriel McCormick], daughter of the one time "richest woman in Chicago," whose effects were being sold to pay claims against her estate.

Daughter's Bids High.

Through the sale Mrs. Hubbard followed the auctioneers from room to room, indicating her bids with slight gestures and in many instances pushing them to considerable heights when the articles on sale appeared to her particularly desirable.

When the bedroom of Mrs. McCormick was reached, Mrs. Hubbard, not to be denied, bid in everything except a directoire ivory and gold lacquer daybed, which went to Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell. For a directoire love seat in rose damask Mrs. Hubbard paid $935. She also bid in the 11 wall scones in bronze, the Louis XVI. gilded bedstead, the dressing table, the writing table, the overmantel mirror and a Louis Philippe Aubusson carpet. Even the draperies at the window and the carved marble mantelpiece went to her.

Dato Among Bidders.

Among those who competed for the ownership of the handsome personal properties were representatives of John F. Cuneo and, in person, Edward A. Dato, who was for years associated with Mrs. McCormick in ambitious real estate projects.

There was spirited bidding between Mrs. Hubbard and Mr. Cuneo's agents for the furnishings on the first floor. A huge faience table lamp, which antique dealers had regarded as worth much more, was sold to Mr. Cuneo for $105. Other articles, including carved hall chairs, an oak hall settle and table, and antique crimson velvet draperies went mostly to the same bidder.

But in the turquoise guest room Mrs. Hubbard again was dominant. She recalled that this had once been her own room and she purchased the wall lights, an empire sofa, and a small mahogany bedstead. Another of her purchases was a Rolls-Royce brougham, for which she paid $1,800. Altogether, in the afternoon alone, the daughter of Mrs. McCormick expended $4,500, approximately one-third of the amount received at the session.

Even the paneling of the walls of the mansion were offered and sold. The mahogany of the Empire room brought $310. That in the dining room commanded a price of $1,075.

Mr. Dato bought with discrimination and, he said, "mainly for sentimental reasons." Three brass table lamps for $45 an Empire armchair for $45, a Louis XVI. console at $25, and a pair of ebonized armchairs at $50 each fell to him. So did a porcelain vase lamp which he had himself fitted for electricity.

Villa Turicum Open Today.

Today and tomorrow the Villa Turicum at Lake Forest, the 55 room mansion of Mrs. McCormick, will be open to inspection. Its furnishings are to be sold at an auction which will begin at 2 p. m. Saturday.

All the sales are being made at the order of the Chicago Title and Trust company, executor of the estate, and are in charge of the American Art Association - Anderson Galleries and Michael Tauber & Co.

ROBBED ON WAY TO BANK.

Two robbers stopped Charles G. Coyle, a clerk for Dittman & Co., butter and egg dealers at 125 North Union avenue, at Washington boulevard and Union street yesterday and robbed him of $405 which he was taking to a bank.

MAYOR PREPARES TO FIGHT TROOPS AT NEW ORLEANS

Vows He'll Smash Long's Jaw in Challenge.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley today threatened to arm 15,000 citizens of New Orleans and deputize them as special deputies to aid the police in keeping order at the mayoralty election next Tuesday.

The threat came as an answer to the hint by Huey Long, made last night, that he would import state troops to take part in the heated election.

"If Senator Long brings state troops here to steal this election I will arm and swear in 15,000 citizens as special deputies to aid in enforcing order at the polls," the mayor declared.

Offers to Fight Long.

Speaking later at a political rally Mayor Walmsley announced that he intended to "get this crawfish assassin of character and scourge of Louisiana and smash him in the jaw after election, even if he is surrounded by his armed bodyguard."

"This slacker has gotten away with his last raw deal as far as I'm concerned," the mayor declared. "I hereby call on him to meet me any place, any time. He'll get his jaw smashed and the Sands Point black eye will seem only a pimple. Long, who has never been anything but a coward, can't fool the people of this state any longer."

In case Mayor Walmsley fails to catch Huey Long in New Orleans to give him the beating he says he intends to give him, the battle will be staged in the national capital.

Will Follow Him to Capital.

"I intend to make Crawfish Long swallow every derogatory word he has said about me," Mayor Walmsley said tonight in a speech. "If I can't catch him here I'll follow him to Washington as soon as the election is over. As many Washingtonians as may be around will then see me slap his face and make him eat every word he has said about me.

Senator Long could not be reached to find out whether or not he'll accept Mr. Walmsley's challenge. The last seen of him tonight was when he was leaving the Roosevelt hotel surrounded by six bodyguards.

The Long interests received several blows during the day as charges and counter charges marked the sizzling campaign. Assistant Attorney General James O'Connor, a Long henchman, made an unsuccessful attempt to halt the open court investigation into New Orleans voters registrations.

Voters Removed from Rolls.

The motion came on the heels of testimony of court attachés that the names of several hundred voters had been illegally scratched off the registration books after such acts had been prohibited by court injunction. Mr. O'Connor also asked an investigation into the city government headed by Mayor Walmsley.

O'Connor charged that the city administration was in alliance with gamblers, lottery operators and in a corrupt conspiracy to "bleed prostitutes." He charged general maladministration and padding of pay rolls and claimed that Mayor Walmsley and his brothers had drawn sums from now defunct banks for "services they did not render and never intended to render."

Without leaving the bench, Judge Frank T. Echezabal refused the plea and termed it "inchote, inconsiderate, incoherent, ill-considered and an effort to use the court as a political instrument."

Loses Another Move.

The senator, who is backing John Klorer, until this month an engineer for one of his boards, against Mayor Walmsley and Francis Williams in the mayoralty campaign, was defeated earlier in the day when he sought to stop the open court hearing of the padding of registration rolls.

The law provides that the attorney general may supersede a district attorney in the interest of public welfare, and this morning Assistant Attorney General O'Connor called upon District Attorney Stanley and announced he would take over the inquiry.

"Go take a swift jump in the river," Mr. Stanley wrote in reply. "Try and supersede me—the courts are still honest. I'll prosecute graft wherever I find it."

Landlords On Stand.

He proceeded with his hearing, several landlords testifying that they had never heard of or had almost forgotten the persons stated on the rolls to be living in their houses.

Another serious blow at the Long organization came when State Senator Fred Oser, Long's floor leader in the senate and one of those who signed the round robin that saved him from impeachment, announced that he had split with the "Kingfish." Senator Oser declared that "no self-respecting man can live in political slavery under Senator Long."

Marksmen of the police force were stationed around Parish prison tonight to guard the registration books put into the custody of the sheriff by court order yesterday. The report that the National Guard was to be mobilized persisted.

BOMB DAMAGES HEADQUARTERS OF MINERS' UNION

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18 (Thursday). —(AP)—Headquarters of the Progressive Miners' union at nearby Kincaid were damaged by the explosion of a bomb early today.

The blast occurred about 1 o'clock this morning and broke all windows in the building besides causing other damages.

An adjoining hardware store was considerably damaged and five other buildings in the immediate vicinity suffered losses due to shattered windows.

The bombing was the 55th in Kincaid in the last year and a half and the third in the last 24 hours.

MRS. ROOSEVELT ASSAILS WAR AS 'SUICIDE' IN TALK

Addresses Pacifists at Capital Banquet.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—In a speech, delivered more fervently, received more enthusiastically than any she has made since she went to the White House, Eleanor Roosevelt tonight called war suicide, warned that unless we right-about-face we will "deserve to commit suicide," and predicted that unless we change our concept of patriotism, "we most certainly will commit suicide."

She spoke before the banquet of the conference on the cause and cure of war. She was introduced by 75 year old Carrie Chapman Catt, who exulted that, "for the first time in the history of our country we have a woman in the White House who is one of us."

Bringing into the open the whispers of wonderment that "she'd dare to talk against war when her husband is the President," Mrs. Roosevelt revealed that her recent declaration against toy soldiers for children had brought a "violent letter" from a man who dubbed her "preaching pacifism," as "inconsistent if your husband has to call the boys to the colors."

Flays Old Bugaboo.

But she went right on to insist that America must find a substitute for the patriotism of a past age when youth was taught that one's one and only gesture of supreme patriotism was to give up one's life in war.

For a nation, or a generation, or a person to live through the horrors of war, and not to remould conditions so that those horrors be not repeated, is, she declared, a very stupid procedure. It gives an "utter futility" to human experience.

"How deadly stupid we are," she cried in a voice genuinely shaken with emotion. "We live through these terrible things, and then we complacently allow the same causes to put us through the same terrible experiences again. I can't believe we'll go on being so stupid.

"If we do go on, we deserve to commit suicide, and we certainly will."

The path to peace, as she traced it, involves international sacrifice and governmental honesty.

Urges Golden Rule.

"Each nation," she said, "must want to give as well as to get.

"We can have all the world courts and the leagues of nations and the disarmament conferences in the world, but unless we, as nations, tell the truth, we will get nowhere."

Then she made it stronger by declaring:

"No government today, much less all the world, really says what it has in the back of its mind."

The peace crusade is one in which she believes all women could, and should, consistently unite. To the masculine charge that you can't stop war until you change human nature, she had the reply that human nature is already being changed considerably.

The United States, she indicated, has, within recent months, learned a lesson of giving up some things in order to preserve others; she believes the lesson could be taught internationally.

While she recalled that "war is, I believe, less glorious than it was 20 years ago," she also predicted that the fight against it is largely a fight of the coming generation, of our children and our grandchildren.

Sanger Group Meets.

As she was handing over the task of peace to children yet unborn, another group of women—the conference on birth control—meeting at a nearby hotel—was declaring that children yet unborn might cause a war some day. Dr. Ira S. Wile, toastmaster at the banquet of Margaret Sanger's organization, was saying: "If the conference on the cause and cure of war is meeting elsewhere in this city this evening, let it be remembered that here, in this room, is a meeting of even greater significance to the welfare and well being of the nation."

Perhaps he was miffed at Mrs. Catt for her indifference to the message which the pro-birth control ladies had sent to the anti-war ladies earlier in the day. The message declared that war was terrible; pointed out that a basic cause of war was over-population; thought it, therefore, appropriate that the women who didn't want war should indorse the pending congressional bill sponsored by the ladies who don't want uncontrolled population.

FOURTH LARGEST DIAMOND FOUND BY POOR DIGGER

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

PRETORIA, South Africa, Jan. 17, —A pure white flawless diamond, weighing 726 carats, the fourth largest ever discovered, has been found by J. J. Jonker, a poor prospector, at Elandsfontein, three miles from where the 3,025 carat Cullinan diamond was discovered in 1905. It is possible the gem is the missing half of the Cullinan stone.

The discoverer received an offer of $75,000 for the diamond from a syndicate, but refused it because an option to buy it had been sold to Sir Ernest Oppenheimer, head of various South African mining interests.

There is much excitement among diamond miners because a stone weighing 300 carats was found in the same diggings by another prospector a few days ago.

Three Diamonds Larger.

The three diamonds larger than Jonker's find are the Cullinan, which weighed 3,025 carats; the Excelsior, 969½ carats, and the Great Mogul, 787 carats. The largest jewel cut from the Cullinan stone is in the British royal scepter while the rest of the gem is set in the British crown.

Jonker is 62 years old. He has a long beard and wears the traditional digger's garb. This correspondent found him still working his claim. He has been digging for 18 years.

"I have been a poor man all my life and was down on my luck," he said.

Throws Hat in Air.

He has a wife and seven children and intends to work out his claim.

When the stone was found he was in his hut and his son was directing a native at the claim. The native was washing a bucket of gravel when he stopped suddenly and began cleaning a stone. Then, throwing his hat in the air, he shouted, "God, Baas, I found it!"

The son raced to Jonker, who went down on his knees and thanked God for his good fortune.

Gunmen Hold Up Hotel in Woodlawn; Take $225

Two intoxicated robbers, each carrying a pistol, staggered into the lobby of the Midway apartment hotel, 1535 East 60th street, late last night and forced Manager Lawrence F. Nugent to surrender $225 from the hotel safe. They fled after locking Nugent in a closet. The hotel is the home of Clarence Darrow, noted criminal lawyer.

THE TRIBUNE regrets that erroneous information furnished by the City News bureau caused the statement in the issue of Jan. 5 that Stanley Tucker, alleged gasoline thief, appeared before Judge John Gutknecht nine times and received leniency each time before he was sentenced by Judge J. William Brooks. Court records show that Tucker appeared before other judges six times and before Judge Gutknecht once before he was sentenced.

STATE'S WITNESS UNDER ATTACK IN INSURANCE TRIAL

Factor's Name Frequently in Testimony.

Attorneys representing the seven men on trial before a jury in Judge Benjamin Epstein's Criminal court on charges of conspiracy to loot the cash assets of the Security Life Insurance company and its affiliate, the Northern States Life Insurance company, took turns yesterday in trying to discredit the testimony of James H. Benjamin, a leading witness for the state.

The defendants, who include Attorney John H. S. Lee, a member of the law firm of former Senator Charles S. Deneen, and Machir Dorsey, one time wealthy insurance promoter, are charged with putting $1,400,000 in mortgages on a 30 acre tract of industrial land near Waukegan, known as the Manufacturers' Terminal company, and dumping the mortgages in the portfolios of the life insurance companies. The state contends the property was worth only $500,000.

Factor's Name Brought In.

Throughout the session yesterday the name of John Factor, now appearing as a witness in the kidnaping trial of the Touhy gang, was prominently mentioned. Benjamin admitted he had tried to persuade Attorney Lee to abandon the Factor case, but denied he had made any arrangement with Factor.

Attorney Lee represented the British government in its efforts to have Factor extradited to England to face trial on charges of swindling British investors. The defense charges that Lee is a victim of a conspiracy to discredit him because of his work in the Factor case.

The defense attorneys tried to make Benjamin admit that he had tried to mortgage the property himself with a bank and that it was his intention to pocket $600,000 on this deal. He denied the accusation.

$200,000 Claim on Deal.

"Did you claim that Lee owed you $200,000 out of the Waukegan deal?" Defense Attorney John E. Northup asked Benjamin.

"I did and I still do," the witness replied.

Q.—Did you say that Lee was to get a $500,000 fee for securing depositions against Factor from creditors in England? A.—Yes, I said that to Harry Huttig [one of the defendants].

Benjamin then denied he was the author of several cablegrams sent to Lee while the latter was in England working on the extradition action, telling him "to lay off the Factor case."

An argument arose when Benjamin finished his testimony. The defense attorneys wanted him arrested to assure his future presence in case he is needed later in the trial. The request was refused and Benjamin announced that he was going to fly to New York.

Appraiser Is a Witness.

F. J. Waterstat, an official of Coats & Burchard, appraisers, followed Benjamin on the witness stand. He said Dorsey had told him that the insurance department of Kansas would not allow a mortgage on the Waukegan land to be taken into a Kansas life insurance company. He said Dorsey wanted him to testify to the value of the land involved, but he said he could testify only concerning the land as a whole. The tract had been split up in parcels and 13 separate mortgages placed on it.

Judge Epstein had planned to hold a night session to hurry the trial, but at the request of attorneys called off the session. He held court two hours longer than usual, however.

Am I Too Old To Learn?

No. One is never too old to learn.

The researches of Thorndike, the eminent psychologist, indicate that in capacity to learn effectively, to understand, to retain—adults frequently excel those of collegiate age.

Much of the most profitable educational work is accomplished by those of mature years.

Leaders are learners, all their lives long.

Men and women—in their twenties, their thirties, their forties—throng the library, halls and lecture rooms of Northwestern University School of Commerce, on the downtown McKinlock Campus.

Here they come—one, two, or three evenings a week, carrying university courses after their day's work is over. They are preparing themselves effectively for advancement, promotion and larger responsibilities in business.

The ECONOMIC SUN is RISING . . .

Through 78 years of changing business conditions this school has made steady progress in training young men and women for business usefulness and in placing them where they could grow and achieve.

Says the New York News, "Confidence has come back. We hope less for ourselves, more for others. We have come to be our brother's keeper that we may keep ourselves."

So definite is the present demand for practical salable training that our enrollment today is greater than in 1929—our "business" is better. We make this statement . . . not boastfully but significantly . . . as a guide to Mid-Year graduates in preparing for a place in life.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE ICE IN THE ST. LAWRENCE HIGHBALL.

With all the exaggerated claims for St. Lawrence seaway benefits, nobody has yet suggested that it would be possible to keep the channel open during the winter season. Both advocates and opponents agree that it will be closed for a matter of five or six months by ice. Just what this disability will mean to great lakes ports is now being developed by the steamship lines operating from the Atlantic seaboard.

A year ago a line of tramers announced direct service from Chicago and other great lakes ports to European destinations. Another boat line announced weekly freight service to Montreal for transshipment to trans-Atlantic vessels. Although on a small scale, these enterprises have shown what Chicago might expect in the matter of seaway freight rate economies. As might be anticipated, the lines operating from the Atlantic coast became alarmed. They took prompt and decisive action. All Chicago shippers have been notified through bulletins that if they see fit to use these direct or transshipment services for the coming season of navigation on the great lakes they will be penalized by the assessment of higher freight rates on such traffic as they may ship from Atlantic seaboard ports during the five months that the St. Lawrence is closed by ice.

One by one the alleged benefits of the St. Lawrence route are being broken down by practical application, just as the theory of a seven or eight cent per bushel saving on grain vanished when the inland lake lines proved during the last two or three years that they could handle the traffic from the head of the lakes to the seaboard for four cents per bushel and even less.

THE TWILIGHT OF THE MARINES.

Some one calculated the other day that at the present rate of promotion an officer in the marine corps may expect to reach the rank of major general on his 140th birthday. A bill has been introduced in congress to provide for more rapid promotion, the theory being that at 140 an officer might find the rigors of active campaigning somewhat trying.

Friends of the marine corps will question the advisability of bringing up the matter at this time. If congress starts debating about promotion in the corps a congressman may inquire what need there is for the marines now that the government has announced its new Caribbean policy of noninterveption except by permission of the sister republics to the south. As Latin America may be counted upon always to oppose intervention, the marines will never be called upon to land. Therefore the corps might as well be disbanded, because 90 per cent of its business has been in Latin America.

That would be a difficult argument to answer without insulting somebody.

MILWAUKEE CONSIDERS AN INVESTMENT.

Fascinated by the prospect of a 30 per cent remission of its loans from the United States, Milwaukee is moving toward municipal ownership far faster and in advance of any program the socialists have ever considered.

The city council approves a 28 million dollar federal loan to put the city into the business of selling electric power, light and transportation and building and renting houses and flats with a minimum of discussion and paucity of thought that would scarcely be justified if it were $28 instead of 28 million that it proposes to spend.

A resolution to give the people a chance to approve or disapprove was overcome almost without discussion, Ald. Samuel Soref clinching the argument against a referendum with the contribution that it would be folly to submit so complicated an undertaking to the people when the aldermen themselves confess they know so little about it they cannot vote intelligently.

The money is to be spent, 15 million for an electric utility, 6 million for a Negro housing promotion, $4,600,000 for a water filtration plant, and 3 million for good measure, for whatever some one later decides is desirable.

Fortunately this first vote is just to ask the federal government for the loan. Before the enterprises actually start each separate issue must be authorized by the council, and before that is done there should and doubtless will be a great deal more discussion of the propriety and need of the undertakings.

The plan was rushed through the city council not for what it is, an invasion of private business by the city, but in the guise of reemployment, easy government loans and reduced taxes.

The theory that government money can be had as a special lien upon the enterprises it builds and not as an obligation of the city government opens the way of avoidance of the constitutional 5 per cent debt limit. Not all of the legal opinion in the city agrees with the theory, but the nonpartisan aldermen seem to think it may be worth trying.

After this 28 million, the council is going to investigate the desirability of going into the milk business, and there is a pet plan for a municipal bus line being thought of, the last to make money and reduce taxes.

No one has yet suggested entering the patent medicine business which, in private hands, in some instances has made a good deal of profit, and there are other lines from which profits have been made which have not yet been considered, but with the progress now reported there is no assurance that these will not come later.

The doctrine that federal loans put into light plants or apartment houses is not a municipal debt has not been tested in the courts. Before the investment actually is made it should be tested by some taxpayer who believes the authors of the state constitution meant what they said when they wrote:

"No city shall be allowed to become indebted in any manner or for any purpose to an amount exceeding 5 per cent of the value of the taxable property therein."

The Milwaukee case is not unique. It is but one of thousands of cases that in various forms and circumstances illustrate the ramifications of federal spending and its influence upon local policy and morale.

LOUISIANA IN THE U. S. SENATE.

Senator Tom Connally of Texas as chairman of the committee investigating the election of Senator John H. Overton, Huey Long's man, reports to the senate that, yes, Louisiana has no bananas.

The committee finds that the Louisiana machine controlled by Senator Long stuffed ballot boxes, employed dummy candidates, and shook down state employes. It condemns the practices as vicious, abhorrent, and a fraud upon the rights of citizens. The report says that the situation in Louisiana as it relates to elections cannot be defended. The finding is that the political control in Louisiana is as deplorable and distressing as anything which has been uncovered in a long time.

All this appears to be of no consequence since the committee could not pass upon Senator Overton's credentials to his senate seat, there being no contest filed against him. Therefore his right to sit in the senate is not challenged. The Kingfish's right is not challenged and apparently this piece of senatorial ado is much ado about a lot of things which amount to nothing to the senate.

When Senator Overton endeavored to make the best of these findings as related to himself, Senator Connally interrupted to explain that the Louisiana senator must not think that the committee gave him a clean bill of health. The committee went as far as it was authorized, but complete conclusions could not be drawn. No personal fault was proved against Senator Overton and none apparently is attached to Senator Long, but everything is terrible.

Apparently the committee has done a typical bit of senatorial investigation. Its work has been thoroughly unsatisfactory to the people of Louisiana who are struggling against an entrenched and unscrupulous political organization, to get rid of representatives and of state officials for whom they have the greatest contempt. The senate's work has been condemned by the senate's own legal investigator in the case, but from all indications the senators will not avail themselves of their right to determine the qualifications of senate members. That right is without limitation; but the senate will become highly technical whenever tenure is in question. A man may be stopped at the door before he takes his seat, but once he is in there is a clubby feeling that tenure must be sustained. Otherwise, no one would have much guarantee that possession was secure. This does not apply so much to the right of a state to have representation as it does to the right of the individual to have possession.

THE BRITISH-DUTCH ACCORD.

An interesting dispatch to THE TRIBUNE by Ann Sohers House from Brussels states authoritatively that a secret naval treaty gives the Dutch East Indies the protection of the British fleet. The recognized danger to Dutch possessions in the East Indies is Japan, and the reason is chiefly oil.

The days when the English and the Dutch contended for control of the sea and the possession of empire are gone. The Dutch are prosperous and their Indian possessions are rich. But these possessions are insecure because the Dutch navy has ceased to exist.

Japanese industrialism is in a high pressure competitive conflict with British and other industrialism wherever Japanese products, sweated out of cheaply paid labor at home, can be carried. Part of this competition hits the British in India. Japan gets many raw materials from the Dutch East Indies, including all important oil. The Japanese fleet, and the Japanese army as well, back up Japanese trade. And the fleet, although not relying exclusively on oil, needs it and gets it from Borneo in large part. Possession of the Dutch East Indies might mean everything to Japan. It might also be a catastrophe to the British empire; therefore the Dutch East Indies are put under the protection of Singapore.

Editorial of the Day

"IMPROVING" THE DRIVE.

(Grand Rapids Press.)

Considerable concern has been voiced recently at Harbor Springs lest the famous Scenic Shore drive, leading from Harbor Springs to Cross Village, is to suffer "improvement" that will amount to despoliation at the hands of the state highway department, which took over the road for maintenance as a trunkline highway Jan. 1.

The Shore drive is without question one of Michigan's most beautiful roads. Winding through virgin timber and affording frequent glimpses of the wide gray plain of Lake Michigan, it offers scenic attractions hardly equaled by any other highway in the lower peninsula. To straighten and "improve" this road by cutting back the forest that embraces it for miles on either side would be little short of disastrous to its natural value.

The recent statement of the state highway department that only erosion control will be undertaken at this time is welcome, not only to residents of that region but to lovers of Michigan's outdoor beauty spots in every section of the state.

Even that statement and the assurance that the beauty of the road will not be harmed do not allay the necessity for keeping a watchful eye on the "improvements" as they are made, however. There is no absolute standard of roadside beauty. What the state highway department may not consider harmful may be decidedly undesirable from the viewpoint of those who wish to preserve the forest charm of this unique streich of road.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the gaips fall where they may.

THE REPUBLICANS won the election in Vermont Tuesday, getting both a senatorial seat and one in the house. After this people ought to stop clamoring for a Republican to be stuffed and hung up in the Smithsonian Institution so future generations can know what one looked like.

ONE GOOD WAY to cut taxes, according to the experts who have studied the subject, would be to abolish duplication of functions as found in "twin cities." It might be a way of saving money, but a civil war between St. Paul and Minneapolis would not only cost money but blood. Oil and water, the east and the west, night and day, and twin cities are among those things that can never be united.

FAY WEBB VALLEE, w. k. cinema queen, says in her suit against Rudy Vallee, c. w. k. crooner, that she requires $7,450 a month to live on. She just can't worry along without five servants, a butler, cook, chef, chauffeur, and personal maid. Nor can she keep the wolf from the door on less than two thousand dollars a month for clothes and one hundred and fifty dollars a month for a masseuse. Well, until the depression is entirely over, couldn't Fay do a little pinching? Fay, I'll tell you how I'm managing. It's hard to feel the grind of poverty, but one must put one's pride in one's pocket, mustn't one? I made the butler act as chef and the chauffeur doubles as cook. This was very galling to both of them, but after some argument (which still continues) I managed to have my own way (in a manner of speaking). Of course, I haven't the problem of a personal maid or a masseuse to consider, and my secretary washes the car and peels the potatoes. We must all remember that the only gold we've got left is in our back teeth and govern ourselves accordingly. And again, Fay, bear well in mind the old adage, "God help the rich; the poor can get jobs in the CWA."

SILENT GALLSTONES.

THE title of this article raises some questions. Can any gallstone talk? If one gallstone can talk, how can any be silent? If gallstones can and do talk, and we know them by their talk, how can we know silent gallstones? Which gallstones are silent?

To begin with about the most prevalent malady is gallstones. It has been said that 10 per cent of all people 40 years of age and over have gallstones. Probably the figure is high, but that does not disturb the fact that the ailment is most prevalent.

It is said that almost all fat, indolent women over 40 years of age have them. There is no merit in picking on women. The disorder is prevalent enough in men.

It is true that the aggregate number of colds in a year suffered by 100 million persons exceeds the number of cases of gallstones. A cold, however, is gone in two weeks, while gallstones hang on for a lifetime. Therefore, if you were to sample the entire population on a given date and if you got to the bottom facts you would find more persons with gallstones than you would with colds.

A fair proportion of the gallstones speak. They speak in terms of dyspepsia, sour stomach, water-brash, slow digestion, belching, night attacks of indigestion. Some speak in terms of pain, gall-bladder colic, and local soreness and tenderness. Some speak in terms of jaundice. But as a rule gallstones talk by proxy. The engineer might say that their speech requires instrumentation. They can talk only through the microphone or the loud speaker. Most of their talking is through the stomach. A gallstone scratches the inside of the gall bladder, but the yell we hear comes from the stomach. The man has gas on his stomach.

If there is gallstone colic the voice comes to us more directly, but in gallstone colic there is generally vomiting and that comes from the stomach. The talking is both direct and over the phone.

As a rule the talk starts up only when the stone moves. As long as it lies still no scratching of the gall bladder wall occurs and there is no talk.

Large gallstones are apt to remain quiet and small ones to push around. Little ones try to escape from the gall bladder down the bile ducts. That is the chief cause of colic. Large ones are content to stay in the gall bladder. Rough stones are apt to cause pain; smooth ones are less apt to do so. If there is but one large stone it is apt to be smooth. If there are many they are apt to be scratchy.

Even when gallstones are restless they move only a small part of the time. Most of the time they are still—and silent.

For all of these reasons gallstones are usually silent. Some never cause symptoms and some cause them only at rare intervals. Some are quiet enough until the host is guilty of some indiscretion, such as eating improperly, drinking, riding horseback, or jolting in some other way, becoming constipated, or taking a purgative. In some way we prod the animals and the tiger growls or the lion roars.

If we have had gallstones with symptoms and the belching or other speech stops, even permanently, it does not follow that we are cured. The stones have merely become silent.

JUST INVESTIGATE.

Mrs. A. A. writes: Is pallor anything to worry about in a 15 year old boy who is 6 feet 1 inch and 160 pounds in weight?

REPLY.

It is something to investigate but not to worry about. Rapidly growing children often develop pallor. It is frequently associated with anemia and sometimes with heart disease, rheumatism, St. Vitus dance, Bright's disease, or chronic fatigue. It may mean nothing more than rapid growth and it may call for nothing more than rest, regular habits especially sleeping habits. Sometimes it calls for more food. If it is not associated with anemia or some of the disorders referred to, rest, regularity, and food are about all that is necessary.

From Across the Sea

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO.—Considerable apprehension regarding the future of silk, the backbone of Japan's commercial, finance, and the farmers' existence, is being expressed in all quarters here. The situation is so serious that a temporary nation wide suspension of the reeling mills is considered urgently necessary.

From $2.32 per pound in July, silk prices slumped to $1.67 early in December. Meanwhile, the dollar has slumped on the international exchange and whereas, during the time silk was quoted at around $2.32 a pound the yen was worth only 21 cents, today with silk prices down to $1.07 the dollar also is down to 31 cents to the yen.

What this means to the farmers of Japan will readily be seen when it is stated that they are at present in a state bordering on panic.

But to add to their woes Japan is faced with overproduction again this season. Estimates show that the end of May may see a surplus of about 100,000 bales carried forward partly in the form of raw silk and partly in cocoons. It is, therefore, a question whether a good number of reelers will be able to survive the present crisis.

While the government contends that the farmers made more money than last year because of the higher prices earlier in the season, this is only theoretically true and there is no doubt from a practical standpoint that the farmer is in a very sorry plight.

When cocoon prices were high in the spring the farmers quickly got rid of the cash they received by paying off a portion of their debts, by buying much needed fertilizer, clothing and food. In this way the farmer is now virtually penniless again.

Later on prices were not so remunerative. A good many sales were made against part payment, and with the filatures registering heavy losses and having no money themselves, it is quite natural that the farmers will not receive the balance.

There is, accordingly, little doubt that the government is facing a serious situation. There is no special fund available this year, as was the case a few years ago, and in addition to this the government is still holding 80,000 bales of raw silk, deteriorated to a certain extent by now.

HORSES ON THE FARM.

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 14.—I don't know if a Canadian farmer has any standing in Chicago, but I've read sevral statements made by this man Wayne Dinsmore of the Horse association and I got to write this letter whether you ever print it or not.

Dinsmore has a job to hold and I don't blame him for making any statement he can get by with, but he mustn't think he is fooling very many dirt farmers who keep any track of their costs. He may be a mighty convincing after dinner speaker, but I bet he don't get up at 4 a. m. every morning to play chambermaid to 10 or 12 big, hungry horses. I did it for thirty years, but now that I have tried something different I can tell you I never will go back to the old way.

Farming with horses means hard, messy, smelly work morning, noon, and night. Every morning, every noon, and every night, whether you are working in the field or not, horses got to eat and be cared for every day, Sundays and holidays included, even if they don't do a tap. No holidays in the barn yard, and the horses never read the Lord's day act.

Dinsmore does not tell all the facts. He talks like horses are all the animals on the farm. Government figures show that they never did amount to more than 10 per cent of the total. There are just as many cows, pigs, sheep, and chickens as ever and in many cases more. They make up the other 90 per cent, and I never heard of any law to prevent a man from adding a few extra to eat up part of that dreadful "surplus."

My horses never worked more than a third of the time. I worked for them all the time. At the end of a long day's plowing in the field, trying to guide four or five big mares and geldings through the dust, I was ready for supper and bed—but no—I had to unhitch, unharness, water, feed, and bed down for the night before I got a bite for myself. Then if it wasn't too dark I could look out over the field and see where I had plowed pretty near 5 acres. Today I plow 15 acres with my tractor, don't work a bit hard, and at night I shut off the power and go to the house.

If Mr. Dinsmore thinks he can scare me into going back to cleaning stables and doctoring spavins he better think again. I'm not afraid of the big, bad wolf. HERBERT THOMPSON.

SUGGESTION FOR THE FAIR.

Lacon, Ill., Jan. 11.—As a frequent visitor last summer at A Century of Progress I am intensely interested in our new 1934 Fair and especially the proposed foreign villages.

May I suggest erecting a mammoth old-fashioned Dutch windmill, with the four sails illuminated at night by the Dutch national colors? This mill built by the side of an artificial canal with plenty of storks and tulips around. Plan for the first floor of the windmill to be a Dutch restaurant, adhering strictly to only Dutch food. I believe you can get some valuable ideas from Orange City, Ia., a typical Dutch (Holland) town.

Of course the waitresses would be dressed in the dress of the rural Hollander. LUCY M. HUTCHINS.

LIQUOR.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—With repeal of the 18th amendment those who guide the destiny of our city immediately pictured a tremendous increase in revenue through the licensing of many small stores which would dispense liquor. At the same time many men with limited amounts of capital to invest decided to enter the liquor business to provide a living for themselves and their families. Many small stores were rented, fixtures were purchased and the outlook was bright.

What is happening to the liquor business? Department stores are using it as a leader to bring people to their stores. Drug stores display it prominently. If this condition continues the small merchant will be driven out of the picture and one of the chief reasons for repeal, that of providing additional revenue, will be gone. Stores will be vacated and real estate will suffer. MILTON CLAMAGE.

WHERE CROWS HANG OUT.

Maywood, Ill., Jan. 12.—Please tell Bob Becker that the place where crows hang out is not called a roost; it is called a rookery. Did he never read "David Copperfield"? ERNEST B. FULLER.

CHILD LABOR.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—I have been reading about the several million children that have been relieved from labor under the New Deal. Turning to the 1930 census reports I find that 673,000 children under 16 were gainfully employed. Of these 470,000 were on farms, 51,000 in domestic work, and 17,000 doing clerical work. In the mechanical and manufacturing fields there were 69,000. In the much discussed textile industry only 236 children of less than 16 years old were found. Is it possible that there has been a bit of propagandizing going on? They had me believing that young girls and boys were being practically kidnaped by the millions to put them to work in cotton mills. EX-DEMOCRAT.

PROMISSORY NOTE.

Berwyn, Ill., Jan. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Two years ago I borrowed $100 from a lady and signed a note. 1. The money was not given to me. The woman where I lived at the time received it and spent it on herself. I bought on time the article which I wanted the money for. 2. Later I gave the woman $100 to give to the lady I borrowed from. I thought her paid and forgot all about it. Now the lady wants to collect from me. She has the note I signed. 3. Do I have to pay again? 4. Can she sue me? 5. There are people who know I never got the money. M. A.

1. Your rights depend largely on whether this was done without your consent.
2. The proper way to pay a promissory note is to turn the money over to the person who is in physical possession of the note.
3 and 4. Yes, as far as the facts stated are concerned.
5. This alone is not necessarily a defense. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

COME ACROSS OR ELSE—

WILKERSON WILL RULE ON TRANSIT BOND INTEREST

Fisher to Make Report to Court Today.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson is expected to announce today whether he will authorize the payment of $2,000,000 in interest due Feb. 1, on surface lines first mortgage bonds having a total face value of $75,626,250.

Payment of the interest will depend upon a report to be made by Attorney Walter L. Fisher, who was appointed by the court to work out a financial reorganization plan for the merger of the surface and elevated lines. At a previous hearing Judge Wilkerson indicated the interest would not be paid unless the bondholders agreed on consolidation and also unless the city council granted a six months' extension plan of the Jan. 31 deadline for acceptance by the traction companies of the 1930 unification franchise.

Grants Extension for 30 Days.

On Tuesday the city council deferred action on the request for a six months' extension but granted an extension for thirty days during which the local transportation committee of the council will hold a series of hearings to learn the attitude of the public on the transit problem. At the meeting Tuesday several groups of citizens urged that the ordinance be allowed to lapse in favor of public ownership of the utilities.

Attorneys Harry P. Weber and James M. Sheean, representing the receivers, will appear before Judge Wilkerson today to urge the payment of the interest in view of the virtual agreement among the transit bondholders on a consolidation plan.

It was learned that they, as well as Judge Wilkerson, have received a number of letters requesting the payment of the interest, many of them written by small investors who own traction bonds. The letters state that the investors are in need of the money. The bonds bear 5 per cent interest which has been paid regularly thus far although the car lines are in receiverships.

Two Points of Controversy.

Two points of controversy yet to be settled between the senior security holders of the two systems may delay the interest payment order. One is the allocation of the voting trust power between the common stock equity interests of both surface and elevated groups. The other is the method of payment of a delinquent rapid transit power bill of almost $1,000,000.

The importance of the voting trust lies in the fact that its five members will name the directors who will choose the operating officers of the unified transit system. There is dispute as to who will name three of the five members. Under the Illinois statutes each share of common stock has one vote. In the new setup 97 per cent of $46,301,646 worth of class B common stock was accorded to the elevated and 85 per cent of $32,139,404 worth of class A common stock to the surface lines, $100 to be the stated value of each share.

This tentative arrangement was supposedly agreed upon two weeks ago. The allocation would give 63½ per cent of the voting power to the Rapid Transit equity interests and 36½ per cent to the surface lines equity holders. As part of the compromise the surface lines investors would be allowed to name three members of the voting trust and the Rapid Transit interests two.

Want Stock Value Reduced.

Now the street railway common stock interests are said to be fearful that they will lose control of the management should the voting trust be terminated. Therefore they are demanding that the stated value of the class A stock, of which they hold 85 per cent, be reduced from $100 to $25, thus quadrupling the number of shares and consequently the number of votes. This would give 63½ per cent to surface lines equity holders and 36½ to the rapid transit.

The Commonwealth Subsidiary corporation, which is owned by the Commonwealth Edison company, owns all of the adjustment debenture bonds and part of the common stock of the "L" system. It is said that the subsidiary invested $20,000,000 in the elevated system a few years ago to keep it in operation.

The delinquent power bill is owed to the Edison company. Because it was incurred before the lines went into receivership, there is a dispute over whether it is a preferred claim, and how it shall be paid.

10 ILLINOIS PWA PROJECTS UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Take Fourth of Funds Allotted to State.

About 10 of the 75 Illinois projects approved by the President for public works loans are actually under construction, and the total allotment for these projects is about $15,000,000, or slightly less than one-fourth of the total of $61,541,905 for all of the projects approved.

This was disclosed yesterday by Joshua D'Esposito, engineer for the public works administration in Illinois, in commenting on a dispatch from Washington revealing that only 12 cents on the dollar of the 3 billion 300 million PWA fund, all of which has been allocated, has actually been spent. There were no estimates on the amount of PWA money that has actually been spent in Illinois, but it was said to be small.

On Progress in Illinois.

Mr. D'Esposito said that the Illinois administration could not be criticized for delay on the showing it has made in comparison with other states. Illinois' approved projects, totaling $61,541,905, are second only to New York, with $145,000,000, more than $100,000,000 of which was allocated for three projects. Furthermore, he said, many projects in Illinois are in the stage where actual construction is almost ready and within two months the great majority of them will be underway.

"Among the projects which we hope to get under way within the next two months are the outer drive bridge, a $7,000,000 job, and additional sanitary projects totaling at least $12,000,000," said Mr. D'Esposito. "Projects totaling $3,000,000 are already under way on the sanitary district." [A total of more than $40,000,000 has been allotted to the sanitary district.]

Other projects on which work is now being done include the Cook county nurses' home, $2,000,000; Chicago schools, totaling $5,000,000; the Mantino state hospital, $1,500,000, and the Springfield water works and related projects, $1,500,000.

Seek to Speed Up Work.

It was learned yesterday that in its efforts to speed up the spending of PWA money and put men to work, the Washington administration has assigned William H. Noble to the Chicago regional office, which represents Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio, Indiana, and Michigan, as a special "expediter."

Mr. Noble said his job was to push along the jobs as rapidly as possible, to assist in straightening out kinks in applications and to find out why some applicants do not reply when the government requests additional data in connection with the application.

PWA officials explained that the funds at their disposal cannot be doled out solely for employment purposes, as the civil works administration fund is dispensed, for all projects receiving PWA funds must be justified financially, as well as socially, and the government must have adequate security for its loans. It was also stated that Illinois got a late start, in September, due to the fact that little interest was shown in public works at first, the municipal officials fearing that they would boost taxes.

After an application is made, assuming it is made in the proper form and does not have to be returned, it must be studied carefully by the engineers and a detailed report made to Washington. These reports may be more than 50 pages long, and Mr. D'Esposito has forwarded 205 of them to Washington.

There they must be studied by the engineering, the legal and the financial staffs, approved by Secretary of Interior Ickes and signed by the President, after which a loan agreement is drawn up and approved. Then the money is paid out, bids are asked and contracts let, all under the supervision of the PWA engineers.

GARBO AND DIRECTOR BACK AT HOLLYWOOD DENYING A WEDDING

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Greta Garbo and Rouben Mamoulian were back in Hollywood today, the latter vowing they had not been married.

The Swedish actress, whose romances, if any, have been well shielded from the public eye, said nothing, as usual, and went into seclusion.

Mamoulian, young director from Tiflis, who was her companion on a five day trip through Arizona, laughed and said:

"Just a little vacation trip. There seems to have been quite a stir, doesn't there?"

They were not married; he was certain about that. There were no plans for a marriage in connection with the trip, he said.

Then he added that if there should be a marriage in which he was a principal there would be no secret about it.

STREET RAILWAY TO SHARE PROFIT WITH EMPLOYES

2,800 Workers Accept Officials' Plan.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—By an overwhelming vote, employés of the Market Street Railway company accepted the utility's offer to place them on a profit-sharing basis for a three-year period.

The plan was offered to the men early last month by President Samuel Kahn at a moment when they were considering a petition for higher wages. Under its provisions, the company's employés, totaling approximately 2,800 men, enter the class of stock holders without investment. For the next three years they will receive 55 per cent of the utility's net profits and the remaining 45 per cent will go to stockholders.

Payment is to be made in the form of cash dividends on stock and will be distributed at least twice a year.

Acceptance of the profit-sharing plan was announced following an official count by a committee of employés in the presence of George Sawyer, the president of the employés cooperative association and after 2,538 of the 2,800 trolley workers had appeared at special polling places.

"When the plan was first broached," Sawyer said "I was confident it would be accepted by the men, for it is something entirely new as a means of eliminating contention between capital and labor."

"Under straight wage agreements, employés share losses with stockholders when earnings are poor," said President Kahn, "but they do not always share profits when earnings are good. Under the plan accepted by the men they will share in the profits just as though they owned stock. But they are not asked to share stockholders' liability for losses."

FIND MICHIGAN AV. LINK BRIDGE NEEDS REPAIRS

Concrete Casing Breaking Off Superstructure.

A survey of the $16,000,000 Michigan avenue link bridge and viaduct, now 12 years old, has just been completed by city engineers at the order of Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt with a view to renovating the north branch of the lower level. Mr. Hewitt said that money would have to be found for the work. He is not certain whether PWA funds can be obtained.

The superstructure of steel columns, girders, floor beams, and sidewalk beams has taken on a shabby appearance due to the concrete casing breaking off in many places, according to Loran D. Gayton, assistant city engineer. Large pieces have fallen away from the terra cotta inclosures on the steel columns at street intersections.

Fails to Protect Steel.

Although the purpose in plastering the steelwork with concrete, which was done at considerable expense, was to protect it from rust, examination shows this has not been achieved. Wherever the concrete coating has broken away a thick scale of rust was found on the steel underneath. Thus the oxidation has continued in spite of the concrete coating.

While the strength of the viaduct structure is in the steel and not the concrete, pieces of the latter material are likely to fall into the street below, endangering motorists and pedestrians.

Hampered by lack of funds, the city engineers have in the past removed the supposedly useless concrete only when it appeared to be about to fall. The steelwork is then scraped clean and painted with white lead to prevent rusting. Over a period of several years about 30 per cent of the casing has thus been removed.

Moisture Splits Concrete.

It was proposed yesterday that all of the remaining concrete be taken off and the steel protected without waiting for the elements to destroy the casing. This would improve the appearance, it was said. Engineers were instructed to obtain a preliminary estimate of the cost.

Engineers said that minute cracks first appear in the concrete. These fill with moisture, which splits the concrete when it freezes, they said. Apparently the same cause is behind the breaking of the terra cotta, although the vibration due to heavy traffic may also play a part.

POOLROOM WINDOW SMASHED.

Investigating a reported shooting in a poolroom at 5719 Archer avenue yesterday, Chicago Lawn police discovered that a front window in the place had been smashed by a brick.

OUR PROBLEMS ARE PUT UP TO BEN FRANKLIN

Club Is Told What Sage Might Say.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Men whose parents, half a century ago and more, named them for Benjamin Franklin met at the Union League club yesterday afternoon to celebrate Franklin's two hundred and twenty-eighth birthday.

It was a strange, almost an eerie meeting, with more of heart searching than of jubilee in it. For venerable Franklin seemed to be standing at the head of the long, flower decked table asking questions about the state of the Union and of American business and then gravely, gently, sometimes whimsically, answering the question, "What shall we do to be saved?"

Many Questions Presented.

All along the table big men of finance, of the church, of education and of science put questions about their troubles to the venerable sage, dead now these one hundred and forty-four years, and their approach to him was so intimate and so trustful that the keynote of the commemoration was, "Now, Uncle Ben, what would you do about this?"

They asked him about the wisdom of overriding any provision of the constitution because we are "in an emergency," about tampering with the currency, about banking, about freedom of the press, and about a dozen other problems that are shaking and vexing the nation.

Benjamin Franklin J. Odell, Chicago lawyer and student for many a year of Franklin's writings, was the spokesman—the medium, as it were, between Uncle Ben and the bearers of his name.

How About Constitution?

"You ask our uncle," said Mr. Odell, "whether we are warranted in suspending the operation of a provision of the constitution because we are 'in an emergency.' Franklin replies, 'In an emergency! Why, that's the very time you need a constitution! The constitution was born in an emergency. It has a balancing power for the people that makes its operations more beneficent in an emergency than at any other time.'

"You ask him about banking and he says he wishes you would clear your minds of cant and make believe by not using the kind words 'frozen assets' instead of 'water evaporation.' He tells you bankers to be bankers instead of dabblers in everything from skyscrapers to speculation.

"He bids you study precedents and he informs you that Canada has a banking system which for fifty years has been no menace to depositors, and that England, by observing basic principles, has avoided bank troubles for over a century.

What About the Press?

"You ask him—again on the grounds that we are confronted with an emergency—about restricting the freedom of the press and he replies, 'I am shocked by the suggestion, for, my children, be assured that the next step after losing the liberty of the press is losing liberty of speech.'"

Now the banquet room in the Union League club was very still. Uncle's admonitions were singing in. Men as important in this community as Benjamin Franklin Affleck, founder eleven years ago of this Franklin society whose membership now is nation wide, and Benjamin Franklin Buck, and the Rev. Benjamin Franklin Root, and dozens of other "B. F.'s" were giving close heed.

And "the medium," Benjamin Franklin Odell, was mincing no words for their consumption. He gave them their uncle's gruel straight.

Two Ways to Happiness.

"You ask Franklin," said Mr. Odell, "about the advisability of trying to obtain temporary relief in a crisis by overriding fundamentals of right conduct and sane government, and he replies—his own words—'They that can give up essential liberty to obtain a little temporary safety deserve neither liberty nor safety.'

"And when we run to Franklin with our troubles—as well we may do—that great man will, I am confident, say to us, 'We, too, had dark days. Your condition is not worse than ours was—perhaps not so bad. For when we were fighting a war on one front we had the fear of invasion by Indians on another. In peace and war we had difficulties of organization caused by petty jealousies. Compared with you, we were utterly dependent in matters of transportation, communication and creature comforts. We had few schools, fewer newspapers, and almost no institutions of higher learning.'

"Franklin would tell us, and does tell us, that there are two ways of attaining happiness. One is to diminish our wants. The other is to increase our means. 'Either,' he said, 'will do. The result is the same.'

Progress Follows Failures.

"Above all, Benjamin Franklin would say to us, as, in effect, he constantly said to his colleagues in nation building, 'Do not let your pitfalls discourage you. Understand them. Failures have their place in the world. Success alone does not make progress. The understanding and the overcoming of failures—that is the effort which makes for progress. Opposition and disappointment feed the sinews of progress.'

"Franklin asks us searching questions when we submit to him our troubles and our experiments. I hear him asking, 'Is it the part of government to be in business? Is there any assurance that, the business man having failed, government is going to do any better? On the contrary, are you not likely to have a total of the business man's failures plus the government's failures?

"And when we tell him of our New Deal, our professors, our NRA, and our other alphabetical expedients, I can hear him saying that we had better watch our A B Cs—the fundamentals—lest we lose our B V Ds. He would say we are leaving words behind us and resorting to letters. He would, as the rock bottom fundamental, say, as he did, 'Save in youth for old age,' and he would ask us, 'Have you, you who tell me that you fear stage money, forgotten that all through the ages the gravity of economics has been the law of supply and demand, a principle that is firm and kind when obeyed, but cruel and punishing when disobeyed.'

The Way Fools Learn.

"And, gentleman, in parting with us for another year, I fear our Uncle Benjamin may say, 'Experience is a dear school, but fools will learn in no other. You have not profited by the example of your forefathers. You can do that. It is in the record. But probably you won't.'"

A man who was not named for Benjamin Franklin but who was thoroughly in the spirit of the birthday party also addressed the celebrants. He was Thomas J. Norton, former counsel for the Sante Fe railroad and author of "The Constitution of the United States—Its Sources and Its Application."

Mr. Norton said that the constitution which Franklin helped write has been a pattern for governments since that time and that the constitutions of Canada, Australia, Argentina, and Brazil are modeled on ours. "Other people," he added, "have a better opinion of it than some of our people at home do—especially some of our teachers. You can get anything into our schools except the constitution of the United States, and I think I first learned the meaning of inertia when I tried to forward efforts to have the constitution taught in the common schools."

Recalls Washington's Warning.

The speaker begged his hearers to heed Washington's warning against any "insidious approaches" against the structure of the constitution, such approaches, because they are insidious, being of more peril, in his opinion, than bold ones would be. Insidious approaches would catch the people napping.

Another birthday address was a speech over the radio by Benjamin Franklin Bellis, president of the Chicago College of Commerce, on "If Franklin Were an Editor Today."

The Old Time Printers' association decorated the Lincoln park statue of Franklin which the late Joseph Medill of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE presented to his fellow townsmen many years ago. At the ceremony in the park the speaker was William H. Sleepeck, president of the Master Printers' Federation of Chicago and past president of the Old Time Printers' association.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 17.—(AP)—George Campbell Peery of Tazewell today became the fifteenth governor of Virginia. The oath was administered by Chief Justice Preston W. Campbell and Gov. Peery immediately launched into an inaugural address advocating a million dollars a year more for public schools than recommended by Gov. Pollard.

ITALY AIMS TRADE TAXES AT FRANCE; PERILS U. S. GOODS

One List of Products Is Shut Out.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 17.—American commercial authorities today studied carefully two ministerial decrees just promulgated which greatly augment the import license taxes on a large list of products which may be imported into Italy and which prohibit the import of another list of products.

These new trade restrictions were levied mostly in response to the French government's reduction of its trade quotas under which Italian agricultural products are badly hit, it is understood. American authorities are seeking to determine the extent to which American commerce may be affected.

List of Products.

Commodities hit by the increased import license tax are as follows: Fresh peaches, which are now to be taxed 200 lire a quintal [the lira is worth 8.4 cents; a quintal is 220 pounds]; cotton thread, 600 lire a quintal; woolen cloth, 2,000 lire a quintal; tools and implements, 300 lire a quintal; glass and crystal utensils, 150 a quintal; wooden furniture, 200 a quintal; perfumes, 1,500 a quintal; soap, 200 a quintal; hides and furs, from 100 to 1,000 a quintal; paper and pasteboard, 120 a quintal; artificial flowers, 50 a quintal; dolls, 1,000 a quintal; women's hats, 50 lire apiece.

This list strikes especially at those products now coming into Italy from France and together with the new French quotas it seems certain that the volume of trade between the two countries is to be greatly reduced. These new quotas are also applicable to imports permitted before the present decree.

Bars Farm Machinery.

The second new import decree adds the following products to the list of those the importation of which is forbidden entirely: fresh olives, dyes of all kinds, linen thread, linen cloth, agricultural machinery, paper making machinery, bookbinding machinery, nitric acid, carpets, felt hats, combs, yeast and nonoleaginous seeds.

It could not be learned to what extent this latter decree might affect, for instance, American agricultural machinery exporters, and it is not altogether clear yet whether the prohibition of imports of this list of commodities is absolute or whether it is meant for bargaining purposes in order to arrange later for contingent quotas on a strictly "quid pro quo" basis.

In any event, while the new decrees list these products as forbidden imports, they also speak of enlarging the list of commodities subject to "contingenting" in the cases of those countries which fix quotas for their imports of Italian products.

The press comments tonight on the new decrees indicate that they are especially aimed as a retort to France and blame is laid on the latter for initiating new barriers to trade.

Ends Franco-German Treaty.

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—France today gave notice of her cancellation of the Franco-German trade agreement as of next Friday on which day German restrictions on French imports go into effect as a retaliation for French restrictions.

Since the treaty provides for a three months notice, it will not expire until April 20. The governments have agreed to negotiate a new treaty during the coming weeks. The import restrictions affect mostly French flowers, vegetables, half-finished cotton goods and silk materials.

Ex-Crown Prince of Germany Runs Afoul Nazi Displeasure

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—Former Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm aroused the ire of Der Deutsche, organ of the German labor front, today when the manager of one of his estates protested against plans for the improvement of the Sprotte-Bruch, a swampy district, part of which belongs to the prince's hunting estate at Primkenau. The manager said the value of the hunting privileges would pe greatly reduced by the draining of the land and settling of 150 farmers on it. The former kaiser spent much of his boyhood on the estate.

Der Deutsche said the improvements will provide jobs for 5,000 labor volunteers for several years and increase the value of the soil by at least $500,000.

Calls Protest a "Scandal."

"There is no word in the German language strong enough to characterize the reaction of feudalism which still seems to exist in parts of Silesia," storms Der Deutsche. "It is certain authorities will disregard this objection, which borders on scandal. But it is significant and deserves to be pilloried openly that today there still exist people, and in a crown princely administration at that, who dare to object to forsake their hunting grounds and their profits to a project able to provide 5,000 jobs and 150 peasant homes."

Other members of the royal family, however, were cheered in Berlin today. They were the former Crown Princess Cecile and former Kaiser Wilhelm's daughter, Victoria Louise. They attended a meeting of Protestant women, called to back up the Hitler program on women workers. The assembly sent a telegram to Minister of Interior Frick assuring him that German women are ready for "motherly service, for which they will bear all sacrifices and dare all work."

The special office for "matters dealing with women," now located in Berlin, will be extended to cover the whole of Germany, Kaethe Raumer, the director, announced. She said the Hitler program will "discredit those who assert that women are not getting a fair deal in Nazi Germany."

Objective of Program.

The main objective of the program, according to the director, is "to cooperate in social reorganization to bring women back to their households. Material security should be given women by procuring jobs for their husbands or their prospective husbands. The office will also seek to create new professions for women compelled to earn their own living."

German women who still hold jobs were expected to take her statement as a warning that they are expected to find "new special womanly professions."

Elimination of women from the textile industry has begun systematically in Westphalia, where the labor trustee has decreed that factories replacing women with men pay them the same wages as the women plus a special percentage to bring their wages closer to the piecework rate paid to men.

NAZI CHIEF RESCINDS ORDER TO AUSTRIANS TO REPORT TO POLICE

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—(AP)—A few hours after all Austrians in three German provinces were ordered to report to police with their passports, Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath assured the Austrian minister today that the regulations would be withdrawn.

Austrians in Bavaria, Saxony, and Mecklenburg were instructed to give police information regarding their occupations, religion, property, political membership, and ancestry on the threat that noncompliance would bring immediate expulsion. Speedy action resulted, however, when the Austrian envoy here protested at the foreign office and was assured by Baron von Neurath that the orders "were issued by subordinates."

An official agency published an explanation of the order "to prevent misunderstandings." It said they were merely service orders to police with a view to ascertaining the number of Austrians in Germany, and that any steps taken by local authorities beyond that purpose "were rectified accordingly."

Nazis Ask Libel Action Against Paper in Iceland

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Jan. 17. — The long arm of the Nazis reached into Iceland today. The local German consul, on behalf of his government, demanded that the Iceland government bring libel action against the editor of the Socialist paper, Althydubladid. He charges the editor with insulting Chancellor Adolf Hitler and the German government.

LEAGUE STUDIES PLAN TO ARM THE SAAR FOR VOTE

Nazis Spurn Bid to Help Prepare Plebiscite.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The suggestion that an international peace force patrol the Saar basin territory to assure a free plebiscite in 1935 was advanced today in league of nations circles.

It followed Germany's refusal to participate in the league council's preparations for conducting the vote, which will determine whether the territory will be administered by France, Germany, or the league. Renewed charges of Hitlerite terrorism in the rich mining area had also been aired.

A German note expressed appreciation for the council's invitatiton to join in the discussions, but said the reich could not accept.

Germany Refuses Invitation.

"The German government regrets that for reasons of principle it must decline to take part in the discussions," the communication said.

The tone of the message was generally regarded as friendly, however, and as a good augury for future German collaboration. Reports reached Geneva that both Germany and Japan regret they cut their bridges with the league.

Meanwhile the council reappointed all members of the Saar governing commission, under the chairmanship of G. G. Knox. The commission has been the subject of a bitter attack by Nazis in the Saar, who claim Knox forbids Nazi demonstrations while allowing communists and Social Democrats to organize processions.

Seeks Delay in Plebiscite.

Max Braun, leader of the "German Liberty Front," protested against conducting the plebiscite next year, as scheduled, and declared a delay is justified by "the Nazi campaign of terrorism in the Saar, which is increasing daily."

In addition the council had a petition from a group of Saar trades unionists, farmers, and business men which declared the Nazis are pursuing a policy of "unparalleled terrorism."

"To take a vote in the present state of insecurity would be a wicked mockery," the document said.

The Saar territory was given France for 15 years after the world war so she could operate the Saar mines as compensation for the destruction by German troops of industrial plants in northern France.

JAPANESE SHIFT TACTICS IN FIGHT FOR WORLD TRADE

Decide to Display Spirit of Co-operation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 17.—Engrossed with the problem of keeping her newly captured markets open in the face of world-wide criticism of her trade methods, Japan has decided to part from her policy of stubborn resistance and to display a spirit of coöperation.

This sudden change is likely to have an important bearing not alone on the country's trade but on foreign relations as well in the opinion of informed observers. They predict that the change portends a sweeping liberalization of Japanese foreign policy in general.

Alarmed by her experience with India, where a boycott was threatened, and confronted with demands from the United States, Great Britain, France, Holland and Italy that she cease her "unfair" trade tactics, the Japanese government has been frightened into believing that no matter how just she may regard her policy, to continue to flout the world might be suicidal.

Fears United Front.

Japan has been alarmed especially over reports that some of the European nations might resort to concerted action. In the face of such a disquieting atmosphere, observers declare that the government has wisely resolved to curb exports voluntarily.

It is evident, however, that the Japanese strongly suspect that if the nations decide to unite against them, this will be not merely to restrict Nippon's trade because this country's goods are cheap, but will also be motivated by a desire to bring about the economic barricading of Japan for their own selfish interests.

Grievances Voiced.

The result is that various grievances are being voiced in business circles. Ginjiro Fujiwara, a member of the upper house, president of the gigantic Oji paper mills, and one of the leading industrialists of the nation, for instance, complains that during prosperous times in western countries Japan suffered because she was able to produce only cheap, inferior goods, which were not in demand.

In this 10 year period of depression for Japan, Fujiwara continued, . . studied methods of rationalizing and perfected her industries. Can Japan be blamed for what she has done, he asks.

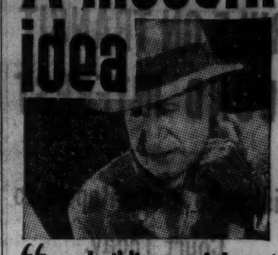
Again, a responsible banker points out that the world forgets that although Japan undersells its competitors, it still spends more money in purchases from these competitors than they spend in buying Japanese exports.

Adverse Balance of Trade.

The year 1933, this man contends, with all its talk of unfairness, dumping and sweated labor, closed with an estimated adverse balance of 100,000,000 yen. In 1932 Japanese exports totaled 1,457,000,000 yen and imports, 1,524,000,000 yen, showing an excess of imports of 67,000,000 yen. These two years, he goes on, were exceptionally favorable ones. (The yen is now quoted at about 31 cents.)

"In short," argues this banker, "Japan, during the last ten years sold to the world goods valued at around 18 billion yen against purchases of 21 billion yen. Such a customer is obviously an exceptionally good one and should be treated accordingly by the world."

A modern idea



"……building resistance while you're well instead of waiting until exposure affects you……"

It never used to occur to people to take precautions about their health in advance. They waited until they were miserable before trying to build up resistance.

Now many of these same people are trying to build up a reserve ahead to help carry them through this risky season.

If your resistance is low and you're bothered by exposure, why not begin to increase your physical forces, a little every day? There's a pleasant, easy way you can do this. With Squibb Adex Tablets-10 D.

Squibb Adex tablets are a concentrate of the valuable factors in halibut and cod-liver oil with Viosterol. The only tablet made from all three of these rich vitamin sources, they have unusual protective qualities!

Each tablet contains 1500 units of resistance-building Vitamin A and 2450 units of sunshine Vitamin D. And the exclusive method of preparing Adex makes these important vitamin values available to you almost at once.

Begin with Squibb Adex tablets and take them regularly every day. You'll have a far more comfortable winter.

Empty Your Gall Bladder

And You'll Feel Like a Billion Dollars!

Sleepless nights, dog-tired days, headaches, pains in all parts of the body—indigestion—gas. Do you suffer from one or all?

And have you tried every medicine under the sun, only to find yourself back where you started?

No wonder, for you, like thousands of others have probably been treating yourself for everything but the right thing. Get at the unsuspected cause—your gall bladder. If sluggish, it won't pour into your small intestines the most important digestive juice necessary for neutralizing gastric acid, quickening digestion and disinfecting the intestinal tract. If this juice doesn't flow freely, then your food sours, putrifies, stomach becomes filled with gas and acidity.

From the world's greatest chemists comes a simple, pleasant means to make the digestive juice flow freely, and put you on the sunny side of life. Magnesia Oxoids, little white tablets that release pure oxygen. This amazing oxygen—purer than the air you breathe—plus magnesia, gently stimulates the gall bladder, neutralizes burning acidity and sweeps that poison-packed bowel clean.

Take two Oxoids after each meal—and before retiring—drink plenty of water—put your gall bladder to work—and you'll jump out of your skin for joy. Such new health! Such robust vigor! Get Magnesia Oxoids today from your druggist.—Advertisement.

"I have been underweight for years," says Miss Taylor, "and after two packages of Kelp-a-Malt have gained well over 5 lbs. and am a new person inside and out. Am elated with Kelp-a-Malt." . . . "Had stomach trouble for years. When I take Kelp-a-Malt I have hearty appetite for everything and suffer no distress. Kelp-a-Malt has banished constipation, which I have had all my life."—W. D. Miss Esther Taylor, 123 West 15th St., New York City

Just a few of the thousands of actual testimonials that are flooding in from all over the country telling us how this newer form of food iodine is building firm flesh, strengthening the nerves, enriching the blood—nourishing vital glands and making weak, pale, careworn, underweight men and women look and feel years younger.

Scientists have recently discovered that the blood, liver and vital glands of the body contain definite quantities of iodine which heretofore has been difficult to obtain. Modern foodstuffs, even fresh vegetables and similarly so-called "good" foods, have recently been discovered to be lacking not only in food iodine, but in all the other essential organic minerals without which strength and health are impossible.

Only when you get an adequate amount of these minerals can your food do you any good—can you nourish glands, add weight, strengthen your nerves, increase your vigor, vitality and endurance.

Try Kelp-a-Malt today. Contains no yeast—doesn't cause bloating. Two weeks are required to effect a change in the mineralization of the body. At the end of that time, if you have not gained at least 8 pounds, do not look better, feel better and have more endurance than ever before, the trial is free. Generous sized two-week trial treatment costs but little. Get Kelp-a-Malt today.

Kelp-a-Malt, only recently discovered, is an amazingly rich source of food iodine along with practically every mineral essential to normal well-being. It is a sea vegetable concentrate taken from the Pacific Ocean and made available in palatable, pleasant to take tablet form. Six Kelp-a-Malt tablets provide more food iodine than 486 pounds of spinach, 1,600 lbs. of beef, 1,387 pounds of lettuce. Three Kelp-a-Malt tablets contain more iron and copper for rich blood, vitality and strength then a pound of spinach, 7½ pounds of fresh tomatoes—more calcium than 6 eggs, more phosphorus than a pound and a half of carrots—sulphur, sodium, potassium, and other essential minerals.

Girl Graduate of 1866 Reads School Essay

Dearborn Alumnae Hold Annual Meeting.

BY JUDITH CASS.

KEROSENE lamps and wood rimmed slates may be archaic to the finishing school pupils of today, but there wasn't an alumna of Chicago's old Dearborn seminary lunching yesterday in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel who would trade them for the modern convenience of electric bed lights and loose leaf notebooks.

With Jan. 17 the birthday of the seminary's founder and first principal, the Rev. Zuinglius Grover, the graduates and those who attended the school for only a year or two were holding their 53d annual reunion. It was a delightful occasion flavored with sentiment and the spirit of the past.

"Let me paint a picture for you," suggested dear Mrs. Clifford Williams, who with a lei of roses around her neck [the gift of two admiring friends] occupied a place to the left of the chairman, Mrs. Edwin L. Lobdell. One of the oldest, if not the oldest, living graduates of the school, Mrs. Williams was the center of interest yesterday, for she contributed the highlight of the afternoon's program when she read the graduation essay she had written in 1866.

Describes Scene of Graduation.

"Before I read this essay you must have the setting," she went on. "The Dearborn Female seminary is a large double building [I'm speaking in terms of 1866], 200 feet north of Washington street on Wabash avenue. It's a five story structure with a gymnasium on the top . . . yes, even in those days we were expected to be athletic. On the second floor is the collegiate department where graduation is held.

"Back of me is the Rev. Mr. Grover and all the rest of the faculty. To my right are my fellow classmates and sufferers, fourteen of them. You see they, too, have to read essays. Now for the masterpiece. Prepare to be thrilled."

And then Mrs. Williams with her pleasant humor and well modulated voice spent five minutes rereading the essay on "Praise" that she had written as 17 year old Lizzie Hoyne and read on her graduation dav.

It might have been written today. Quite as applicable are the grownup statements about the benefits of praise and the dangers of too much censure. "Great achievements," wrote Mrs. Williams 68 years ago, "are born of hope and not depression." The rest of the essay is a matter of similes, comparisons, and literary references been confined to her home for many months with a broken leg, was at the luncheon to applaud Lizzie Hoyne Williams. They attended the Dearborn seminary together. Others who were in the gathering were Mrs. Eugene H. Garnett, who completed the program by reading some of her poems; Mrs. Harry H. Reuss, Mrs. Louis Herrick, Miss Edith Moss, Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw, Mrs. Willis Jackson, Mrs. George Richards, Miss Carrie Blair Neely, Mrs. Charles Counselman, Mrs. Elisha E. Chandler, Mrs. Bronson Peck, and Mrs. John E. Jenkins.

Mrs. Alexander Hodgart, president of the association, sent her greetings by wire from New York since she has departed on her fourth round the world tour.

Red, White and Blue Club Workers to Meet.

Mrs. Thomas R. Gowenlock has cards out for a tea next Tuesday at 4:30 o'clock at her residence, 1120 Lake Shore drive, for the women who are working with her on the Red, White and Blue club benefit and the artists who will give the program at the benefit, George Gershwin, James Melton and the members of the orchestra.

The concert is to be given at the Auditorium theater on the afternoon of Sunday, Feb. 4, and already many luncheon parties are being planned to precede it. And at least one supper party has been arranged, for the Ernest Byfields are entertaining in their house on the roof on the Hotel Sherman for Mr. Gershwin after the concert.

Tickets for the concert, which is certain to be one of the outstanding musical and social affairs of the season, may be obtained from the Barkman-Hutchins office, 431 South Wabash avenue, telephone Wabash 6534. Some of those who have taken boxes are Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. George Rasmussen, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Byfield, Mrs. Gowenlock, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. Frederick W. Upham and Harold F. McCormick.

Tell Engagement of Virginia McCurdy.

The engagement of Miss Virginia McCurdy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lombard McCurdy of Hinsdale, to Dr. Ernest Gerard Smith, son of Mrs. Ernest Gerard Smith of Allison Park, Pa., is being announced this that would do justice to most any author.

Good Morning!

Since Ann Harding's real life marital ship went on the rocks she has been kept pictorially busy exploring and salvaging screen matrimonial wrecks; a lady yearning, daring, misunderstood, and finally, after a fashion, receiving a reward of sorts for courage under tribulation.

In "Right to Romance" she was a harried plastic surgeon. In "Gallant Lady" she's an interior decorator who loves and loses—and lives to love again. . . .

The possibility of Sally's life being all beer and skittles gets sat on right at the start of the picture.

Her lover, an aviator, is killed just as he sets out on an Atlantic flight. She was to have married him on his return. . . . There is to be a child. . . .

Now—just to be "different"—let's take a glance at the various characters in the story and let that glance shed what light it may on the plot:

Deedy's the little son born out of wedlock. He's adopted when a few days old by——

The Lawrences, who adore him. Mrs. Lawrence dies when he's about five years old. . . . The adoption was the idea of——

Dan—a queer, ex-convict doctor. Dan has found Sally wandering distractedly in the park just after the tragedy. He takes her under his peculiar wing, and from then on she is to regard him devotedly as a cross between guardian and charge. For Dan is one of those people who believe in doing as they please. He had pleased to give a dying sufferer an overdose of drug—and landed in the pen. Once out, he decides to go to sea—and goes to sea. He wants to become a dog doctor—liking dogs better than people—and becomes a veterinary surgeon. He likes to get drunk—and he gets drunk. But he IS full of good advice.

Mario is a temperamental Italian count who follows Sally home across the bounding main from Italy, whither she had gone to pack up a Renaissance chapel belonging to his family, for sale to an American client.

Cynthia is the lady to whom, in due course of time, Phillip Lawrence becomes engaged. She is pretty and snippy and goes through the action regarding all comers with a basilisk stare. DOES she marry Mr. Lawrence?

Now, IS that a bright question?

The story is far fetched and draggy in spots, but it has its moments. These are due to expert acting on the part of all concerned. Miss Harding is her usual natural, lovely self. Dickie Moore is adorable as forthright little Deedy. Janet Beecher is clever as the hard-boiled, soft-hearted interior decorator. Tullio Carminati is Chevalieresque as the count and Otto Kruger—ACH, that Otto Kruger! [Sigh from the heart]—as Lawrence is a man to covet. Clive Brook does well with the rôle of Dan—but it's not a part that gets over well because the character portrayed is too complex for mass comprehension.

The scene you love is the one where Deedy baptizes that mean Cynthia with a bucketful of fish. The most dramatic episode is the one concerned with the crash of the airship in which Sally's lover had started aloft with such high hopes and aspirations.

See you tomorrow!

Wife of First Soviet Ambassador Arrives; Wears Simple Clothes

New York, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Mme. Alexander Troyanovsky, wife of the first soviet ambassador to the United States, arrived on the Olympic today and talked with animation of her interest in art.

A merry faced woman with glasses and severely simple clothes, Mme. Troyanovsky looked more like an amiable American school teacher than the wife of a foreign diplomat. Her son Oleg, 14 years old, with whom she traveled, speaks English and wants to learn to play American football.

"I want to see your theaters and hear the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra," said Mme. Troyanovsky through Oleg and several voluntary interpreters. She speaks almost no English.

"I hope to stay here a long time," she said eagerly.

Mme. Troyanovsky has studied medicine and done some work in surgery.

The new mistress of the Russian embassy wore the simplest of brown knitted dresses, a plain black felt hat, and a fur coat. Her brown eyes sparkled with excitement, and her cheeks were ruddy from the raw wind that whipped the harbor.

Her husband went down the bay on a coast guard cutter to meet her, accompanied by Peter A. Bogdanov, head of the Amtorg Trading corporation, official soviet commercial agency.

Wrigley Granddaughter Now Mrs. Denis Sullivan

Betty Offield Becomes Bride of Denis Sullivan; a Surprise

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

THIS morning we have the pleasure and privilege of publishing the following interesting announcement: "Mr. and Mrs. James R. Offield announce the marriage of their daughter, Betty, to Denis Emons Sullivan Jr., on Wednesday, Jan. 17, at their home, 1400 Astor street, at 6 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dudley S. Stark, rector of St. Chrysostom's church, in the presence of the immediate families."

With no fanfare or advance notice of any sort this charming young lady, granddaughter of the late William Wrigley Jr. and Mrs. Wrigley, thus became the bride of the attractive young Irishman who has been her most devoted beau for some time. It was a quiet home ceremony witnessed, as the formal notice her parents sent us said, only by the immediate families and by a few very close friends.

Not more than 25 people assembled in the drawing room of the Offields' home late yesterday afternoon, in response to invitations telephoned several days before, to witness the ceremony that united in marriage the elder son of Judge Denis E. Sullivan and this lovely young lady whose affairs of the heart have caused many a "heavy" beau to miss more than one heartbeat.

Wears Mother's Bridal Gown.

Down the stairs came the bride, promptly at 6, on the arm of her father, looking as beautiful as a fairy story bride in her mother's bridal gown of ivory satin, made simply with a court train. Across the hall and the music room they walked to the east end of the drawing room, where Dr. Stark and the bridegroom and his best man—his younger brother, Edmund—awaited them before a screen of calla lilies and greens.

Three seven-branched cadelabra added to the churchly atmsophere, and the only light in the room was the candle light. The bride's veil was an exquisite one of rosepoint lace that belongs to her maternal grandmother, who did not come from her winter home in California for the wedding, but who will see her granddaughter and her new grandson soon, for they left after a buffet supper last night for the west coast to sail for a honeymoon in Honolulu. The bridal bouquet was of white orchids and valley lilies. Mrs. Offield, the former Dorothy Wrigley, was smart in gold lace with a corsage of lavender orchids.

Wrigley Offield, the bride's only brother, was at home from the Choate school for the wedding.

Recall Beautiful Jack Frost Ball.

The former Miss Offield, who was "finished" in Paris, made her debut at a reception at the residence of her parents on Nov. 7, 1930, and that same winter her grandparents gave her a Christmas ball that was one of the loveliest of that season. The ballroom of the Blackstone was transformed on that occasion into a forest of frosted pine trees for the pretty young debutante, whose vivacity is her chief charm. She is a lovely, petite brunette.

Young Mr. Sullivan, "Mike" to his relatives and friends, followed in his father's footsteps and studied law after being graduated from Princeton. He went to the Northwestern university law school and then the Kent College of Law. In December, 1931, he was appointed a master in chancery in the Superior court, the youngest lawyer to be named for that appointment.

Rumors that he was the favored suitor for the hand of the popular young heiress have been rife for some time, and it was whispered that their engagement would be announced at the very small wedding reception for her very great friend, Ann Elizabeth Walsh, and Roy Flannery on Nov. 1, but no formal announcement ever was made, so the news of the marriage this morning will come as a great surprise to all but the few friends who were at the wedding last night. But every one who knows them, we're sure, will join us in wishing this young couple much happiness!

Billie Burke and Mitzi Green to Have Featured Roles in Film

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Billie Burke and little Mitzi Green are to be co-featured in the two character leads of Radio's "Finishing School." Miss Burke plays Mrs. McRae, shallow, society mad mother of Billie, precocious baby student, who aspires to be accepted on the same footing by the other private school girls. Frances Dee and Ginger Rogers play the leaders of the older girls. This is the story that Wanda Tuchock, recently added to Hollywood's ranks of women directors, will collaborate with George Nichols in directing.

The movies are seeing a swing of interest in Billie Burke, her beauty and her acting talent commensurate with that which inaugurated Marie Dressler's romp back to the big billing a few years ago.

Jim Cagney likes Edward G. Robinson a great deal as a friend and admires him as an actor, but Cagney perturbed the Warner lot a great deal today with a firm refusal to play the second of two hard boiled marines, alongside Robinson, in a coming film. Cagney's reason is very simple:

Robinson's contract provides Eddie with top billing for any appearance, and Cagney can't let his name be subordinated. Pat O'Brien may play the second marine.

At the formal dinner dance of the Screen Actors' guild a revue number was staged with 25 chorus men and 25 beautiful extras. When it was over the guild found $150 worth of champagne had been charged on the Biltmore hotel account by the chorus men, and almost as much in facials and cosmetics by the girls. The affair was featured by an entertainment whose outstanding act was Charlie Butterworth, Bing Crosby, and Matt McHugh, dressed in skirts and singing harmonizing trios with burlesque lines, in imitation of the Boswell sisters.

Randolph Scott today said there was nothing "immediate" in the way of marriage plans between himself and Vivian Gaye, and that discussion of heir possible nuptials had embarrassed both. "Miss Gaye and I are agreed that if there is anything in way of announcement to give out, we shall do it formally and without loss of time," he said.

Miss Brancato Wins Audience in Opera Debut

Kansas City Girl Sings Gilda in "Rigoletto."

BY EDWARD MOORE.

"Rigoletto" was repeated at the Civic Opera house last night with several important changes of cast. Among them was a new Gilda, a young artist with a promising future and a charming present, and, if one cares for puns in connection with opera, presence.

She was Rosemarie Brancato of Kansas City, and they say that this was the first time she had ever sung the rôle. They add, too, that most of her public singing in the past has been confined to her native city and Rochester, N. Y.

Wherefore if there were a few evidences of nervousness in her demeanor on entering the stage, they were entirely pardonable, and the more so because behind the customary handicap of the debutante there was no difficulty in finding a peculiarly charming voice. It is a slender ribbon of tone, but it has both personal quality and the winsomeness of youth.

Her voice has been well schooled. It rippled over the graceful passages of "Caro Nome" with complete ease and assurance, ending on a high note which impelled the audience into silence for a moment and then was lost in quite the longest outburst of applause that has greeted any single aria this season. This was the tribute to a performance of rare purity and persuasiveness.

It is a pleasant experience to be present when a young artist makes a successful debut. I was told that, all unknown to her, the members of her family were in the audience, having come from Kansas City to applaud her during her performance and to greet her at its end.

Another change of cast was that of Carlo Morelli in the name part. The only regret about him is that he was not here when the season started, for he would seem to be a find among baritones, so much of a find that he deserves definite consideration when the next season of the Chicago Grand Opera company is planned.

He has a voice to delight the ear with its rich fullness and quality of tone, and he is well on the way to being a personality of the stage. With great good sense he did not attempt any new "readings" of Rigoletto. He was content to follow the conventions, but by his own personal gifts he converted conventions into interesting events. He is decisively a forceful element in the personnel of the company.

IF you haven't anything else to do you might enjoy figuring out the identities of the guests at a Chicago dinner party as written by E. M. Delafield in "The Provincial Lady Goes to America," appearing serially in Punch. Miss Delafield stopped with the Arthur Meekers during her Chicago stay and "literary friend Arthur," referring to Arthur Meeker Jr., appears frequently in her chronicles. About the dinner party she writes:

Chronicle—
Pun—
Announcer—
Showmen.

"Small dinner takes place and consists of about sixteen people including a lady whose novel won the Pulitzer prize and a lady who writes poetry—very, very well known, though not, unhappily, to me," Miss Delafield writes. (The identity of those two ought to be easy.) "A young gentleman who has something to do with films; an older one who is connected with museums; and delightful woman in green who says that she knows Devonshire and has stayed with the Frobishers. Did she, I rashly inquire, enjoy it? . . .

"Dinner marvelous as usual; and my neighbor—museum—offers to conduct me to see Chicago Historical museum at 10 o'clock next morning. Just as dinner is over two extremely elegant young gentlemen with waists and superbly smooth coiffures come in and bow gracefully to our hostess. New York friend Billy (Billy White) hisses at me: "The South Americans!" and I nod assent and wonder how on earth they are going to be introduced when nobody knows their names. This, however, is achieved by hostess, who simply asks them what they are called. Am told afterwards that neither of them speaks much English and that Arthur's father asked them questions all the evening. No one tells me whether they answered or not, and I remain mildly curious on this point."

WILLIAM L. AYERS was pointing out to some out-of-town visitors the imposing figure atop the Board of Trade building. "That," said Mr. Ayers, "is the old goddess of the grains."

"I dare say that it is really the world's Ceres," replied Mr. Ayers unblushingly.

THE radio announcer who was broadcasting the racing results caused listeners a smile when, unable to pronounce "Curmudgeon," he spelled it out, then named the next winner.

"Your dice," he said.

The winning horse was Eurydice.

"WILL you help an old showman?" pleaded the man in the ragged coat.

The two pedestrians he had stopped gave him a coin or two.

"We're old showmen ourselves," one of them commented. "Yes——" as the panhandler looked up inquiringly. "We were with the biggest road show ever put on. Pershing's Tours."

"Never heard of it," he said finally.

"Well, I never happened to hear of them," he answered politely as he shuffled off.

Club Presidents.

The Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen will meet at 10 o'clock this morning in Fullerton hall at the Art institute. Mrs. Charles S. Clark, the president, will introduce Moirre Compere, who will discuss "Poetry and the Modern Drama."

New York Producers Protest Against Ban on Bars at Theaters

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The show business was all steamed up today over the ABC board's refusal to permit bars in theaters.

Why, producers wanted to know, is it legal for a restaurant man to have hula girls flirting their seven veils in the eyes of patrons who can drink, when producers of the serious drama can't sell a customers something with which to wash down the Hamlet soliloquy?

There was no answer, but the protests went on just the same.

"It's another case of the bluenose killing the people's joy and the legislator doing everything in his power to defeat the legitimate theater," said Eddie Dowling, producer, former song and dance man and friend of President Roosevelt.

"The hotels and cafés, which are permitted to servie liquor, can afford to give their customers elaborate floor shows.

"Is it any wonder that the people patronize those places, where they can have their drinks and see a show at the same time, and stay away from the theater?"

THE WILD BIRD

By OWEN JOHNSON

SYNOPSIS.

Barbara Brawne, aged 22, is completely dominated by a jealous father, who is against every modern idea and improvement. Their home is in the prim and proper village of Oxbridge, a place of intellectual sanctity. Barbara seems predestined to join the ranks of the village spinsters. Leaving a meeting of the committee on the poorhouse, Barbara contaminates rebellion. While waiting for her father at the railroad station Barbara meets Gregory Rance, a noted novelist. He mistakes her for the sister of Laurie Chiswick, whom he has come to visit. There is a mutual attraction. At home Barbara visits with her maiden aunts before dinner.

INSTALLMENT IV.

A STATELY MEAL.

When Barbara came in she looked around the room and, perceiving a pair of horn rimmed spectacles on the reading table, picked them up and brought them over.

Aunt Abbie, who, like all deaf people listened through her eyes for fear of missing something, beckoned to her niece and, advancing the ear trumpet, said:

"And how did your father seem?"

"Well."

"Well, eh?" She put away the ear trumpet as though satisfied with the news of the day, but all at once, fixing her gaze on Barbara, she said with a jerk of her hand to her forehead, "My dear, haven't you forgotten something?"

Barbara, looking into the great mirror, saw that her hair was still in disorder.

"Why so I have, Aunt Abbie," she exclaimed in surprise, and was leaving the room when the maid brought in her handbag.

"Why, so I did." She took it and hurried up the stairs. The two incidents had vividly impressed the aunts, who followed her movements with anxiety when she returned.

"You look feverish, my dear," said Aunt Mattie.

"Never felt better, Auntie."

Martin Brawne came in.

"And how are the aunts?"

"O, we're always well, Martin, always well."

Thomas' gray sideburns came in with the famous family sherry and the old ladies stood up with a jerky alacrity.

They went into the dining room, paneled in the fashionable oak of the 1870s; massive oak fireplace, massive oak sideboard, relieved by fine old family silver; massive oak table with glowing white table cloth and heavy silver centerpieces filled with early quince blossoms. The silver was colonial, five generations in the family, and the Lowestoft plates had the initials of her great-aunt mother. Thomas served the soup from a ponderous soup tureen and the stately meal began.

The procedure never varied. During the soup Mr. Brawne devoted five minutes to each sister in turn, hearing their little budget of news concerning the garden, the chickens, the condition of the sheep, etc., and retailing the news of friends whom they never saw, or explaining the investments he had made for their accounts, of which having spent little for the last forty years they understood nothing at all. During the fish course, having scrupulously observed the etiquette, he turned his attention to Barbara.

Martin Brawne was at this period in his sixty-seventh year, and the thick, black rimmed spectacles seemed to have widened and set immovable on his square, ascetic face as though they had effectually imprisoned behind them all emotions and sympathies. The fierce spirit of no compromise, which had never permitted a telephone, or electric light, or a furnace in the house, had worked rigid furrows about the lips which were drawn down.

"Martin Brawne," said Ed Chippinway, who in his pagan enjoyment of life disliked him cordially, "always looks as though he were saying to himself, 'Who's going to annoy me now?'"

Nevertheless when he looked at Barbara there was a perceptible relaxation in the graven rigidity which suggested at times a sculptural smile of content.

Sensitive to every mood of his child, he had been quick to detect the abstraction in her manner.

"I'm on the wrong scent," he thought. "It's not a newcomer. It's Laurie Chiswick's return. Can it be that that boy and girl affair has flared up again?"

He pushed away his plate, all at once without appetite, and began covertly to watch his daughter.

From the moment she had met Rance, Barbara had been preoccupied with the force and brusqueness of his personality. She had thought of him all the way home, seeing his stalwart figure in front of her, the broad head with the tumbling aureole of yellow hair, the aquiline slit of the clear gray eyes that had suddenly unsheathed a film and looked at her with an arrested interest.

"He liked me," she thought, "but why? Why should I attract him, with all the brilliant women he must meet?"

He had impressed her at once as a positive force, some one vital, dynamic, original, drawn on a broad canvas. Some one self-confident, self-centered, and self-sufficient. What she would have liked to have been if she had been a man and master of her own destiny. People like that then did exist in the world, people who loved life and lived it gorgeously. She felt he did, by the warm rumble of his laugh and the enveloping seizure of his hand. She wondered if he had put himself in his books, in which of his characters——

She came to, looked at her plate, and hastily, astonished at her preoccupation and fearful of having betrayed herself, began to eat. Fortunately a diversion saved her.

"Mouton Rothschild '96," said Thomas, preparing to fill his master's glass.

"Only a half a glass tonight, Thomas."

The old butler, accustomed to serve the full pint, could not repress a human surprise. The aunts exchanged glances of amazement. The slightest deviation from routine was a catastrophe. Barbara, remembering, all at once broke in anxiously:

"You saw Dr. Richards, father?"

"An old woman—all doctors are alike! They always begin by telling you to give up something you want. They think that's the easiest way to impress you."

"Did Dr. Richards tell you to give up wine, father?"

"And if he did? What's one doctor to tell me to change my habits," he exclaimed irascibly. "When I was twenty-two didn't three doctors tell me I was tubercular and ought to go west before I found one who had sense enough to know what was the matter?"

Barbara looked at her father anxiously, thinking:

"Poor daddy, if he has to give up his wine the dinners will be dreadful. However, there can't be anything very serious the matter with him. He looks hardly a day over sixty."

"By the way, Mathilda," said Mr. Brawne acidly, "I heard you called on the Torbys the other day."

"Yes, we called on the Torbys."

"A divorced woman?"

Aunt Mattie, quailing before her brother's look, turned helplessly to Barbara.

"Why, father, that was twenty years ago."

"And how does that change the situation?"

"Really, father, that's carrying it a little too far. The girl is charming. Every one has called. If we are to stop speaking——"

"I said nothing about speaking to them. I will not receive the Torbys in my house."

"Father, really! Times have changed——"

"All the more reason, in the present demoralization of society, for those who have standards to hold to them. I will not receive a divorced person in my house. Is that perfectly clear?"

He looked at his sisters, who bowed their heads; at Barbara, who flushed but held her tongue.

"Tonight is not the time to talk to him," she thought. "Something has thrown him into a bad humor. Dr. Richards, perhaps."

Girls' Alibis Are Indications to Cease Calls

BY DORIS BLAKE.

For the young men who keep on requesting dates after the female alibies set in—DON'T!

Once the girl starts telling you that her head aches terribly, that her aunt is here on a visit, or she has to go see a sick friend, set it down as your cue to give the lady all the leisure she asks. That leisure may be her cure and your eventual reward. But give it to her, and plenty of it. And let her remain neglected by you, until she shows definite signs of regret over your absence.

Men are more easily won back by the persistency of the female than women are won back by the aggressive suitor. We hear more about men growing indifferent under aggressive pursuit, about how they love the chase, and difficulties thereof. But modern girls, at least, are known to undervalue, too, the thing that seems securely in their hands. Not, of course, where there is the real unity between two young people. The question never arises with these. It's between couples, one of whom is not sure, and in whose relationship there is uncertainty that the problem does arise.

The one, girl or man, whose interest shows signs of waning with alibies or easily picked quarrels, is not certain of the state of his or her heart. Either that or he or she is willing to be through completely, and this is the way out of the entanglement.

So, in any event, absence and silence are the better parts of wisdom That incessant 'phoning, and forcing another alibi, and still another, is infuriating. The very sureness of the devotion at the other end of the phone antagonizes. But give a lady cause to doubt that she matters so much after all, and if she has any feeling left for the man, she'll get word of them to him somehow. Until she does extend a hint of some kind, a bit of encouragement, leave her alone.

Girl Graduate of 1866 Reads School Essay

Dearborn Alumnae Hold Annual Meeting.

phia. He is now senior resident in radiology in the Massachusetts General hospital in Boston. No plans for the wedding have been made.

Wyllys Andrews IV. Is in Yucatan.

Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Andrews are watching every mail for letters from their son, E. Wyllys Andrews IV., postmarked Merida, or Chichen-Itza, Yucatan. Young Mr. Andrews is in the far away country (he sailed Jan. 2) with archæologists from the Carnegie foundation and he intends to spend the next six months digging among the ruins of the Mayan civilization.

His mother and father spent several months of last year in the South Sea islands, living in Papeete in a tiny house where they had a native maid who spoke only Tahitian and cooked only Tahitian food. When Wyllys was graduated from Lawrenceville last June they decided a year or part of a year in Yucatan would be better for him than entering Harvard at so young an age. Until time to sail this month Wyllys went to the University of Chicago and studied Mayan hieroglyphics.

Dr. Sylvanus Morley is the leader of the trip. Incidentally Dr. Morley is responsible for the old English crewel work tapestry which Mrs. Andrews is making. Its design is the family tree of the oldest Mayan family known, one whose history antedates the arrival of the first Spaniards in this country. The original tree done on parchment by a member of the family in 1647 is now on exhibition in the Boston museum. Seeing this not long ago, Dr. Morley suggested to Mrs. Andrews that she copy it. During his stay in Yucatan Wyllys will visit the only living descendant of the family, whose home is in Chichen-Itza.

Mrs. William G. Sage and her son, Otis, who have been living on their large farm, Rose Lawn, in Indiana since last spring, have come to town for a few days and are at the Hotel Knickerbocker. Mrs. Sage gave up her Bellevue place residence last year and decided to live permanently on the farm, but she and her son come to town occasionally to see old friends and her brother, Lucius J. Otis, who still maintains the old Otis homestead on Prairie avenue.

Downses Leave for California.

Mrs. Lawrence A. Downs and her daughter, Miss Mary Kay Downs, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis, left yesterday morning for New York to sail through the Panama canal to California. The dinner-dance the W. Press Hodgkins were going to give for Miss Downs last Thursday at the Saddle and Cycle has been postponed until spring.

Mrs. Thornhill Broome is due to arrive in Chicago Saturday to visit her mother, Mrs. John A. Spoor. Unfortunately Mrs. Broome, who lives in Mississippi during the winter, will not be accompanied by her husband or her children. Her visit is to be brief.

Mrs. John Jay Abbott will arrive at home today or tomorrow from a trip to England.

Miss Mira Lee Benoist, daughter of the William F. Benoists of Winnetka, is sailing Saturday from England, with her hostess, Miss Betty Dawson, whom she has been visiting near Liverpool for three months. Miss Dawson and Miss Benoist will be in Chicago on Feb. 1.

Charles H. Bosworth is expected at home in Evanston within a fortnight from England and Mrs. Bosworth will join him by March 1. They have been visiting their daughters, Mrs. Gordon L. Padley and Mrs. Trevor Stamp, in England since last fall.

Miss Jeanette Hill to Be June Bride.

When Miss Jeanette Hill comes home from Vassar the end of March to spend her spring holiday with her mother, Mrs. Frank Farwell Ferry, she will make the plans for her wedding in June to Harry Kohlsaat Wells, the young man who was one of last fall's Harvard football heroes.

Miss Hill's and Mr. Wells' former plans to go abroad for a year after their marriage are now very much up in the air, for they are not so certain that they will both want to devote another year to studying, at least right now. They will be graduated from their respective colleges in June.

Mrs. Eugene V. Thayer has sailed for an indefinite stay in Europe. Mr. Thayer did not accompany her, but he, too, is away from Chicago for a stay of indeterminate length.

The junior O'Neil Ryans have returned to their apartment on East Delaware place from a visit to relatives in St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Getz Jr. are leaving today for Florida. They are going to spend a month on Mr. Getz's father's boat, the Whereaway, cruising through Florida waters and doing a bit of deep sea fishing.

Robert Johnstons Go to Florida.

Now that Robert Johnston Jr. has returned to his studies at Andover, Mr. and Mrs. Johnston have gone to Sarasota, Fla., for the rest of the winter. Goodwin Johnston, their older son, who was graduated from Princeton last June, has come in from his parents' Hinsdale home this winter to take a small apartment at 17 West Goethe street.

President and Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago slipped quietly out of town for a little vacation at Sea Island, Ga. They will remain south until the 25th of this month.

Miss Lunt Will Be Guest of Drama Guild.

Miss Cornelia Lunt, Evanston's young-old lady who is so dearly loved and greatly admired by all who know her, is to be the especial guest today Drama club of Evanston and the University guild. Miss Lunt, with Mrs. Henry Wade Rogers, wife of the tenth president of Northwestern, founded the guild in 1892, and Miss Lunt was its first president. The meeting will be held in the Woman's club and will be attended by 1,200 women. Mrs. Edson B. Fowler is program chairman of the guild and is in charge of this afternoon's entertainment, which will be the presentation of John Gay's "The Beggar's Opera" by the Northwestern university school of speech in collaboration with the school of music.

The guild members have another treat in store for them this week, for on Sunday Dr. Ali Kuli Khan, former Persian minister to the United States, will give two lectures in connection with an art exhibit and tea from 5 to 9 o'clock in Whitney house. Dr. Khan will speak on "The Symbolism and Philosophy of Color and Design in Persian Art" and on "Current Events from the Standpoint of a Persian Diplomat." There will be an exhibit of Persian art treasures and of paintings by Helga Haugan Dean, Evanston artist. Mrs. Hubert Burnham is in charge of the program and assisting will be Mrs. George B. Dryden, Mrs. Fred Sargent, Mrs. Theodore W. Koch, and Mrs. Daniel Boone.

Cordon Club Tea for Two Actors.

The Cordon is giving a tea tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock for those popular actors, Madge Kennedy and Rollo Peters, who are appearing at the Studebaker in "Autumn Crocus." Cara Verson, pianist, will give a musical program tomorrow.

The British consul general and Mrs. Lewis Bernays will be among the guests at a luncheon that Marshall Field's are giving today for Kennard Lawrence Wedgwood, great-great-grandson of Josiah Wedgwood, whose name the world over is synonymous with fine chinaware. Mr. Wedgwood and Mr. Bernays are old friends.

Rest Haven Benefit Draws Throng of Eight Thousand

More than 8,000 persons attended a benefit musical revue held last night at the Aragon ballroom to provide funds for the Rest Haven Convalescent home, 1919 Prairie avenue. The benefit is an annual affair, with all the proceeds being turned over to the institution. The revue staged last night was directed by Roy Levenson, youthful amateur producer. A full chorus of dancers, singers, and other entertainers took part in the performance.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. James Knott have been passing a greater part of the winter at their house on the Kent estate near Jericho.

Parisiennes Wear Frocks of Cloky Under Fur Coats

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Though printed silk dresses are suffering a total eclipse in the Paris mid-season fashion shows, Schiaparelli's simple dress of printed cloky is booming among her smart clients. It's the quilted fabric that makes the printed dress look different, and women like it thus.

Schiaparelli had only one frock like this, which is sketched here. It is quilted along its black, cross barred pattern and between the bars are tiny yellow, rose, and green flowers, so small that they just add a sparkle of color. The Maharanee Holkar of Indore and Lady Louis Mountbatten are two smart women to wear this model.

Like all of Schiaparelli's day frocks this one has a narrow fitted silhouette. The blouse is surpliced upside down, which gives it a new twist. That is to say, the surpliced drapery instead of falling around the waistline in the usual way, rises and is draped around the neck, where it crosses and fastens on a small brown leather clip. The brown leather belt has a knot of leather in front instead of a buckle.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt today attended funeral services for Mrs. Edward Douglas White, widow of the former chief justice. Later she went to the morning musical of Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, when she had as guests in her box Mrs. Dern, wife of the secretary of war, and Mrs. Ickes, wife of the secretary of the interior, and several other cabinet hostesses.

The Brazilian ambassador and Mme. De Lima e Silva were entertained at luncheon today by the Czechoslovakian minister and Mme. Veverka at the hotel legation.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a weekly radio feature—will be presented tomorrow by Mary Meade over station W-G-N. Tune in at 11:10 o'clock for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

Do you know what matzo meal is? And can you guess what matzos are? Then you are surely either well up in all culinary facts or else you are on good terms with a most interesting business, Jewish cookery. So if you're already wise pardon while I explain to the rest of us.

Matzos [sometimes written matzoth] are unleavened biscuits, many of them made in such a way as to be strictly kosher for Passover. In scores of Jewish recipes they are used in just this form, usually soaked in hot liquid and then drained before using. Matzo meal is made by finely pulverizing these biscuits and this has hundreds of further uses. It turns up in an endless stream of really tantalizing recipes which may be eaten properly either at Passover or at any time during the year. All of them, matzos, matzo meal, and a product called matzo crackers, are available on the market. So whether yours are Jewish traditions or not I believe you'll enjoy trying out some of these odd but tasty dishes.

The first I wish to pass on to you is a famous matzo meal dumpling which so frequently bobs up in Jewish soups.

[Jewish Dumpling for Yom-Tov Soup.]

You will need one egg for each 1½ tablespoons of matzo meal. Beat the eggs first, then add to them a slight flavoring of ground ginger, cinnamon, pepper, and salt. Add also a very little bit of finely ground almonds. Now stir in the matzo meal, adding chicken fat or clarified drippings to make a paste. Form this into little balls and boil them 20 minutes in the following soup:

JEWISH YOM-TOV SOUP.

2 pounds beef ribs
1 chicken, cut for stewing
1 carrot, sliced
1 onion, sliced
Parsley root, small section
Salt and pepper to taste
Pinch of saffron if desired
1 stalk celery, cut up

Place the ingredients in a kettle containing two quarts of water and cook at simmering heat for two hours. Remove the meat, to be used as a separate dish, and drop in the above dumplings, boiling them for 20 minutes.

Or if you have on hand the matzos themselves serve them in scrambled eggs. Simply break 6 matzos in small pieces, place in a colander and pour boiling water over them. Drain them quickly, leaving them moist but not soggy. Then beat 3 eggs well. Heat 4 tablespoons of fat [real enthusiasts call for goose fat] in a frying pan and add the eggs and matzos with enough salt to flavor. Cook slowly, scraping constantly from the bottom as the mixture cooks. If desired add 3 to 4 tablespoons of sugar while scrambling. When the eggs are set serve at once. Cinnamon is sometimes added to this scramble.

And if you've never made cheese pancakes with the aid of matzos here's the way it's done:

MATZO CHEESE PANCAKES.

3 eggs
1 tablespoon melted butter
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons cottage cheese
4 matzos, crumbled

Beat the eggs, add the butter, seasoning, and cheese. Beat thoroughly and fold in the crumbled matzos which have been moistened with a little hot milk. Drop from a tablespoon onto a well oiled griddle and fry on both sides until golden brown. Serve either hot or cold with a sprinkling of powdered sugar.

Then how about a cookie? This one sports besides the discussed main ingredient the popular cereal made of flaked corn:

MATZO CORN COOKIES.

2 cups corn flakes
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
½ cup matzo meal
1 cup chopped nuts

Beat the eggs and sugar together until very fluffy, then add the other ingredients, stirring them in well. Now drop from a teaspoon onto a greased sheet well dusted with matzo meal. Bake about 20 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.).

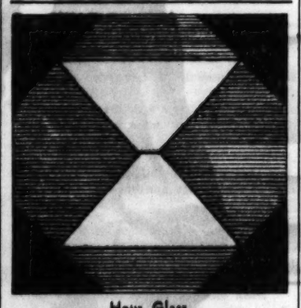
Quilt Is Rapidly Pieced and Aptly Named Hour Glass



Hour Glass.

BY NANCY CABOT.

One can really determine the accuracy of the name bestowed upon this quilt by the ease and rapidity with which it is pieced. The originator of this quilt was a lonely soul who lived in a quiet old New England village. The monotony of her existence was brightened by piecing a quilt, hence the name "hour glass" for this one.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service office, One South Dearborn street.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

THE MURDERER OF DETECTIVE RYAN.

"Listen, professor," Detective Moran said, "Bill Ryan and I have worked together for over five years and a greater guy never lived. If I never do anything else in this world I'm going to get the bird that bumped him off—and I want your help."

"I know how you feel, my boy," replied Prof. Fordney. "Tell me just what happened."

"Ryan and I had been tipped that four gangsters we were after would land in a private place at Mason's airport about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. We were on hand alright and as a man stepped out of a private ship Bill walked up to him and said, "'I know you, you rat. You're——'

"Without warning the 'hood' pulled out a gun and fired and Ryan dropped to the ground—dead! While I was looking after him the four sped away in a high-powered car and——"

"Do you know the names of the four men?" questioned Fordney.

"Yes. Through inquiries in certain quarters I know them to be 'Duke' Miller, Bernie Harrison, Arthur Cranford and 'Sloppy' Burns."

"Know anything else about them?" asked the professor.

"Just this: One of them had been lookout man in several recent robberies. Harrison's 'moll' is the killer's sister, but the lookout is suspicious of him. Miller and the lookout made Burns commit forgery several times, which was all he was good for. The lookout and Ryan's murderer are great pals and that Burns split his last forgery job with the killer. That's all I know."

"Well then, Moran, you know the name of the murderer," said Fordney.

Neat Coiffure Best for Gray Haired Woman

Stringy Ends and Tight Knots Are Aging.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The advance style notices are conflicting. We hear that short skirts are due for a revival. That braided coronets and high, curled hair are on the calendar, too. You can't visualize these two style ages as other than east and west—the well known twain of opposite roads.

Hair, certainly, shows no indication yet of shingle trend. On the contrary, it's dressy and très feminine. Going higher and higher up toward the crown. Of course, for all those brilliant diadems found in Christmas stockings there must be wear and hair. By spring the fancy may have passed. I'm wondering if women have not found it more profitable to be the women fashion made them, this last year especially! One dreads that short skirt return. It so rarely is a becoming length, if ever.

The line from shoulder to ankle, says one of our leading actresses, is the line of grace. In sitting, particularly, one must try to preserve a long, slim, graceful line. The short skirt breaks that line crudely and cruelly.

But it was of short hair versus long for the gray haired woman I really started out to talk about today. A query comes from one whose hair is broken and stringy and gray. She complains of inability to keep it neat. She has let it grow "bun" length and that she thinks is not good either.

For this type of gray haired woman, the shorter cut of hair is best. Not shingled in back, but shaped nicely. And the use of a waving lotion, brilliantine, or occasional olive oil application will keep the stray ends fastened down.

One thing no head of hair can be found with today is stringy ends, and they do appear with long locks more often than with short. There's something about that knot at the back of the neck that pulls the older face and chin down more if there is any tendency to heavy jowls and doubling chin. At the same time the back of the neck cannot be shorn too sharply, for that, too, accentuates the thickening jawline.

Mothers Ought to Have Nerves of Cast Iron

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

We were saying recently that a woman needs good health to be a good mother. And we mentioned steady nerves as one of the great requisites.

It's hard on yourself and hard on your children if you're all tied up in knots—for that's one kind of nerves. Or if you're jumpy and mind it when the children shout, and bang, or knock over a chair, or break a dish—for that's the other kind of nerves.

Try to develop cast iron nerves. Unless there's some physical cause, you can do it—or almost. And it's so much more fun for both you and the children.

And later, when your boys and girls get to the big, rather rough, noisy, and often clumsy stage, cast iron nerves are a godsend. Banging doors, and mud and snow trailed in, and a chair lifted perilously over your cringing head on its way to the dining room table—chairs tipped back when they shouldn't be, unconsciously heavy whacks of affection from heavy puppy dog paws—all call for nerves that are not easily set on edge.

How to develop steady nerves—to make yourself impervious to legitimate racket and inconvenience?

First, if you're a reasonably healthy woman, look to your rest. Are you tired out most of the time? Then do something about it. Easily said, you say? But I'm not talking from theory. Get more sleep—take a nap when the children do. Neglect something if need be—call on your husband's or some one else's good services. But get rest.

Next, if you're too closely tied down—as some mothers are—get some diversion. Sometimes you are almost a prisoner when your children are young, but sometimes you're tied only because you don't manage well. Confinement makes for nerves.

And, last, get out of the habit of being made nervous by the children by disciplining yourself—for sometimes nervousness is just habit. You'll be surprised, if you try it, how you can get yourself into a state where you really don't mind the things that once upon a time used to make you first nervous, and then cranky or irritable, venting it all on the children.

Try to develop cast iron nerves—and perhaps you'll succeed in acquiring just good, steady, usable ones that are shock absorbers to yourself and a comfort to the children.

For the nervous mother our PATIENCE AND OBEDIENCE booklets are very helpful. Either will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

White Accents Dark Dresses for Daytime

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Quantities of sheer white accents for dark daytime dresses have been unpacked . . . everything for the necklines from cascading ruffles dripping with fine narrow val lace that look like glorified cavalier jabots to puritanical double collars of spanking white organdy tied circumspectly with shoestring ties of white matched to deep flared double cuffs made in the same devastating manner.

Your smartest frocks will be frosted with white . . . white, tucked, almost transparent organdies and linen, lovely wisps of embroidered nets and organdy . . . tailored piques and crisp cottons that will not wrinkle and all the marvelously refreshing new ideas in shapes and sizes.

White knife pleatings outline high throatlines, and sometimes descend the full length of a frock, hide beguilingly under full flared cuffs at wrist or elbow and do grand things toward reviving the sleek smartness of dark dresses.

There are some new hair combs that are the most romantic things you can tuck among your curls . . . longish ones with clusters of blush or white rosebuds and gardenia buds, just what you may have been dreaming about to band across the back of your neck. The scarlet buds, also clasped to combs, will dramatize either blonde or brunette as they hold clusters of curls in place.

Getting back to white things, you'll lose your heart to gleaming white satin negligees that have just arrived, long, clinging, slender models made with high swathed necklines, long flowing sleeves and long white silk tassels at the end of the tie-around belt.

Water Colors of Whorf Win Critics' Praise

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Not in some time has so instantaneously popular an exhibit come to town as the exhibition of water colors by John Whorf which opened Monday in the O'Brien galleries, 673 North Michigan avenue. Three of the water colors were sold before the formal opening and in the few days following three more have been sold.

It would seem that unless one stormed the doors soon the exhibit would be scattered to the four quarters of Chicago by right of purchase. This is a most encouraging and unusual event for these times.

John Whorf has been made familiar to most of us through his repeated brilliant entries in the International Water Color exhibitions held each spring in the Art institute. His favorite subjects are ships and the sea, preferably the blue waters that curl and foam off the white sands of Hawaii, though Gloucester claims his interest, too.

There are few men painting today who can make as much as he can of a bowsprit over a yawning chasm of green wave. Two or three dark skinned figures reefing a jib make a dramatic interlude in a John Whorf water color. His painting is virile, brilliant, spirited and colorful. It is immensely sincere and pulsing with life.

Whorf was born in Winthrop, Mass., in 1903 and began his art education when fifteen. He studied first with private teachers and then at the Boston Museum school he was for two years under Hale and James. Later he worked under Charles Hawthorne and Max Bohm.

During his extensive travels in Europe Whorf studied at Colorassi's in Paris. He is represented in all the important collections throughout the country. The Brooklyn museum, New Orleans museum, Fogg museum [Harvard], the Los Angeles museum, and the Seattle museum are among the public institutions to own examples of his genius.

Among the finest paintings in the current exhibit are "Blizzard," "Night in Winter," "Twilight," "Foggy Morning" and "Standing Nude." This exhibit is one that should not be missed. It will continue into February.

Hampden Revives "Servant in the House"

"THE SERVANT IN THE HOUSE."

A drama by Charles Rann Kennedy, revived by Walter Hampden and his repertory company in the Erlanger theater, Jan. 17, 1934, under the auspices of the American Theater society.

The cast:

Bishop of Lancashire.....Edwin Cushman
Vicar.....John D. Seymour
Vicar's Wife.....Mabel Moore
Mary.....Nan Bowan
Drain Man.....Ernest Howes
A Page-Boy.....LeRoi Operti
Manson.....Walter Hampden

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Twenty-five years ago Walter Hampden established himself as an actor of commanding talent and personality by his performance of the mysterious being called Manson, who presides over the symbolic proceedings of "The Servant in the House." Twenty-five years ago, I confess, I raved over this drama by Charles Rann Kennedy, which I saw again in the Erlanger last night with calm and disillusioned eye. I still admire Mr. Hampden, but my taste for this solemn and heavy-handed work has grown cold.

This is the play whose central character is a butler in oriental costume pretending to be Christ in a modern incarnation, although he is really the bishop of Benares, a mystical prelate who appears to have occult powers. At any rate, he is a symbol of the Christian spirit; he reads minds, makes cryptic utterances, soars into speeches of high eloquence and socialistic metaphor; and eventually straightens out the somewhat muddled affairs of his two brothers—one an Anglican vicar, the other a sore-headed plumber.

All of this was vastly impressive to the audience of a quarter of a century ago, who were inclined to accept its pseudo-mysticism as the real thing. "The Servant in the House," brilliantly acted by a cast that contained Tyrone Power, Edith Wynne Matthison, and Arthur Lewis, in addition to Mr. Hampden, toured the land to tremendous acclaim. Since its première Mr. Hampden has appeared in the rôle of Manson, the supernatural butler, more than 1,000 times.

Today I find the play's situations forced, its style portentous, its preachments in the standard pattern of socialistic cant, its story of a minor skeleton in a clergyman's closet too trivial to justify the use of the symbol of Christ reincarnated. I find that Manson himself is not an awesome presence in spite of his hints of divine powers. That holy gentleman is not above criticism as a snooper who is using false pretenses to work his spiritual reforms.

Mr. Hampden strikes me as being somewhat more ornate of costume as the man of mystery, and more obviously the actor on mystical parade, than he was in the beginning. His reading, however, is definitely new-school, and he gets fine effects out of the notable speech that describes the cathedral of universal brotherhood without stressing Mr. Kennedy's sonorous periods.

Ernest Rowan is fair as the growling cockney drain man, first acted magnificently by the mighty Tyrone Power. John D. Seymour is excellent as the troubled vicar. Edwin Cushman's bishop of Lancashire is a mere shadow of that hypocritical churchman as formerly played by Arthur Lewis. Mabel Lewis is a good successor to Miss Matthison as the wife, and Erna Rowan plays the ingenue of the story neatly.

Mr. Hampden will repeat "The Servant in the House" this evening and Saturday afternoon.

120 MILLION CUT OFF PERSONALTY TAX VALUATIONS

Slash Brings New Woes to Budget Officials.

The board of tax appeals yesterday finished totaling the 1932 personal property tax books, on which it has been hearing complaints and making revisions and announced that it had cut a total of $120,541,775 from Assessor Jacobs' original assessed valuations.

The announcement brought new woe to officials of local governments, who are struggling to balance their 1934 budgets, already saddled with heavy deficits by Assessor Jacobs' 25 per cent reduction of 1932 real estate assesments. The real estate cut was announced nearly two years after the various governments had voted tax levies and made expenditures based on the higher valuations. The new cut in valuations will add a total of more than $10,000,000 to the deficits of the city, county and school boards.

Set up Budget Estimates.

Both the city and school board had set up their estimates of revenue for 1934 budgets on Assessor Jacobs' announcement that the total valuations of all property, real estate, personalty and railroads, within the city limits, would be $2,582,351,523 for 1932. This did not take into account the personal property reductions announced yesterday, which for the city of Chicago were approximately $113,069,984, reducing the total valuations to $2,470,281,539.

While the assessment figures are for 1932, legally the budget makers must use them, as the last ones available, in estimating revenue for 1933 and 1934 as well. Having used higher figures in their 1932 and 1933 budgets they must absorb in the 1934 budgets not only the drop in current revenue for that year but the deficits created by the overestimates.

For the city government the three year deficit created by failure to anticipate the personal property revisions will total $4,477,570. City Controller Upham announced a few days ago that the city this year will have about $43,500,000 available for expenditures for corporate purposes, as against appropriations for the same purposes totaling $47,883,000 last year.

Face Cut of $8,861,000.

The new deficit means that unless the city gets an increase in its tax rate or finds other new revenue, its 1934 corporate fund expenditures must be cut to $39,022,000 a drop of $8,861,000 from the 1933 budget, which was hailed as an economy measure.

The new reduction means that for 1932, 1933 and 1934 the school board will lose tax revenue totaling $5,324,288 in its educational fund alone, all of which it must, under the law, make up before appropriating anything for this year's expenses. The board already had, according to its own officials' method of appraising potential revenue, a deficit of $6,251,691, and according to a more conservative estimate by the committee on public expenditures, one of $11,248,095.

The newly created deficit would put the board $11,575,979 in the hole according to its own figures, or $16,572,383, according to the committee's estimate of its revenue, which discounted the hope of collecting substantial sums in back rents and a higher percentage of property taxes.

County Anticipates Reduction.

Alone among the major governments, the county's fiscal officials had anticipated in part the effect of the appeals board's cuts, and by so doing they took the shock of the revenue loss in two installments. Assessor Jacobs' estimate of taxable property in the county, before revision of his personal property assessments, was $3,067,288,525. Lee Howard, county auditor, and Michael J. O'Connor, deputy county controller, set up the 1934 budget estimates on a flat $3,000,000,000 after allowing for the personalty reductions.

They fell $53,253,250 short, however, of anticipating the actual cut. Over a three year period this additional cut in valuations will cost the county a total of $489,930 in revenue.

Assessor Jacobs' personal assessments for 1932 totaled $930,714,468. The appeals board trimmed them to $810,172,693. The board also reduced the assessor's valuations of railroad personal property [other than rolling stock, which is assessed by the state tax commission] from $1,155,411 to $1,106,862. For 1931, the appeals board cut the assessor's personality valuations from $1,048,889,299 to $922,272,890, a cut of $121,166,409.

Pickle Business Better; More Lunch Pails in Use

The pickle business is picking up with the increased number of workmen carrying lunches and with the return of beer, according to delegates to the annual meeting of the National Pickle Packers' society yesterday in the Palmer house. F. D. Gorsline of Chicago, secretary of the society, said the increased consumption is indicated by the reduction of pickles on hand. At this time last year there were 5,110,000 bushels uneaten, as compared to 3,904,000 bushels on hand now.

COUNTY BOARD BEGS JUDGE TO AID TAX DRIVE

Court Overburdened, Normoyle Says.

Chief Justice Dennis J. Normoyle of the Circuit court was greeted with a barrage of questions yesterday afternoon when he appeared before the finance committee of the county board. He was invited to explain why the court has failed to assign a judge to aid in the drive against delinquent personal property taxpayers.

Before the judge and his colleague, Judge Walter J. LaBuy, who accompanied him, were settled in their seats, the commissioners began their questions. All were amplifications of the general theme, "Why can't judges coöperate in bringing revenue to local governments and particularly to the county?"

Judge Calls for Water.

When the commissioners paused for breath, the judge said quietly, "A glass of water, please." There was silence while an attaché obtained the water. Then the judge asked that he be permitted to stand at the council table and deliver a few words.

The judge spoke for a half hour. He told of the burden on his court, a crowded calender, the crime war, disparity in the number of judges as compared with the Superior court, added duties of the Circuit court and the new practice act. He closed with a plea that new cases be sent to the Superior court where there are 28 judges as against 20 in his court.

The commissioners expressed sympathy for him, but asked that he assign a judge to clear the 1,500 tax cases pending in his court. In return for this the commissioners promised that 5,000 new cases would be filed in the Superior court instead of the Circuit court.

Try, Try Again.

The judge again told the commissioners how busy the Circuit judges are. Again the commissioners expressed sympathy. In another request that an assignment be made to clear up tax cases they pointed out that judges had volunteered to join in the war on crime and should gladly join in an effort to collect money which would partially go toward maintenance of the courts. The judge began a third repetition of his speech.

The commissioners tried in vain six times to pin the judge to a definite promise. Then they abandoned their efforts, because adjournment was forced by the lateness of the hour.

As they went to their dinners the commissioners were consoled by a statement of Judge La Buy, who until his election last June was a member of the board. Judge LaBuy said he would present a motion at the meeting of the judges of the court tomorrow for the appointment of a judge to hear the cases.

The commissioners will resume their 1934 budget deliberations this morning.

THREE FIRSTS WON BY CHORUS OF SCHURZ HIGH

Schurz High school won three first place honors last night in the ninth annual choral contest for senior high schools held in Orchestra hall. Nearly 500 students participated in the competitive festival, which lasted for almost five hours. More than 2,500 persons filled the hall for the occasion. The judges were Edgar Nelson, Walter Aschenbrenner, and Rossetter E. Cole.

Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan announced the winners. They are Calumet High school, in the division of girls' glee clubs of less than 36 members; Austin, in the boys' glee clubs of the same numerical division; Marshall, in the girls' clubs having fewer than 100; Tilden, in that group of boys' clubs; Schurz won in both the boys' and girls' divisions of clubs with more than 100 members and also in the mixed choruses of more than 100, and Lindblom won first honors in the mixed choruses of fewer than 100 members.

UTILITIES DENY PERSONALTY IS UNDERASSESSED

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $206,565, making a total of $101,574,669 collectrd since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28, 1933. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
Jan. 17.....	$ 31,817	$ 40,415
Uncollected	15,546,223	41,586,361
	1930.	1931.
Jan. 17.....	$ 49,876	$ 84,457
Uncollected	65,874,595	64,946,951

The day's collections of 1931 personal Property taxes totaled $6,862.

Denial of charges that the Commonwealth Edison company and the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company were underassessed by the former state tax commission, headed by William H. Malone, on their 1931 personal property valuations was made yesterday by Attorney Francis X. Busch before County Judge Jarecki. Assistant State's Attorney Hayden N. Bell had charged Tuesday that the commission's assessments on the utility companies' intangible property were legally fraudulent.

The county is suing the Edison company for $788,003 and the gas company for $287,739, portions of their 1931 personal property tax bills which the companies refused to pay on their contentions that the assessments were excessive. Attorney Busch is expected to conclude his arguments in the companies' defense today.

FOUR ELECTION OFFICIALS ARE PLACED ON TRIAL

Mrs. Vivian Lyon, 5000 Cornell avenue, wife of Sidney Lyon, former state representative, and three other officials who served in the 30th precinct of the Fourth ward in the election of Nov. 8, 1932, went on trial yesterday before Judge J. G. Van Keuren of Duquoin in the County court on charges of making fraudulent returns.

The Heller-Masten Municipal court recount disclosed a discrepancy of 178 votes in the returns of the precinct. All of the evidence was not presented yesterday and Judge Van Keuren continued the case until Monday. The other defendants are Peter W. Taggart and Fred Kent, both of 4925 Lake Park avenue, and Nina F. Maynes, 4951 Lake Park avenue.

Mrs. Jasper S. King, president of the Cook County League of Women Voters, and Mrs. I. G. Spiesman, chairman of its nominations and elections committee, yesterday sent a letter to the board of election commissioners urging the board to scrutinize closely the list of names recommended for judges and clerks of election, and to choose those best fitted.

BIDS TO BE ASKED FEB. 1 ON RELIEF TAX WARRANTS

Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, said yesterday that the commission expects to advertise for bids on tax anticipation warrants Feb. 1 to cover future relief expenditures. The warrants are based on a state property tax levy which is to be repaid by a $30,000,000 bond issue if it passes in a referendum next November.

Mr. Reynolds said further reductions in the number of social service workers and clerks on the commission's pay roll in Cook county are anticipated when he receives word that some 25,000 men transfered to CWA jobs from the relief rolls are actually off the rolls. The reduction will be made to provide a ratio of 2 workers to every 100 cases on the relief rolls. So far about 600 workers have been discharged.

HELD ON ROBBERY CHARGES.

Municipal Judge Edward S. Scheffler yesterday held John Arnold, 23 years old, and John Demistry, 17 years old, both of 3543 Rokeby street, to the grand jury on charges of robbery and attempted robbery.

COMELY MDIVANI AID TELLS COURT OF OIL BONUSES

Third Director of Firm on Stand.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 17.—(AP)—How Princes David and Serge Mdivani built a small oil empire, voting themselves salaries and bonuses, only to see it collapse, was recounted in Superior court today by Miss Rose K. Adler.

Miss Adler, hired by the much publicized brothers as a bookkeeper, testified she was quickly promoted to the position of secretary of the Pacific Shore Oil company, of which the Mdivanis were officers and promoters, and then was made a director.

David and Serge, former husbands of Mae Murray, screen actress and dancer, and Mary McCormic, opera singer, respectively, are on trial on charges of looting the company's coffers of $30,747.

Only Three Directors.

The two brothers and Miss Adler were the only directors of the company.

After Miss Adler, an attractive brunette, had identified minutes of a directors' meeting in December, 1930, Prosecutor David L'Esperance read the account to the jury. It contained a resolution in which David and Serge voted themselves salaries of $1,000 a month each, effective the following Jan. 1. The two men also granted David, president of the company, the sum of $6,000 for his services to the company up to that time.

$11,000 for Oil Lease.

The minutes of another directors' meeting two months later disclosed that David, Serge and Miss Adler voted to pay David $11,000 for an oil lease he held. A check for $4,000, signed by David and Serge and made payable to David, was entered as evidence. Miss Adler said it represented a cash payment to David for the lease, the balance being credited to his personal account with the company, which, she added, was then overdrawn.

After Miss Adler had identified several volumes of account books, ledgers and journals of the Pacific Shore Oil company, the state sought to enter them as evidence only to meet objection on the ground the volumes had no bearing on the testimony so far. Attorneys said the records would be accepted as evidence later.

ANNOUNCE PLAN OF REFINANCING OF WEST PARKS

Announcement was made yesterday of a refunding program for the west park system. The plan is based on the enabling legislation passed by the legislature last June and provides for the issuance of $19,650,000 worth of 20 year funding and refunding bonds and a sale for cash of $2,000,000 worth of working cash fund bonds maturing in 10 years.

After the financing has been completed, Heinz said, the board will have no outstanding obligations except the bonds and $900,000 worth of 1932 tax anticipation warrants.

Heinz declared that if the plan is successful it will avoid the danger of defaults in the future and will effect the complete financial rehabilitation of the park system.

Fay Webb Names 4th Woman in Her Suit Against Vallee

Los Angeles, Jan. 17.—(AP)—A fourth "other woman" figured very recently in the life of Rudy Vallee, singer-actor, his wife, Fay Webb Vallee, charged today in the latest of a long series of court actions growing out of their estrangement.

Amending her separate maintenance suit, in which she already has accused Vallee of misconduct with Alice Faye, "blue" singer, and two "Jane Does," Mrs. Vallee asserted he associated here Jan. 4 with "Jane Doe No. 3." She also listed a dozen eastern and southern cities in which she charged that Vallee misconducted himself with Miss Faye in the last two years.

Wins Delay in Hearing.

The hearing on Mrs. Vallee's request for $7,450 monthly alimony and for an order impounding her husband's income was deferred until Wednesday on request of her lawyer, Ben Cohen.

Vallee's attorney, S. S. Zagon, said the singer's answer to the separate maintenance suit is en route by air mail from New York and should reach here in time for filing, possibly tomorrow.

After appearing here in a movie with Miss Faye, one of the members of his traveling musical troupe, Vallee left last week-end for the east. Both he and Miss Faye denied the charges in Mrs. Vallee's suit.

Need Seven Servants.

In an affidavit telling why she wants $7,450 a month, Mrs. Vallee reported she needed a retinue of seven servants and employes.

She said she should have a butler, a cook, a chef, a chauffer and a personal maid at $100 a month each. She figured a private secretary and traveling companion at $200 a month and mentioned $150 a month for a masseuse.

The item of clothes is set at $2,000 a month and $1,000 is asked for maintenance of a home, medical expenses, recreation, groceries and entertainment. Th balance of the $7,450 would go for cosmetics, jewelry, insurance, flowers, public utilities and garage bills.

Hints at More to Come.

New York, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Strewing veiled hints what is yet to come, Rudy Vallee returned to New York today.

Vallee disclosed, in winding up a series of transcontinental interviews, that "something happened" only a month after his marriage to the former Fay Webb, daughter of a Santa Monica police chief.

"I can't tell about it now," he said, mysteriously. "But it will all be told eventually.

"If the records of some of the conversations are ever printed somebody will jump out a window, and it won't be me. Some of the stuff I had to listen to," he added, "was very painful."

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Do you know

THAT if you could drive the family automobile over a highway which followed the path of Chicago's electric rates for the past twenty years, it would be downhill riding all the way?

Since 1913, COMMONWEALTH EDISON COMPANY has made six rate reductions.

The cost of living, which has never been below the 1913 level in these twenty years, but which at times has been more than double the 1913 level, is again on the upturn. At its lowest, the cost of living was 28.3 per cent. more than in 1913, and now is 37.3 per cent. above 1913 levels.

STOP THAT COLD TODAY!

Tomorrow May Make it Twice as Difficult to Relieve!

The time to stop a cold is before it gets started! A cold once rooted is a cold of danger! Don't waste your time and run the risk of serious complications by using makeshift methods.

Remember, a cold is an internal infection and, as such, calls for internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a preparation good for a number of other things besides colds.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct. It is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary. First, it opens the bowels gently but thoroughly. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack. Anything less than that is taking chances.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine.

Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Good druggists won't try to talk you into a substitute for the sake of a few pennies extra profit.

When you feel a cold coming on, get busy at once. Go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Always ask for it by the full name and look for the letters L B Q stamped on every tablet.

BLAIK NAMED DARTMOUTH FOOTBALL COACH

GRIMM TURNS POLLYANNA; NO MORE LUMBAGO

Cubs' Boss Exudes Optimism.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Charley Grimm, jovial over the Cub prospects for 1934 and forgetful of the sadness of 1933, came to town yesterday to address the customers of W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE radio station.

Throughout the day and during his 6:30 broadcast last evening Boss Charles exuded optimism. He knows Chuck Klein is going to continue as the National league batting champion, especially since he'll be hitting the new lively ball; he knows that Babe Herman's buckling up was just a one season relapse and that the Babe will be vicious in his treatment of the new ball; he is confident that Second Baseman Billy Herman will snap out of it and give Rookie Augie Galan a terrific struggle for the second base job; he is sure Bud Tinning will come to work this spring sans protruding belly and he is willing to bet a pretty penny that this is the year Kiki Cuyler will not break any bones.

Ah, Music in the Air.

Charley's optimism, which did not stop short of pennant claims, spread out over many items other than the foregoing. Charley is a modest chap, but he made it known that if he, in the rôle of the Lumbago Kid, could lead the league in fielding in 1933, he reasonably can expect to do likewise in 1934, now that his lumbago has fled. The new outlook, in so far as Grimm personally is concerned, is in the matter of hitting. Charley's miseries virtually took the bat out of his hands last year. This year, with the old muscles free and easy again, the Cub boss will be swinging his baton with all that old time musical verve and rhythm.

And speaking of music, Grimm yesterday was interrogated as to his attitude toward his $425 banjo. Last winter about this time the maestro promised this department he would pick up the instrument he had laid down when appointed manager in August, 1932. This promise was announced with illustrations, but when Charles arrived in Catalina he did not have the instrument, saying that he was so worried about his lumbago that there was no music in his soul. This department did not see or hear the banjo all last year. Nor did anybody else. Yesterday Grimm announced that the banjo positively is back in the panorama.

That Malone Matter.

Grimm tok occasion to discuss Pat Malone, the large pitching gentleman whom he sought to peddle here and there until the last hour of the winter meetings here last month. He said he believed that the knowledge that no major league teams were clamoring for his services would do much to cause Pat to take his work more seriously between games and not so seriously when he is out there in big jams. Grimm hasn't quit on Pat and indicated he will give him a good whirl next year. It will be a sort of do or die season for Malone, according to all the signs.

In some of his interviews yesterday Charley seemed to feel that he had to discuss personal alibis. He was quoted as saying the Cub front office had done everything he had asked and that he would have no alibis if the team failed to click again. It can be said for Grimm that he never was suspected of being a buck passer or alibi artist, and his promises not to be one this year come under the head of superfluous data.

Sing Sing Star Captured; He'll Play Extra Year

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Edward Jocker, who five years ago was sentenced to a seven year term in Sing Sing prison, was captured last night shortly after he had escaped from the home of Warden Lewis E. Lawes, where he worked as a dishwasher. Jocker, who played with the prison football team last fall, now must serve an extra year.

Jocker, working in Warden Lawes' home, was missed after the first inspection last night. The Lawes home is outside the prison gates. The alarm was sounded and Jocker was caught by a state trooper six miles from the prison. He is 27 years old.

Kenney Loses; Drops from Tourney Lead

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Marc Catton of Oakland, Cal., brought about the first real upset in the national three cushion billiard championship tournament tonight by inflicting upon Len Kenney of Chicago his first defeat in four games. The score was: Catton, 50; Kenney, 32.

Each player had a high run of 6. Kenney, in losing to Catton, left the 71 year old Alfredo De Oro of New York in sole possession of first place, with three victories and no defeats.

Kenney had shared the top position with De Oro after the latter defeated Robert B. Harper of Denver, 50 to 45, in seventy-five innings, in their meeting this afternoon.

Kenney's loss dropped him into a three way tie for second place with Kinrey Matsuyama and Arthur Woods of New York, each of the trio having won three and lost one.

Matsuyama of New York in the other afternoon game defeated Earl Lookabaugh of Chicago, 50 to 43, in forty-six innings.

Standings after tonight's game:

	W.	L.	HR.	G.	TP.	Tin.
Alfredo De Oro, New Yk.	3	0	6	52	150	191
K. Matsuyama, N. Y.	3	1	6	55	192	244

O'DOUL PREDICTS PRO BASEBALL FOR JAPAN SOON

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Organized professional baseball in Japan within a year was forecast today by Frank [Lefty] O'Doul, outfielder of the world's champion New York Giants.

"They have plenty of talent graduating from the universities and colleges and that timber will increase, naturally. The interest is so hot that professional baseball ought to pay well," O'Doul said.

File Bill to Foreclose on Chicago Riding Club

A bill for foreclosure was filed yesterday in the Circuit court against the Chicago Riding club, Ontario street and McClurg court, by Ernest and Allan M. Loeb and Gardner H. Stern, owners of a $500,000 mortgage bond issue which the club sold in 1928. The bill charges that the club has defaulted on two semi-annual interest payments, and owes $48,000 in 1929, 1930, and 1931 taxes. County Judge Jarecki recently appointed a receiver for the club under the Kerner-Kkarda act to collect the delinquent 1929 and 1930 taxes.

In the Wake of the News

WAKE LETTER BOX.

DEAR WAKE: I am wondering if it is possible for you to put in a plug for single wall handball courts in public parks, these courts to be erected by the CWA.

Such courts would entail practically no expense except the original outlay for cement and labor. As the CWA heads are looking for projects on which to work, I can think of nothing more practical and beneficial.

Handball is exceedingly popular wherever there are courts. With courts in every park, city-wide tourneys would result. The sport requires no outlay except a 10 cent rubber ball and is one of the most healthful and invigorating exercises. Hoping this idea will bear fruit. Handball Fan.

Zeal.

The chilling breath of sad finality
Forewarned the hill's lone maple in the night,
And then, arrayed in armor rich and bright,
It meets the reaping winds resignedly.
Each tossing branch uplifts a beaten flame
That mellows with invasion of the frost,
And loyal still to beauty's mission, lost,
Bespeaks the valorous stem from which it came.

O, heart of mine, should cruel winds assail
The cherished legions that you love and prize,
Select becoming armor for the gale,
And, spirit, meet the foe with ready eyes;
Nor fail to let the voice of fate reveal

WILLIAMS ASKS IOWA OFFICIALS TO FIND STARS

Iowa City, Ia., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Rollie Williams, University of Iowa basketball coach, today appealed to authorities to detain Bud Froning and Duane Swanson, freshmen athletes, who left here yesterday presumably to enroll in the University of Southern California.

Williams said he desired to contact the missing athletes personally in an effort to persuade them to remain at the University of Iowa.

The pair first decided to leave Monday, but encountered Ossie Solem, football coach, at the railroad station and promised to remain. Yesterday they were reported seen taking a westbound freight.

Swanson, who came here from Waterman, Ill., was regarded as the outstanding candidate on the freshman squad, and Froning was a star football and basketball player at Webster City high school.

RANGERS BATTLE HAWKS TONIGHT FOR FIRST PLACE

Defeat May Drop Chicago to Third.

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The Chicago Blackhawks and the world champion New York Rangers, who are tied for first place in the United States section of the National Hockey league, meet tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden.

Both teams were the surprised victims of weak teams in the league last night. The Rangers' defeat at the hands of the Americans was the more startling of the two, despite the fact that the Blackhawks lost to the Montreal Maroons in a game in which eleven goals were scored on Goalies Kerr and Gardiner to tie the season's record, established when Toronto whipped the Maroons, 8 to 3, Dec. 2, and Ottawa defeated Boston, 9 to 2, on Jan. 4.

Maroon Game Puzzles.

The Maroons-Blackhawks game will undoubtedly find a permanent place in the record book. That a hockey team, particularly one famed for its defense, could lose a game after being in the lead five times is something experts and fans will have difficulty forgetting. When consideration is given the fact that three of the Maroon goals were made on unassisted plays against a goalie who allowed only 28 goals in 24 games the final result is even more puzzling. It's a long time since Chuck Gardiner, the league's leading goalie, plucked the puck from the nets so many times in one evening.

The Hawks and Rangers have met three times this season. The first game was played in Chicago and was won by the Hawks, 1 to 0. The second, in New York, went to the world champions, also by a 1 to 0 score, when, in the closing minutes of the game, Center Frank Boucher let go of a wild shot from the blue line which accidentally hit the stick of Art Coulter, Hawks' defense player, and was deflected into Gardiner's net. The third game, played in Chicago, finished in a 1 to 1 tie.

Third Place Nears.

Should the Rangers and the Detroit Red Wings win their games tomorrow night the Hawks will drop to third place in the division's standings. They have not been lower than second since the start of the season.

Tomorrow's game will find the Ranger quintet of Murray Murdoch, Bill Cook, Frank Boucher, Bun Cook, and Ching Johnson stretching its all time professional hockey record for play on one team to 398 consecutive games. These men were members of the original Ranger team which started play in New York in 1926. During their tenure in New York, which also represents all their play in the National league, they have set an all-time scoring record of more than 800 points.

Murdoch Is Baby.

Murdoch is the youngest member of the group. He went to the Rangers from the amateurs. Ching Johnson also came from the amateurs, but is considered a product of organized hockey, having come up from the American Amateur Hockey association, which plays a regular championship schedule. The Cook brothers and Boucher were taken from the Pacific Coast league when the Rangers were organized. This trio has constituted the Rangers' first line for years.

Golden Gloves Coach to Speak on W-G-N Tonight

Johnny Behr, head coach of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Golden Gloves championship, boxing team will give the first of a series of four talks on the proper training methods for beginners, the fundamentals of boxing, and the Chicago Golden Gloves tournament tonight on the W-G-N sports hour with John [Speed] Harrington, the sports reporter.

The talk will be heard at 6:30 o'clock. The second one is scheduled for Monday, Jan. 22; the third for Thursday, Jan. 25, and the final talk on Monday, Jan. 29. These talks should prove beneficial both to novice and experienced fighters who will be competing in the Golden Gloves sectional tournaments.

CARNERA DOCKS, BUT STYMIES HIS CAR LEAVING SHIP

Predicts He'll Put Loughran Away Early.

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Hatless and smiling, Primo Carnera returned from his native Italy today for what he hopes will be two battles in defense of his world's heavyweight championship in America. One of these battles is right at hand. The huge Italian is to meet Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia's veteran former light heavyweight champion, in a 15 round struggle at Miami on Feb. 22.

PRIMO CARNERA.

The other title bout is as yet only in prospect. It is proposed to pair Carnera with Max Baer in June here. But complex details remain to be arranged before this bout is closed. Both matches are to be under the direction of the Madison Square Garden corporation.

Under Contract Until Sept. 30.

Carnera is bound to the Garden by contract until Sept. 30 and, although his contract calls only for his "first" defense of the crown in America, it has been extended to include the Loughran scrap as merely incidental. The big match will be with Baer when and if it is arranged.

Accompanying Carnera on the journey from Italy were his brother, Severino and two sparring partners, Harold Mays of Bayonne, N. J., and Arthur Huttick, local heavyweight who joined Carnera in Italy for his fight last October against Paulino Uzcudun.

Albert Yuzzolino, his attorney manager of record, and James J. Johnston and L. Porter Moore of the Garden staff journeyed down the bay on the revenue cutter to greet the champion at Quarantine. Louis Soresi, associated with Bill Duffy in the management of Carnera, did not make the return journey to America with the champion. It was said private business matters delayed Soresi, who plans to return on the liner Rex later.

Confer with Kilpatrick.

Tonight Carnera, with Yuzzolino and Duffy, were in conference with John Reed Kilpatrick, Garden president, discussing the approaching Miami battle and plans for the proposed clash with Baer in June. Kilpatrick has an appointment with Ancil Hoffman, manager of Baer, for tomorrow, when he expects to be in a position to announce something definite.

Carnera, weighing 270 pounds despite regular workouts at his father's home in Sequals, Italy, and on the ship coming over, expressed confidence in his ability to batter Loughran into submission and predicted also that he would surprise those who thought he would be an easy victim for Baer.

The only untoward incident in connection with his arrival came when Carnera tried to run his expensive American made sedan off the ship instead of having it rolled off. The champion stymied the car between pillars and walls and had literally to be hoisted bodily off the ship while sitting at the wheel by a human derrick of about 20 husky longshoremen.

Sees Quick K. O. for Loughran.

Carnera made it plain that he entertains no fear of Loughran. And he showed little respect for Baer's hitting strength, though it claimed Max Schmeling as a victim last summer.

"I will seek a quick knockout against Loughran," said the champion. "I know he is fast and that he is clever, too. But I am fast and clever, and I have what Loughran hasn't—youth. I am familiar with Loughran's style because I saw him in several of his bouts, among them the matches with Sharkey and Schaaf. I give him due credit, too, for beating men like Baer, Campolo, and Impellittiere, who are all bigger than himself.

"But I expect him to get on his bicycle and try to stay the 15 rounds with me. I must catch up with him some time, however, and when I do it will be just too bad."

ASSISTANT ON ARMY'S STAFF FILLS VACANCY

Ellinger, Gustafson His Aids.

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Earl H. (Red) Blaik of Dayton, O., former assistant coach to Lieut. Gar Davidson at West Point, today was appointed head football coach at Dartmouth college to fill the position vacated recently by Jackson Cannell. The appointment of Blaik was made only after thorough consideration had been given to more than 100 candidates.

Blaik's assistants will be Harry Ellinger of West Point, who coached Army lines in recent years, and Andrew Gustafson of the University of Pittsburgh, back field coach under Dr. John (Jock) Sutherland.

Although Blaik has long been known to those in the inner circle of football as a brilliant strategist and an able teacher, it has been only in the last few years that the gridiron public became conscious of his talents. Under Maj. Ralph Sasse, as well as Lieut. Davidson, Blaik was given complete command of the offense and the defense of the Army elevens. The ingenious strategy of Army's plays, the power of its attack, and the remarkable success of the team in recent years, caused the spotlight of public attention to be focused on the Army assistant.

Played Under George Little.

Shortly before the United States entered the war, Blaik was a student at Miami university at Oxford, O. There, under the supervision of George Little, who is now athletic director at Rutgers university, he played end.

From Miami, Blaik went to West Point, where he distinguished himself as a student, and all around athlete. He played end on the army team, and was mentioned as an alternate on several all-star teams. At graduation he was awarded the saber, the highest award a cadet can attain at the United States Military academy.

When George Little went to Wisconsin as head coach he asked Blaik to come to Madison to assist him. At Wisconsin the former army player coached the ends. From Wisconsin Blaik went to West Point at the behest of Capt. Biff Jones and continued to develop brilliant ends. With the advent of Maj. Sasse, Blaik's horizon was widened by reason of the fact that he was given entire command of the army offense as well as the defense, and under the present army coach, Lieut. Davidson, Blaik enjoyed the same authority.

Changes Army Attack.

Blaik transformed the loose ordered offense of the Chris Cagle era into a compact, cleverly conceived attack. Outweighed ten to fifteen pounds a man in nearly every game it played, Army last season swept through all opposition, with the exception of Notre Dame, and lost to that team only by a single point.

Ellinger, named as an assistant to Blaik, is 31 years old, a graduate of West Point in 1925. He failed to get his commission because his heart would not pass the rigid army tests, but he stayed at West Point as assistant football coach, leaving only to coach at Oregon in 1926 and then returning to the Point. He was a star guard at Army as a cadet.

Gustafson was a star full back at Pittsburgh, getting honorable mention on all-star teams of 1925. Subsequently he became head coach at Virginia Polytechnic, remaining there until 1930, when he returned to Pittsburgh as back field coach.

The signing of Blaik, which was witnessed here by Clarence G. McDavitt and Eddie Dooley of the Dartmouth Athletic council, marks the first time since the graduate system of coaching was inaugurated in 1901 that Dartmouth has gone outside of its alumni ranks for a football leader.

SORRY TO LOSE THEM.

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—While Army officials remained silent on the successors of Earl [Red] Blaik and Harry Ellinger, Lieut. Gar Davidson, head coach of the cadet football team, said Dartmouth was fortunate in obtaining the services of "two of the finest coaches in the game."

"I consider Red Blaik one of the finest football strategists and Harry Ellinger the best line coach in the country," Lieut. Davidson said. "Dartmouth is very fortunate in obtaining their services. I hate to see them go, but I sincerely hope they meet with every success."

Blaik and Ellinger were unsigned for the 1934 season. They were the only two civilian members of the West Point coaching staff.

C. Y. O. BOXERS TO APPEAR AT SHOW TONIGHT

Ex-Notre Dame Stars to Be Introduced Also.

The Catholic Youth organization's 16 amateur boxing champions and runners-up will make their first public appearance tonight at C. Y. O. center, 31 East Congress street, since they fought an 8 all tie with a combined Los Angeles-San Francisco team on the coast last week. The boxers returned yesterday morning.

Tonight at the C. Y. O. center these boys and a score of former Notre Dame football players will be introduced between bouts at an amateur show.

The 1933 C. Y. O. champions and runners-up are:

Among the former Notre Dame men who will appear are: Tim Moynihan, Bill Pearce, Bert Metzger, Marchmont Schwartz, Al Culver, Joe Kurth, Chuck Collins, Norman Barry, Dr. John Mohardt, Fred Collins, Dutch Bergman, and Bill Maher. The card:

Joe Pyzik vs. Frank Kausak, 160; Jim Kileen vs. Mickey Beal, 118; Tony Sarnos vs. Frank de Michaels, 126; Ed Milaski vs. Jake Lumpkins, 145; Bob Wiley vs. Jackie Sullivan, 120; Claude Hinderlider vs. Dennie Jones, 142; John Hawthorne vs. Warren Pumphries, 165; John Brown vs. Phil Mario, 118.

Johnny Terry, Virginia welterweight, will head the show tomorrow night at the Rainbo Fronton against Jackie Purvis, Indianapolis. The match is set for eight rounds at 151 pounds.

Karl Ogren and Solly Dukelsky, local middleweights, have started drills for their 10 round match at Arcadia Gardens next Wednesday. . . . Mickey O'Shea, 147 pounds, yesterday was suspended for 30 days by the Wisconsin Athletic commission for failing to appear against Billy Miller at Milwaukee, Jan. 1. . . . Twenty amateur boxers from St. Philip High school will appear in matches tonight at Edward Hines hospital.

Mickey Joy, local lightweight, yesterday signed to face Johnny Stroppa of Winnipeg, Man., in the feature match Monday at Marigold Gardens. Jimmy Cummings and Mickey Misko, middleweights, accepted a four round preliminary bout. . . . Paddy Waltier replaces Henry Rothier against Young Terry at Davenport, Ia., tonight. Lenny Cohen will substitute for Jimmy Eliopoulos against Johnny Baltzer in a supporting encounter. . . . The Seal Harris-Frankie Simms fight, scheduled at Ypsilanti, Mich., Jan. 25, last night was indefinitely postponed.

Officials of the interclub amateur tournament between Belle Plaine Athletic club and C. Y. O. boxers at St. Hilary's hall, California avenue and Bryn Mawr, Feb. 8, were named yesterday. They are:

Referees—Johnny Behr, Dave Barry. Judges—R. A. Goudie, Rube Metz, J. A. Bray, Edward A. Hintz. Timer—Charles E. Sidebotham.

Johnny Coulon, former bantamweight champion, and Johnny Phagan and Leo Rodak, former Golden Gloves titleholders, will appear. Coulon will present his lifting act.

The Northeastern Ohio A. A. U. has announced that the Cleveland Golden Gloves tournament will be held early next month. The winners will compete in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions at the Stadium on Feb. 26, 27, and 28. . . . Jackie Davis, welterweight, faces Cocoa Kid at New Haven, Conn., tonight.

Northwest gymnasium yesterday added four more boxers to the original team of 18 for the second annual amateur boxing tournament at the Illinois Athletic club next Wednesday and Thursday. They are John Helstrom, 118 pounds; Chris Schussler, 175; Frank Beran, 135, and Paul Stewart, 160. Another bantamweight is Walt Dean, Oak Park. Carl Kohny, C. Y. O., may be Schussler's hardest opponent in the light heavyweight division. Beran joins Harold Brown, J. P. L., and Joe Mileski of the Rolawelsz A. C. in the lightweight ranks. Stewart's toughest competition probably will come from Lewis Merwin of Woodstock, Ill., and Joe Pyzik, C. Y. O. Entries for the meet will close Saturday.

Physical examination for all entrants in the Jewish Organized Youths' amateur tournament at the Jewish People's institute Feb. 5 and 6 will be given Sunday afternoon. After the examinations the boys are to go through a series of exercises. Tonight the Coulon gymnasium, 1154 East 63d street, will be open to south side Jewish boxers who wish training facilities. F. M.

SEEK TWELFTH VICTORY.

The Hannin-Klein basketball team will seek their twelfth consecutive victory when they meet the Goldes at the Tuley High school gymnasium, Claremont and Potomac streets, tomorrow night. In a preliminary game the Spencer Coals girls' quintet will play the Racine, Wis., Printerettes.

Ill. Wesleyan Beats Millikin for 7 in Row

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Illinois Wesleyan retained first place in the Little Nineteen conference basketball race by defeating Millikin, 56 to 33, tonight. The victory was Wesleyan's fourth straight in the conference and seventh in a row this season.

Paul Weger, sophomore forward from Lawrenceville, sank nine baskets and two free throws for 20 points. Delmar Cox, freshman center for Millikin, third high scorer in the Little Nineteen, had six baskets and five free throws.

Wesleyan took a 12 to 6 lead midway in the first half, but Millikin closed the gap to 12 to 11. Weger then connected three times from the field and led Wesleyan in a rally that gave the Titans a 30 to 14 margin at half time. Score:

CARTHAGE ROUTS BRADLEY.

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Bradley lost its sixth straight basketball game tonight when Carthage took a Little Nineteen conference contest, 42 to 12. It was one of the worst defeats ever suffered by Bradley. Markel of Carthage sank ten field goals and two free throws.

M'KENDREE WINS, 36-30.

Alton, Ill., Jan. 17.—(AP)—McKendree went on a scoring spree in the final minutes to defeat Shurtleff, 36 to 30, in a Little Nineteen conference game tonight. Wilson and Stroh led the McKendree attack with 15 and 12 points, respectively, while Campbell was high for Shurtleff with 10 points.

BAER LOSES IN FIGHT TO FIRE TWO MANAGERS

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Max Baer lost another court fight today in his efforts to rid himself of a couple of managers, the State Supreme court ruling the actor-boxer had no right to discharge Ancil Hoffman and J. H. Lorimer.

The fighter on Oct. 6, 1930, entered into a contract with Lorimer and Hoffman in which they were to manage him and operate on a 50-50 basis, Baer getting half the profits and the two managers splitting the rest.

The contract was to continue until Feb. 29, 1936, with an option for a five year extension if Baer was paid $5,000. The half-and-half division of profits was to be effective except in states where the laws prevented it.

Baer notified his managers Nov. 12, 1931, that he wanted to cancel the contract, giving thirteen reasons, alleging various violations of contract, including the charge that the 50-50 division of profits was in violation of the California boxing law.

BAILEY LEAVES FOR HOME WITH WIFE, DAUGHTER

Newton, Mass., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Irvin [Ace] Bailey, Toronto hockey player who was severely injured in a game at Boston, Dec. 12, boarded a Toronto-bound train here today after being discharged from the Boston City hospital. He was accompanied by his wife, their four year old daughter and Mrs. Bailey's mother.

Bailey suffered a fractured skull and two delicate operations were performed upon his brain by Dr. Donald Munro.

Although Dr. Munro, who said Bailey has made a complete recovery, was unwilling to state whether the hockey player would ever be able to resume his profession, Bailey's friends said he realized he never would play hockey again.

HELEN JACOBS JOINS FORCES FOR OPEN NET MEET

Boston, Mass., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Impressed by the marked improvement Bruce Barnes has made since he turned professional, Helen Jacobs, women's national tennis champion, today joined the forces that are urging an open tournament.

"The opportunity of playing with opponents like Tilden, Richards, Nusslein and Kozeluh," she said, "has tremendously aided Bruce Barnes' game, which could only be called very good as an amateur, but now has reached a state approaching greatness.

"What professional tennis, by competitive example, has done for Barnes it could do for other young players in the amateur field."

Lake Shore Swimmers to Meet Two Other Teams

A swimming meet bringing together girls from three cities and the leading men swimmers of the central states will be held at the Lake Shore Athletic club pool on Jan. 26. The meet will be the second in the series of contests between the L. S. A. C. girls and the Milwaukee A. C. and the Indianapolis A. C. In addition to the girls' events, men swimmers from the University of Chicago, Northwestern university, Jewish People's institute, Shawnee Country club, the Illinois A. C., and the L. S. A. C. will compete. Wally Colbath and Jane Fauntz, former Olympic stars, will give diving exhibitions.

Burke Made Assistant Gopher Baseball Coach

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Edmund Burke, Minneapolis, captain of the 1933 Minnesota Big Ten champions, has been made assistant varsity baseball coach and head freshmen coach, Athletic Director Frank McCormick announced today. As a first baseman and outfielder, Burke played three seasons with the Gophers.

Ushers' Basketball Team to Play Elks Monday

The Frain Ushers will meet the Elks basketball team Monday night at St. Philip High school gymnasium, Jackson boulevard and Kedzie avenue. The Elks have won their last seven games. The Frain Cadets will play the Buckley-Dement quintet in a preliminary game.

Aunt Flor Pays $40.90 to Win Miami Purse

Miami, Fla., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Aunt Flor, owned by the Middleburg stable of Mrs. William Ziegler Jr., was a longshot winner of the featured Fort Lauderdale purse at Tropical Park today. The daughter of Our General and Quick Batter scored by half a length at $40.90 for $2, and finished the five and one-half furlongs over a fast track in 1:06 flat. Black Harmony and Croon, second and first choices respectively, finished two, three, a length dividing them.

Joseph E. Widener, owner of Hialeah Park, was a visitor, giving further evidence of the healing of the breach between himself and William V. Dwyer, the latter owner of Tropical Park. There had been a disagreement over dates for the last two seasons.

Widener and Dwyer and the other spectators saw five favorites go down to defeat, one of the two surviving being the 13 to 20 chance Jim Crawford, named for the New York state senator.

Jim Crawford attracted practically all of the play in the curtain raiser and was handled by Johnny Gilbert. The favorite was largely responsible for a six minute delay at the gate but when the break came he was off flying. Some of the others did not get away so well, the start being ragged.

The string of longshots began in the second when Godfrey Preece's Energetic Boy won by three lengths at $26.80 for $2.00. Energetic Boy ran back to several good races shown on the metropolitan tracks.

LONDOS, SAVOLDI CLEAR WAY FOR THEIR CONTEST

Jim Londos and Joe Savoldi, who will meet in a return wrestling match at the Chicago Stadium on Jan. 31, have been forced to cancel two previous engagements each.

Following signing articles, Ed White, manager of Londos, found that it was necessary for him to rearrange Londos' schedule for the balance of January in order to go through with the Savoldi match. Londos will not engage in a match for at least five days before his engagement with Savoldi.

Savoldi on the other hand intends to cancel engagements for an entire week prior to the Londos match to get in shape.

Guy Bush to Appear in Aurora Benefit Show

Guy Bush, Chicago Cubs' pitcher, will appear at a benefit performance at the Paramount theater in Aurora Saturday night. Proceeds of the show will be turned over to the widows of the three firemen who were killed while fighting the Woolworth store fire last week. Several other major league baseball players also will appear.

GAMES TODAY.
[Heavyweight.]
Fenger at Bowen.
Morgan Park at Hirsch.
Calumet at Hyde Park.
Tilden Tech at Phillips.
Englewood at Manley.
Farragut at Kelly.
Lindblom at Harrison.
Crane Tech at McKinley.
Schurz at Austin.

Lake View's lightweights, led by Halleb, forward, who scored five field goals and seven free throws, defeated Lane Tech, 29 to 21, at Lake View yesterday for its first victory in the north section of the Chicago Public High School league. It was Lane Tech's first defeat.

Lane, which was made one of the favorites to win the sectional title because of its brilliant performances in the practice season, failed to break through the Lake View defense. Lane made only three field goals, Frys, Marger, and Swanson each scoring one.

Parker Beats Harper.

Foreman suffered its second defeat in the west section, losing, 34 to 16, at Marshall. Glickman and Goldman, forwards, led the Marshall attack. Glickman collected eight field goals and Goldman got three with as many free throws.

Parker triumphed over Harper, 31 to 19, at Parker in the only other league game yesterday. The victory sent Parker into a tie for first place in the south section. Jorgenson, center, and Bowman, forward, starred for Parker, the former getting four baskets and three free throws and Bowman scoring four baskets and one free throw.

Heavies Play Today.

In a nonleague contest Waller's lightweights won from McKinley, 31 to 25, at McKinley. Harvard defeated Morgan Park Military academy in a pair of games at Harvard. The heavyweights triumphed, 15 to 6, and the lightweights, 18 to 16.

Heavyweight quintets in the Chicago Public High School league resume competition today. Nine games will be played. Lindblom and Harrison will battle for the central section lead at Harrison. Englewood and Manley meet in another central division contest.

NORTH CENTRAL SEEKS VICTORY OVER WHEATON

North Central college basketball team will play Wheaton college Saturday at Naperville. Wheaton has won seven of nine games and has a considerable height advantage, but North Central is confident of winning.

Glover, Lawrence, Bass and Gray were all outstanding for Wheaton on an eastern trip in which six out of eight games were won. Wheaton has lost to DeKalb and has defeated Elmhurst. North Central beat Wheaton twice last year.

Yale Swimmers Set Two Collegiate Marks

Middleton, Conn., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Yale swimmers set two new national intercollegiate records tonight as they defeated Wesleyan, 45 to 33.

David Livingston of Honolulu completed the 220 yard swim in 2:12 2-5 to surpass the old record of 2:15 3-10, set March 4, 1932, by Schmieler of the Univeristy of Michigan. Walter Savell Jr. of Forest Hills, N. Y., did the 200 yard breast stroke in 2:29 2-5, to better the old record of 2:30 1-5, made March 18, 1933, by Horn of Northwestern.

$25,000 Blaze Destroys St. Louis Rowing Clubhouse

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 17.—(AP)—The clubhouse of the Central Rowing club, overlooking the Mississippi river, was destroyed by fire tonight. The loss was estimated as $25,000 by Ray Brunk, president, who said he believed all insurance policies had been allowed to lapse last month. Walter Laux, watchman, and his 11 year old daughter, Arline, escaped from their second floor quarters by leaping 20 feet to the ground. Both were slightly injured.

You'll See the Same Giant Team in '34

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The New York Giants' official 1934 player rosters, released today, revealed the names of only three players who were not with the club at some time last season. In the spring of 1933 the Giant roster was scarcely recognizable as a result of the sweeping changes Manager Bill Terry had made the preceding winter.

In all, 32 players, including Terry, will report at Miami Beach on March 1, when the world's champions will launch their 1934 training campaign. That is the date set for the entire squad to swing into action, although Manager Terry indicated a few days ago that in view of the 35 game schedule which will start on March 9 he may ask the pitchers to report a few days earlier.

Eleven Are Pitchers.

The squad will comprise 11 pitchers, four catchers, ten infielders, and seven outfielders. Tom Clarke and Frank Snyder have again been reëngaged as coaches and Willie Schaefer again will be the trainer.

One of the newcomers is Pitcher Joe Bowman, the 6 foot 2 inch right-hander who was purchased at the close of the season from the Portland club of the Pacific Coast league. For Portland last year, Bowman won 23 games, lost 11, pitched in 38 and turned in 25 complete games.

Expect Two to Star.

The rest of the staff is about the same as that which closed the 1933 season when it revealed itself the most powerful in either major league. Carl Hubbell again will be flanked by Freddy Fitzsimmons, Roy Parmelee and Hal Schumacher, with Hi Bell, Bill Clark and Adolfo Luque heading the relief squad, along with Bill Shores, who was recalled last fall after being out on option with Kansas City.

Also on the list are the two youngsters of whom Terry expects satisfactory results this year. One is Johnny Salveson, the Los Angeles high school boy who put himself under John McGraw's wing in 1932, and the other is Al Smith, the 23 year old left hander whom Terry named a coach last year in order to keep the young man under his observation for the entire season.

Hubbell Signs; Given Raise.

Hubbell's signed contract was received by Secretary Jim Tierney today. Thus Carl becomes not only the first, aside from Manager Terry, to come to terms for 1934, but also, it was reported, the highest salaried pitcher ever to wear a Giant uniform. While no official figures were available, it is understood that Carl will receive $18,000 for next season's labors, an increase, also understood, of about $6,000.

Hubbell, whose home is at Meeker, Okla., was the National league's most effective pitcher in 1933 with an earned run average of 1.66. He scored the most victories, 23; pitched the most innings, 309, and led in shutouts with ten. One of these was an 18 inning performance against the Cardinals. Added to this he pitched 46 consecutive scoreless innings, an all time record.

4,000 TO WATCH TILDEN-VINES MATCH SATURDAY

A heavy advance sale for the Tilden-Vines tennis match at the Broadway armory Saturday night indicates that the pair will play before a capacity crowd of 4,000. The demand for tickets has been heavier than at any previous appearance here of Tilden and his professional entourage.

The ability of Vines to defeat his veteran opponent in two of their five matches to date has quickened the interest of the fans. With their series still in its early stages, Vines already boasts a better record over Tilden than any other player. In the match at Washington he won three out of four sets and repeated this victory at Boston.

Vincent Richards and Bruce Barnes will play a singles match as a preliminary to the main attraction between Tilden and Vines. Both Richards and Barnes were high ranking amateurs before they turned professional.

Announce Polo Lineups for Indoor Games

Lineups of the two Chicago polo teams which will oppose invaders from Wisconsin Saturday night at the 124th Field Artillery, Cottage Grove avenue and 52d street, were announced yesterday. The games will mark the third round of the Metropolitan Indoor league's tournament.

The Sixth Corps Area trio, which will ride against Copt. G. L. Ferguson's Green Bay Rustlers, will be composed of Lieut. John L. Hines Jr., at No. 1; Capt. C. E. [Stub] Davis, team captain, at No. 2, and Lieut. Larry G. Smith at back. This combination took the lead in the senior division two weeks ago by defeating the 124th Field Artillery.

Capt. Leo B. Callahan of the Chicago Shamrocks will lead his team into battle against the Milwaukee Badgers from the No. 2 key position. He is to be flanked by Lieut. J. C. McNulty at No. 1 and Capt. Leslie R. Ireland at back.

FIVE RED FABERS OF HOCKEY MEET HAWKS

Five New York Ranger stars (left to right): Murray Murdoch, Bill Cook, Frank Boucher, Bun Cook, and Ching Johnson, who play their 398th consecutive game for the New York team tonight when they meet Blackhawks for the American division lead at Madison Square Garden. Their affiliation with the Rangers established a hockey record for continuous employment by one team, to which they have added an all time scoring record of more than 800 points. Bring Snow for National Ski Tourney

Freight cars loaded with 30,000 cubic feet of snow will arrive in Chicago today to provide a suitable footing for contestants in the national ski jumping championship tournament at Fox River Grove, Ill., Sunday. Transporting snow from northerly regions to guard against postponement of its tournaments is an annual stratagem of the Norge Ski club, which is sponsoring the national title competition.

As a result of this plan to overcome the vagaries of Chicago's winter climate the Norge club has been able to hold its tournaments on the scheduled date since 1919. Two years ago the annual meet was staged despite an all night rain and warm sun that sent the temperature soaring to 65 degrees while the meet was in progress.

To Cover Slide, Slope.

The snow will be spread over the surface of the 115 foot steel scaffold atop Cary hill and the 225 foot landing slope.

The Norge club has increased its shipment of snow by 5,000 cubic feet for the meet Sunday, although forced to go 450 miles north to Escanaba, Mich., because of the recent mild weather in this section.

Roy Mikkleson, former Chicagoan who has been representing Auburn, Cal., for three years, will arrive tomorrow to defend his national championship. Mikkleson last Sunday took first place in a meet held on a new ski hill at Berkeley, Cal. In this event, also held on transplanted snow, Mikkleson easily won the major prize. His team mate, Rolf Wigaard, who also will compete in the national meet here, finished a close second.

Four Tourney Winners.

Thus four winners of tournaments held during the last two weeks will compete in the Norge meet. Sverre Fredheim of Minneapolis won the central title and Lemoine Batson of the Norge club, took the Wausau, Wis. meet, by setting a new record for that hill last Sunday. Guttorm Paulsen, also of the Norge team, won the Oconomowoc, Wis. tournament a week before. He was injured while practicing for the central meet, but will be in condition for the national contest.

Manchester Wins from Valparaiso Five, 37-34

Valparaiso, Ind., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Manchester defeated Valparaiso, 37 to 34, tonight. Manchester led, 25 to 13, at half time on accurate shooting of Snider, but Valparaiso rallied to tie the score at 26 with ten minutes left in the second half. Manchester then regained control of the ball and pulled away.

Shields Advances to 3d Round in Montreal Meet

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 17.—Frank Shields of New York, defending champion, advanced to the third round of the Canadian men's indoor tennis tournament today. He defeated H. G. Marpole, Montreal, 6-2, 6-2, after having drawn a bye in the first round.

Los Angeles Flyer Sets World Mark for Single Seater

Miles flew the 100 kilometer [62.137 miles] closed course at an average of 209.11 miles an hour, bettering by the slight margin of 1.80 miles an hour the record speed of 207.392 miles by the French pilot, Delmette, over the Etampes course on May 22, 1933.

The west coast pilot, who designed and built the tiny four cylinder motored monoplane in which he won the record, also established a United States mark in what previously was an unrecorded distance for this country, National Aeronautical association officials said.

Miles said he would overhaul his plane tomorrow and leave for New Orleans either tomorrow afternoon or Friday. He came here for the all-American air meet and decided to make his record attempt when N. A. A. engineers established a 100 kilometer course here.

WONDERBOLTS TO PLAY SCHWABEN TEAM SUNDAY

Wieboldt's Wonderbolts, professional soccer team, will meet the Schwaben A. C. at Olympia park, 47th avenue and 19th street Sunday.

The Wieboldts entered the second round of the national cup competition last Sunday by winning from the Swedish-Americans, 5 to 1. Schwaben is tied for the leadership of the International league.

Jimmy McLarnin Seeks Middleweight Crown

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Jimmy McLarnin, world's welterweight champion, arrived here today from Vancouver, B. C., and announced himself as a candidate for Vince Dundee's middleweight crown. McLarnin said he will spend a week in Berkeley, then go on to Los Angeles to confer with his manager, Pop Foster, in regard to a proposed bout with Dundee in Miami, Fla., in March.

Jockey Fails to Appear for Narcotic Law Violation

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Willie Williams, St. Louis Negro jockey, accused on three counts for violation of the narcotic laws, failed to appear in federal court today when his case was called and Judge Charles G. Briggle ordered his $2,500 bond forfeited. Williams was arrested last spring at the Fairmount race track at Collinsville. A bench warrant was issued for Williams, who is said to be at New Orleans.

St. Ambrose Defeats Columbia Five, 51-26

Quebec Team Here Today to Play All-Stars

Two of the outstanding amateur teams of Canada and United States will meet at the Coliseum tonight when the Quebec Amateurs engage the Chicago All-Stars.

The Quebec team will arrive in Chicago this morning in charge of President J. C. Harvey and Secretary E. Piche of the Quebec Amateur Hockey association. The Quebec party of 20 carries plenty of weight and are better than average in height. All reported without injuries and the squad will be at full strength against the All-Stars.

A. Boucher in Nets.

Boucher, the Quebec goalie, is playing his third season with the club. Last year he was picked on numerous all-star teams. He weighs 190 pounds, but stands only 5 feet 4 inches tall. Viger and Le Claire at defense are two of the lightest men in hockey at their position, both scaling only 165 pounds, but they are rangy and fast.

Most of Quebec's weight is on the front line, where Tondreau, right winger, scaling 180 pounds, and Gerin on the other extreme tipping 170 pounds, carry the offensive burden. Lavoie, one of the lightweight forwards, plays center.

Opposing this array will be one of the strongest teams available in Chicago. In goal the All-Stars will have Roy Halvorsen, leading net minder of the Chicago amateur association, who will have in front of him Bernard Brusin and Steve Reda. Ed Heliste and Buss Cann will relieve these defensive men.

Baby Ruths Next.

A trio of front lines will be relied upon to continue the local association's victory march against outside clubs. Peterson, Kuzma, and Savela compose the first line; Schubert, Begin, and Ouellette, the second, and the third is Rodell, Victel, and Smith.

After tonight's game the Quebec Amateurs will meet the Baby Ruth club, which has still to taste defeat on its home ice in an international game. This game is scheduled for Saturday night.

QUEBEC TEAM WINS.

QUEBEC, Que., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The Quebec amateur hockey team left here at 11:45 o'clock tonight for Chicago to meet an all-star aggregation and the Babe Ruth squad at the Coliseum tomorrow and Saturday evenings. Just before leaving the Quebec team defeated the Ace A. A., 2 to 1, for its third straight victory.

Coals Win 14th Game in Row; Beat Amphion A.C.

The Spencer Coals girls' basketball team scored its 14th consecutive victory last night by defeating the Amphion Athletic club girls' quintet, 46 to 9, at the Irving Park Y. M. C. A. Mary Fandell and Lillian Rozhan starred for the winners, the former scoring nine field goals and one free throw and Miss Rozhan collecting five baskets. The Spencers led at the half, 21 to 4.

M'Spaden's 62 Wins Coast Pro-Amateur

McSpaden's amazing score for the 6,151 yard clover field municipal course, plus the contribution of a stroke by his amateur partner, Don Erickson, Los Angeles public links player, gave them a 61 to win the title, 10 strokes better than par. The victory gave to McSpaden $300.

Then Wins Driving Contest.

After his remarkable round the 25 year old Jayhawker stepped over to the first tee and won the driving contest, an additional feature of the tournament, to pick up $400 more prize money.

His best individual drive was 301 yards and his average for three balls was 278 yards 1 foot 8 inches.

Two teams tied for second place, a stroke behind McSpaden and Erickson, but there was no player on the course today who could even approach the Kansan's perfect round.

Von Elm, Dutra Earn $112.50.

George Von Elm and Stanley Turner of Los Angeles, and Mortie Dutra of Detroit and E. R. Maule, Santa Monica amateur, had composite cards of 62. Von Elm and Dutra bettered themselves financially $112.50 each.

There was a three way tie for fourth place. These teams were Archie Hambrick, Zanesville, O., and Jim Ross, Santa Monica, winners last year; Bill Mehlhorn, Brooklyn, and Arnold Statz, former Brooklyn National league baseball player, now of San Gabriel, Cal., and Dick Metz of Deal, N. J., and Jack Dunphy of Los Angeles. They had best ball cards of 64 for $55 in prize money. Other prize winners:

Joe Hunter, Pasadena, and Jack Nounnan, Los Angeles, 33—32—65, $30.
Ky Laffoon, Denver, and Bruce McCormick, Los Angeles, 33—32—65, $30.
Henry Cuici, Flushing, N. Y., and Al Barbee, Los Angeles, 34—31—65, $30.
Willie Hunter, Culver City, Cal., and Ed Crowley, Los Angeles, 33—32—65, $30.
Al Espinosa, Akron, O., and Jack Mackey, Los Angeles, 32—34—66, $22.22.
Dave Martin, Bell, Cal., and R. Whittaker, Whittier, Cal., 33—33—66, $22.22.
Byron Nelson, Texarkana, Tex., and Chester Coleman, Culver City, Cal., 33—33—66, $22.22.
MacDonald Smith, Nashville, Tenn., and Bob Fahy, Los Angeles, 35—31—66, $22.22.
Abe Espinosa and John Dawson, Chicago, 33—33—66, $22.22.

4,000 EXPECTED TO WATCH PITT PLAY NOTRE DAME

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—More than 4,000 basketball fans are expected to crowd the Pitt stadium pavilion Saturday night when Notre Dame meets the Panthers. Unbeaten in 22 consecutive games, the Notre Dame five comes to Pittsburgh Friday night hopeful of beating Pitt and continuing their string.

Notre Dame has been almost invincible on the court, ever since it lost to Pitt at Pittsburgh last winter, 39 to 35. Purdue, Butler, Northwestern, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Marquette, Michigan State, Arizona, Chicago, Carnegie Tech, and Pitt itself have added to the remarkable winning streak of Notre Dame.

Notre Dame will be facing a jinx in meeting Pitt at Pittsburgh. In five appearances on the Pitt court the Irish have been able to win only once. On their own floor they have done better, winning four out of six.

St. Louis Eleven Will Play Four New Foes

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Four new opponents—Xavier of Cincinnati, Creighton, Illinois Wesleyan and the Kirksville [Mo.] Teachers—are on St. Louis university's 1934 football schedule, made public tonight. Washington, Missouri, Marquette and the Missouri School of Mines, 1933 opponents, will be played again. The schedule:

Oct. 5, Illinois Wesleyan here; Oct. 12, Creighton here; Oct. 20, Missouri at Columbia; Oct. 27, Xavier at Cincinnati; Nov. 3, Missouri School of Mines here; Nov. 9, Marquette here; Nov. 16, Kirksville Teachers here; Nov. 29, Washington here.

Foresters' Fives to Play 2 League Games Tonight

Two league games and a contest between two girls' teams will be staged tonight by the West Division of the Catholic Order of Foresters at the Community clubhouse, 4711 West Madison street. The schedule:

7 p. m.—Holy Ghost vs. St. Patrick.
8 p. m.—Baby Ruth Girls vs. Rickett's Girls.
9 p. m.—St. Aloysius vs. Holy Family.

Fight Decisions

At Fargo, N. D.—Frankie Battaglia stopped Walter Cobb [8]; Johnnie Stanton beat Blackie Bernheim [6]; Sherald Kennard stopped Everett Roe [2]; Dick Demeray beat Al Pahl [6].

WILDCATS OPEN 25TH ROBINSON SWIM SEASON

When Coach Tom Robinson sends his Northwestern swimming team against Wisconsin at Madison tonight it will mark the opening of his twenty-fifth season with the Wildcats. He came to Northwestern in 1909 and superintended the construction of the swimming pool in Patten gymnasium which was built the following year.

He is the dean of the Northwestern university coaching staff and has witnessed the coming and going of a number of coaches in all the other sports. During his quarter century of service at Northwestern his teams won ten Big Ten championships and six national collegiate titles, a record unequaled by any other school.

This year's team is expected to be one of his best. Most of last year's squad which won the national collegiate championship is on hand. In addition there are several promising sophomores.

The squad is led by Art Highland, holder of the Big Ten 100 yard dash championship and one of the outstanding free style swimmers in the country. Lew Diamond, Larry Corrigan and Bill Rollinger, all sophomores, are other free style stars who are expected to collect points.

Don Horn, national collegiate breast stroke champion, is expected to maintain supremacy in his specialty. Frank Lennox also is a strong contender in the breast stroke. Others counted on to place high in their specialties are Jim Wilkie, diver, and Bernard Hahn, back stroke.

COCHRAN WINS 2 BLOCKS IN MATCH WITH BOZEMAN

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Welker Cochran won both the fifth and sixth blocks today in his 14-block three-cushion billiards match with Jay Bozeman to take the lead in the match.

In the afternoon, Cochran triumphed, 50 to 31 in 40 innings, and at night won 50 to 32 in 42 innings. The high runs were Cochran 7 and Bozeman 8 in the afternoon, Cochran 11 and Bozeman 6 in the evening.

Cochran now has won four of the six blocks to date in the match, which is being contested on the block basis. He also leads in points, 272 to 247.

BROOKFIELD ZOO WILL BE READY TO OPEN JULY 1

Collection of Animals Will Be Increased.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

A decision to open the Chicago Zoölogical gardens at Brookfield on July 1 was announced yesterday at the annual meeting of the governing members of the Chicago Zoölogical society in the Palmer house. Extensive plans to increase the number of animals and to complete more improvements before the opening were revealed.

George F. Getz, who last October turned over to the gardens as a gift his entire zoölogical collection, said to be the largest private collection in this country, made a short talk. He told how his collection had grown from "a monkey, turtle, a snake, and a few such things" in 1910 to the 143 mammals, 123 birds, and 4 reptiles he presented the society.

Collection Shows Growth.

John T. McCutcheon, who was re-elected president, presided, introducing Herbert E. Bradley, chairman of the animal committee; Stanley Field, chairman of the building committee; John Wentworth, chairman of the finance committee, and Edward H. Bean, director of the zoo. Mr. Bean said the collection now totals 606, including 181 mammals, 176 birds, and 249 reptiles. A year ago, when he made his report, he reminded the society there were only 22 birds, 1 mammal [a mountain lion], and 6 reptiles.

"No tax funds, only society funds, will be used to buy animals to stock the zoo," Mr. Bradley said in his report. "We have made several purchases the last year, and some which will increase our collection materially will not be delivered until June 1. This is an important Australian collection from the Tarongo Zoölogical park trust, Sydney, costing $11,000, and will consist of 98 mammals, 746 birds, and 32 reptiles. These will stock three houses completely and parts of two others."

Other Gifts Announced.

Among other gifts announced by Mr. Bradley were six lions from Mr. and Mrs. E. L. King, Winona, Minn., three lions from Thomas Wheelock, Mississippi alligator from F. Williams, 2 lizards from John A. Watson, a Virginia opossum from John P. Kellogg, three grizzly bears from the United States department of the interior, and 12 mallard ducks from the department of parks, St. Joseph, Mo.

"It is estimated that it will take $170,000 to stock the zoo completely at present prices," Mr. Bradley said. "We expect first to stock the bear dens, then the pachyderm house, then the lion and the primate house last."

A sample of the costs of animals desired for zoos was given by Mr. Bradley, who named $18,000 as a fair price for an Indian rhinoceros; a giraffe, $3,750; Indian elephant, $2,500; Orangoutang, $3,500; northern tiger, $1,200.

The society announced the election of Dr. Frank R. Lillie of the University of Chicago, and Dr. Wilfred Osgood of the Field museum to trusteeships without dues, which is to be the custom hereafter among persons distinguished in science. Two groups of memberships were created, the benefactor group for those making large gifts, and a patron group making smaller gifts. Other officers elected were John T. Pirie, Mr. Wentworth, and Mr. Kellogg, vice presidents; Solomon A. Smith, treasurer, and Graham Aldis, secretary. Stanley Field and James Simpson were added to the executive committee.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: A Striking Resemblance

G. O. P. NAMES 5 CANDIDATES FOR APRIL PRIMARY

Democrats Work to Prepare Ticket.

The preparation of county tickets for the April 10 primary proceeded yesterday. The Republicans announced tentative indorsements of five candidacies and the Democratic party leaders called upon their committeemen and district leaders to submit names of prospective candidates. Candidacies must be filed in the county clerk's office by Feb. 3.

A group of 13 Republican leaders who have been drafting a slate of candidates will gather again today at the Hotel La Salle and, according to present intentions, will have a full slate ready for submission to the central committee by Saturday.

Five Candidates Announced.

The five candidates on which there are tentative agreements were announced by Edward F. Moore, secretary of the Republican county central committee as follows:

Congressman at large—James H. Douglas, former assistant secretary of the treasury.

State treasurer—William J. Stratton, former Illinois secretary of state.

Assessor—Ald. James C. Moreland [41st].

The Democrats are having a grand opening today of their dining room at the headquarters on the second floor of the Morrison hotel. The affair has been announced in invitations to members of the party organization as a business luncheon, and it is expected that discussions of candidates will engage every one present.

Igoe's Name on List.

The invitation was signed by the chairman and secretaries of the central committee and the managing committee. In addition, the names of 20 prominent Democrats, mostly officeholders, were attached. The inclusion among the latter of the names of Michael L. Igoe, unsuccessful candidate in 1932 for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and Sheriff Meyering, his chief partisan at that time, led to speculation about a rapprochement between these two and the regular organization.

Several candidacies independent of the regular parties' activities have been announced. On the Republican side, Julius Klein is in the field for selection as a candidate for congressman at large.

James A. Howell of Elgin, a professor of law at Loyola university, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination to congress from the 11th district, which takes in Will, Du Page, McHenry, and Kane counties. Frank R. Reid, Republican, who beat Howell in the congressional race of 1932 by 1,334 votes out of a total of 163,000 cast, recently resigned his seat.

GETS JAIL TERM ON A CHARGE OF DRUNKEN DRIVING

Ernest J. Schneider, 30 years old, 137 West North avenue, head of the Snyder Products company, wholesale drug concern at 1434 North Wells street, yesterday was sentenced by Judge N. C. Bonelli in the Traffic court to serve 30 days in the Bridewell and pay a fine of $100 and costs for driving an automobile while intoxicated. He was arrested Dec. 3, 1933, after running his car into a safety island at Granville and Western avenues. On Dec. 21, 1933, while at liberty on bond, he struck and killed John Kochannek, 45 years old, 1949 Cleveland avenue, and Nathan Cohen, 40 years old, 1321 South Spaulding avenue. He ran them down with his car while they were assisting Lincoln Park Policeman Thomas O. Dunlavy to right his automobile after it had overturned at Clark and La Salle streets. Schneider is now awaiting trial on two charges of manslaughter as a result of their deaths.

BROKER'S DEATH BY DROWNING IS CALLED SUICIDE

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict that Edward A. Nelson, 45 years old, who was found drowned Tuesday in a bathtub at his home, 7605 Merrill avenue, committed suicide while temporarily insane. He had weighted his body with a 40 pound andiron.

Although Nelson left two notes, one of which indicated that he feared prosecution for thefts, this matter was not gone into at the inquest. He was a member of the mortgage loan firm of Nelson and Hunt, 1 North La Salle street. C. Roy Campbell, treasurer of the company, said Nelson's firm accounts were in good order, but that his personal affairs were somewhat complicated.

The second note left by the mortgage broker was addressed to his family and informed them he "hadn't courage" to go on living.

'Iron Man' of British Stage Dies After Slap

LONDON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Gilding Clarke, "iron man" of the famous old Vic Theatrical company, who collapsed when given a friendly slap on the back during a rehearsal of "Orpheus" yesterday, died in a hospital today. Friends said they believed the slap caused a shock affecting the actor's heart. A man of great strength, Clarke weighed more than 250 pounds.

FATHER TO TAKE 'MILLION DOLLAR BABY' TO WEST

Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday granted Franklin I. Saemann Jr., 429 North Forest avenue, Oak Park, permission to take his 4 year old daughter, Myrtle Fahrney Saemann, to Tucson, Ariz., for the winter.

The child was called the "million dollar baby" during the divorce suit between her parents, which ended in her mother's being granted the decree and the right to resume her maiden name, Myrtle Fahrney, in 1931. There was a subsequent contest between Saemann and his former wife for custody of the child. She will eventually inherit part of the $6,000,000 estate of her great-grandfather, the late Peter Fahrney, patent medicine manufacturer.

Attorney Frank E. Cantwell told Judge Trude that Saemann would take the child to Tucson on Saturday, and would return to Chicago with her April 15. At that time, his attorney indicated, Saemann will seek permission to take his daughter to New York, where his business interests are. He will seek to keep her there permanently.

DIES AT 81 IN THE TOWN FOUNDED BY HIS PARENTS

Albert S. Chatfield, 81 years old, died yesterday at Lisle, the Du Page county town which was founded by his parents nearly 100 years ago when they migrated in covered wagons from Lisle, N. Y. Mr. Chatfield lived all his life in the town named by his parents, although for 28 years he commuted to Chicago to his employment as a pattern maker in the sheet metal concern of Friedley-Voshardt company. He retired several years ago. He attended Northwestern college at Naperville, which has since been renamed the North Central college. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Cleo Smith, who lives on a farm near Lisle, and Mrs. Jessie Setterstrom of Kansas City, Mo., and a brother, Jay Chatfield, 89 years old, who lives in Colorado. Funeral services will be held Saturday at the Beidelman undertaking establishment, 318 South Washington street, Naperville.

DIES IN ODD ACCIDENT.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Struck by a drive shaft buried from a passing stock truck as its differential broke, Mrs. Peter Adsbell, 74, died today in a hospital.

TWO MEN KILLED WHEN HOG-LADEN TRUCKS COLLIDE

4 Other Deaths Raise Toll to 73.

John Mortimer, 72 years old, and Homer Ferguson, 40 years old, farmers, living near Paw Paw, Ill., were killed yesterday when their truck collided with another truck driven by Max Owens of Haskins, Ia., at 47th street and Lawndale avenue, Lyons.

Both trucks, loaded with hogs, were wrecked and most of the hogs either were killed or escaped. Owens and his helper, Otto Harrington, were held by the police pending the inquest.

Woman Victim Identified.

A woman and a 4 year old boy, who were struck by a hit and run motorist at Logan boulevard and Sacramento avenue Tuesday night, were identified yesterday as Mrs. Margaret Olis, 31 years old, 2538 North Sacramento avenue, and her son, Edward Jr.

The identification was made by Mrs. Olis' husband, a pressman employed by the Chicago American. Both Mrs. Olis and her son were in a serious condition yesterday in St. Elizabeth's hospital.

Toll Reaches 73.

The deaths of Mortimer and Ferguson and four others brought to 73 the Cook county motor toll for 1934. The other victims:

Leo Marshall, 42 years old, 3159 Argyle street. Died at the Swedish Covenant hospital several hours after he was struck by a hit and run driver at Lawrence and Kedzie avenues. Marshall, a Checker cab driver, was on his way to work.

David Davis, 50 years old, colored, 939 Orleans street. Died in the county hospital of injuries suffered Sunday when he was struck by a truck in front of 3323 North Clark street.

Henry Blasgen, 7 years old, 6817 Loomis street. Died in the Englewood hospital of injuries incurred Saturday. He was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Harry Whitehead, 9019 South Bishop street, in front of 6824 Loomis street.

Mrs. Norah Cottrell, 76 years old, 4815 North Leavitt street. Died yesterday in the Norwegian-American hospital of injuries suffered Jan. 14 when she was struck by an automobile at Montrose and Oakley avenues.

BRUNO RICHTER WILL PROBATED; LEAVES $80,000

The will of Bruno Richter, president of the Richter Food Products company, who died Nov. 3, was admitted to probate yesterday by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge John F. O'Connell. The will disposes of an estate valued at $80,000 to Richter's widow, Anna, and to his mother, Mrs. Marie Richter. Richter, who was 51 years old, resided at 2719 Logan boulevard.

Five other wills were filed with Clerk Mitchell C. Robin in the Probate court yesterday and were admitted to probate, as follows:

WILLIAM MEYER, died Jan. 9. Estate, $100,000, to widow. William H. Meyer, son, is executor.

KARL SPEICHERT, died Nov. 4. Estate, $13,000, to three sisters, a brother, three nephews and a niece. Walter Platzke is executor.

SUICIDE OF DAIRY OFFICIAL LAID TO BREAKDOWN

A nervous breakdown two weeks ago which produced an extreme melancholia caused Frank H. Kullman, 63 years old, vice president and general manager of the Bowman Dairy company, to commit suicide by leaping from a 13th floor window of Hotel La Salle on Tuesday, a coroner's jury decided yesterday. The jury found he was temporarily insane.

Dr. Italo F. Volini testified that on Jan. 8 he examined the dairy executive and advised him to go away for a long rest as soon as the milk strike was settled. Mr. Kullman was chairman of the milk dealers' negotiation committee during the recent strike.

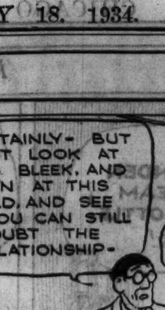
Francis H. Kullman, a son, testified he had driven his father from the family home at 7309 North Ashland avenue Tuesday morning and the father attended mass at St. Peter's church, Clark and Polk streets. Later Mr. Kullman registered at the hotel under an assumed name, crawled out on a fire escape and jumped, according to witnesses.

Mrs. Frances A. Seiler's Funeral Rites Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Frances Allen Seiler, a resident of Chicago since 1865, will be held at 3:15 o'clock tomorrow in the chapel at 4611 Lincoln avenue. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery. Mrs. Seiler, who was 89 years old, died Tuesday. Her husband, the late John Seiler, was a Swiss journeyman tailor. He met her in England in 1865, and immediately after their marriage they came to Chicago. A daughter, Mrs. Emma Barkley, survives.

FUNERAL SATURDAY FOR ANTHONY MATRE, NOTED CHURCHMAN

Funeral services for Anthony Matre, Knight of St. Gregory and nationally prominent in Catholic circles, will be held Saturday in the chapel of St. Mary in Techny. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.



ANTHONY MATRE.

Mr. Matre died Tuesday night in the Elmhurst hospital or injuries suffered in an automobile collision a week ago at York road and 22d street. He was 67 years old.

Mr. Matre was one of the founders of the American Federation of Catholic societies sponsored by the bishops of the United States and the Catholic organizations of the country. In 1913, at the Milwaukee convention of the federation, he was made one of the first Knights of St. Gregory in the United States by Pope Pius X. in recognition of work in behalf of the church.

Mr. Matre was president of the Chicago Archdiocesan Holy Name society during the Eucharistic congress in 1926. He was chairman and presiding speaker at Soldiers' field, where 300,000 laymen assembled. Mr. Matre, for many years a resident of Chicago, recently moved to Techny.

He is survived by his widow, Catherine, and three sons, Frank Jr., Victor G., and Richard J. Matre.

DEFEATED FUKIEN REVOLT LEADERS REACH HONGKONG

HONGKONG, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The arrival of 2,000 Cantonese, among them several leaders of a short lived Fukien province junta, was heralded today as marking the definite collapse of the anti-Nationalist movement in Fukien and the inauguration of a military rule in Foochow, the capital of that province.

Among those who came here from Foochow was Eugene Chen, former Cantonese foreign minister and foreign affairs minister in the two months' old Fukien "people's independent government." Three generals and erstwhile leaders, Tsai Ting-kai, Li Chai-sum, and Chen Ming-shu, remained with the 19th route army, which was fleeing southward.

Japs Invade Chahar Again.

PEIPING, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Japanese again have invaded Chinese territory, Chinese authorities in Chahar province telegraphed headquarters here today. One thousand Japanese-Manchukuo troops Tuesday attacked the Chinese garrison near Leng Men Su pass in the Great Wall, according to these dispatches. The invaders allegedly occupied a Chahar village.

WAITERS RAISE FUNDS TO BURY DAVID LAMAR

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—David Lamar, the "Wolf of Wall Street," who made and squandered millions, was buried today. Three men, who twenty years ago as headwaiters of famous cafés were handsomely tipped for giving Mr. Lamar the best in the house, paid for the funeral.

Lamar died alone and almost penniless of a heart attack on Friday night. He was born exactly 68 years ago on that date, his attorney, Armin Kohn, said today.

The funeral service, held at the Riverside Memorial chapel, was attended by only a handful of men and women. They sat, not a trace of emotion upon their faces, as the Rev. John Callahan, Protestant chaplain at the Tombs, read the ritual.

J. A. Springer, 65, Dean of Consular Service, Dies

HAVANA, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Joseph Alden Springer, retired United States vice consul at Havana and dean of the American consular service, died here today. He was 89, and a native of Portland, Me. Springer had been in the consular service 65 years. In recognition of his services in the interests of Cuban liberty, he was made an honorary member of the Cuban National Society of Exiled Revolutionaries in 1928.

CREDIT MACHINE DECLARED NEED OF EXPORTERS

Trade Gain Expected by Manufacturers.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Foreign trade as a stimulus to business recovery occupied the attention yesterday of the Illinois Manufacturers' association. George R. Meyercord, former president of the association, dwelt upon the establishment of credit machinery as a need in going after world markets, while the association sent to Washington a protest against a threatened boycott of great lakes ports in all water traffic with England and Europe via the St. Lawrence.

G. R. MEYERCORD.

Mr. Meyercord was a founder of the American Foreign Credit Underwriters [offices in New York] some thirteen years ago and he has specialized on export affairs. He holds that President Roosevelt's program for devaluing the dollar may stimulate foreign trade in competitive articles by eliminating the advantage of countries with depreciated currencies and that credit facilities are a problem.

Sees Export Stimulant.

"When the world received the announcement of the devalued dollar in terms of foreign exchange," said Mr. Meyercord, "it meant a cut price of 40 per cent in the American selling price. That 40 per cent cut is bound to stimulate such exports as are of a competitive nature, such as the American dried apple, which is such a large factor in our exports to countries like Holland, Belgium, and France. It will increase the consumption of American canned goods, such as salmon.

"It will, in my opinion, boost American lumber exports, such as Oregon fir, southern pitch pine, the gum lumber of the south. I have no doubt also that such products as barrel staves will receive a great impetus by foreign exporters of wines who will want to ship to the American market.

"The American automobile obviously will be more readily saleable abroad by virtue of a much lower price. It is easily conceivable that a regular boom may appear in the buying of American automobiles and accessories.

Believes Others Will Gain.

"American radios should enjoy a large increase in exports. This list could be extended indefinitely. Our hog products should greatly increase. Any article or product which heretofore has enjoyed an export market to a limited extent is bound to increase.

"There is only one serious fly in the ointment, of course, and that is: due to the increase of exports, the American manufacturer will have to sell on credit. So many of the American manufacturers, even the larger ones, who have been running in the red so long will find themselves short of working capital and will be unable to extend export capital on any kind of a scale because the attitude of the banks will be largely one of fear.

"There cannot be any question that the larger banks that heretofore have attempted to keep a lineup on foreign credits will find that their credit data on foreign buyers will be so out of date that exporters will have to be extraordinarily careful in extending credit, which means a curtailment in the foreign purchasing ability.

Need Credit Machinery.

"I understand some sort of an export discount organization will be set up within the RFC. Personally, I have little definite knowledge of it, but this is being discussed, very largely patterning after the Overseas Revolving fund of the British government. If this is done, to be of any service to American manufacturers, this government bureau has to have available credit machinery organized, and it is around that program, it seems to me, that the growth of our exports will come.

"Obviously all foreign buyers have to conserve their ready cash for their immediate needs of the daily turnover rather than to pay months in advance, because the banking machinery of the world is pretty well broken down in letter of credit advances to either importers or exporters."

Contract Hits Lake Ports.

The protest against a "freezeout" of trans-Atlantic commerce from lake ports, as said to be lurking in the new contract agreements of eastern shipping lines, was sent by the association to the United States shipping board and to the secretaries of commerce and agriculture.

The complaint set forth that middle west shippers are being asked to sign contracts drafted by the trans-Atlantic associated freight conferences, stipulating that 100 per cent of their shipments abroad must be by conference ships in order to get the low contract freight rates. Otherwise they pay a higher charge. Carriers on the lakes are outside the conference lines.

"Such contracts," said the protest, "would bar specifically any one from shipping to Europe by means of vessels which leave the ports of Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit, or Cleveland and convey their cargoes directly to European ports through the St. Lawrence route."

The manufacturers' association has indorsed THE TRIBUNE'S campaign to revive markets for American products as of outstanding importance.

N. Y. Stock Seat Sold for $150,000; Rise of $24,000

New York, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Increased activity in the stock market since the turn of the year has brought a better market for New York stock exchange seats. A membership sold today at $150,000, up $24,000 from the previous sale, closed last week.

Steel Output Recovery Tops Expectations

Recovery in steel works operations is quicker than expected, considering heavy shipments against expiring contracts last month, reports Iron Age.

Replenishment of exhausted stocks as well as increases in bookings of sheets by the automotive industry and in small orders from miscellaneous sources largely account for the improvement of two points to 33 per cent in production for the country at large.

Only at Chicago, where restocking has been completed, did the output of ingots decline last week—three points to 29 per cent of capacity. At Pittsburgh the rate rose 2 points to 24 per cent, at Philadelphia 3 to 25, in the valleys 6 to 36, at Cleveland 3 to 50, in the Wheeling district 5 to 55, and at Detroit 7 to 84. Operations in the south are unchanged at 50 and in Buffalo at 30.

Heavy Tonnage Pending.

Heavy tonnage from the automotive industry, the carriers, and construction is still pending. With the exception of Ford, leading automobile manufacturers are held up by problems connected with the adoption of new front construction.

"Governmental red tape and demands for collateral against federal loans are impeding the release of rail tonnages," declares the review. "Bids on government financed railroad equipment programs have been postponed pending the adoption of a car builders' code."

Compared with the releases expected when numerous projects now in progress finally mature, public works awards are light. Structural lettings for the week amounted to only 9,850 tons, the lowest total since the middle of November.

Outlook Aids Scrap Prices.

"Despite delays there is no question about the support that steel output will eventually get from the big three—the automobile industry, the railroads, and construction," states the Iron Age. "It is this favorable prospect which accounts for continued strength of the scrap market." Iron Age's composite for heavy melting steel scrap rose last week from $11.58 to $11.83 a gross ton.

Production of tin plate, though supported by export business, has lagged, ranging from 20 to 50 per cent of capacity at present.

Iron Age's composite of pig iron and finished steel is unchanged at $16.90 a ton and 2.026 cents a pound, respectively. Furnace coke at Connellsville has fallen 25 cents a ton.

Bookings of fabricated structural steel were 72 per cent larger in December than in November, according to the American Institute of Steel Construction, Inc., which says this is the first indication that some of the money appropriated for public works is being spent. December shipments by companies representing 65 per cent of the industry were 17 per cent under November. It is indicated, reports the Institute, that deliveries in 1933 were at least 10 per cent under 1932.

OWENS-ILLINOIS GLASS EARNINGS BEST IN HISTORY

Toledo, O., Jan. 17.—(AP)—With a preliminary report of the largest earnings in the history of the company, directors of the Owens-Illinois Glass company today declared a regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents.

Previously the company had paid a fifty cent quarterly dividend and for the last two quarters paid twenty-five cents extra. The official estimate of earnings subject to a complete check by auditors shows net consolidated earnings of more than $6,000,000 for 1933, compared with actual net earnings of $2,067,885 in 1932.

The big volume of business was attributed largely to return of legal beer and subsequent large demand for liquor bottles.

The company has put into effect the six hour day in its plants and under the glass container code has more workers employed than ever before in its history.

MOVE FOR PEACE IN LABOR BOARD, WEIRTON CASE

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 17.—(AP)—A movement is under way to heal the breach between the Weirton Steel company and the national labor board. Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the steel concern, made this plain tonight after learning President Roosevelt revealed the two had conferred on Monday.

The dispute, involving the knotty collective bargaining provision of the NRA, is one of the most critical issues which the labor board has encountered. After agreeing to the board's supervision of an employes' representation committee while a strike closed his plants at Clarksburg and Weirton, W. Va., and Steubenville, O., he refused to accept rules of procedure set up by the board.

Peoria Life Mutualization Proposal Is Ruled Legal

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Attorney General Otto Kerner today approved as to form and legality and application of 21 citizens of Peoria for a charter which, if granted, would mutualize the Peoria Life Insurance company, now in receivership. Issuance of the charter is in the discretion o fthe state department of insurance, which has not yet acted upon the application..

Bare Big Loans to Officers of Detroit Banks

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Evidence that officers and directors of the Union Guardian Trust Company of Detroit owed the bank more than $2,500,000 before the Michigan bank holiday was given today to the senate banking committee.

During questioning of Clifford B. Longley, president of the institution before it was closed, Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, placed in the record exhibits showing the state banking examiner's estimates of most of the officials' loans were classified as "slow" and that only a small amount has been liquidated.

An aggregate of $2,477,040 represented direct liabilities, and $136,010 was the amount which officers and directors had endorsed or guaranteed.

Unit Withdraws $700,000.

The committee also received evidence that during the period from Jan. 4 to Feb. 11, 1933, the last day on which the bank was opened prior to the state moratorium, a total of $1,576,797 in deposits was withdrawn. Directors had withdrawn a comparatively small part of this. The largest amount taken out was $700,000 by the Guardian National Bank of Commerce, another of the Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc.

The evidence showed that Edsel Ford, a director, had withdrawn $104,359, although Ford interests had poured approximately $12,000,000 into the group in an effort to save it.

The other directors whom Longley testified had taken out money between Feb. 1 and Feb. 11 were George W. Trindle and Murray W. Sales, who withdrew $10,000 and $25,000, respectively.

The Guardian bank's withdrawal of the $700,000 drew the particular interest of Senator Couzens [Rep., Mich.], who commented that it was "a very substantial withdrawal from one of your associates at a time when you were in distress."

Planned Legislative Agent.

Pecora placed memoranda in the record to show that the group or the trust company at one time contemplated the employment of a "representative" at Lansing, the state capital, to foster bank legislation.

One of these related a proposal that the "representative" receive a retaining fee of $500, $100 a month, and $500 per bill for aiding in the passage of "proper legislation" and "preventing improper legislation." Longley testified that the proposal never was carried out.

One of the group's hopes of riding the storm had been the enactment of a law by the state legislature permitting branch banking.

Witnesses have testified that with such a law it was planned to combine the capital structure of all the unit banks of the state and thereby rehabilitate the structure.

OHIO BELL TELEPHONE ORDERED TO CUT RATE, REFUND $13,289,172

Columbus, O., Jan. 17.—(AP)—The Ohio Bell Telephone company tonight was ordered by the state utilities commission to reduce its rates to patrons in 180 Ohio municipalities. At the same time the commission ordered the company to refund to patrons $13,289,172 which was collected in excess rates from June 30, 1925, through 1932.

The company was ordered to file with the commission immediately a new schedule of rates in accordance with the decision. The case has been in litigation for ten years.

The decision was signed by two commissioners. The chairman, E. J. Hopple, filed a dissenting opinion in which he asserted the findings of the majority were contrary to the evidence presented. Hopple held the current rates were reasonable.

The Ohio Bell, a subsidiary of American Telephone and Telegraph company, is expected to appeal the decision. No refunds to patrons will be made during the period in which the appeal is pending.

The commission ruled that an adequate return would be 6.50 per cent, whereas the return since 1925 actually has averaged 7.71 per cent.

BATTLE LOOMS FOR CONTROL OF GENERAL BAKING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 17.—A struggle for control of the General Baking company with $28,000,000 of assets, including sixty-five plants in fifty-six cities, was indicated today when announcement was made that a committee of stockholders had been formed to seek proxies for the annual meeting on Feb. 15.

The committee is headed by William Deininger and William H. Collins, former executives, and includes Louis J. Kolb of Philadelphia, George N. Meissner of St. Louis, and Frank R. Shepard of Boston. They were identified with companies which had been absorbed by General Baking in 1911.

Kenneth Curtis New Head of Electrical Association

Kenneth Curtis, president of Curtis Lighting, Inc., has been elected president of the Electrical association for 1934, according to announcement made yesterday. Membership of the organization is made up of representatives of all branches of the electrical industry in the middle west. Headquarters of Curtis Lighting are in Chicago with affiliated companies in New York and Cincinnati and factories in foreign countries. The company recently received a certificate from officials of A Century of Progress in recognition of its contribution to the plans for the Fair illumination.

CWA to Start Survey of U. S. Living Costs

Data on prices throughout the United States will be assembled by an interdepartmental committee of the central statistical board, according to a plan developed by John H. Cover, professor of statistics in the school of business of the University of Chicago, who left for Washington yesterday.

The material will provide an estimate on costs of living and may serve as a basis for the commodity dollar, if such a monetary policy is pursued. For the first time in history the committee will make available information adequate for the analysis of the price system nationally and locally.

Plan Previously Tested.

Represented on the interdepartmental committee are the NRA consumers' advisory board, the consumers' counsellor of the AAA, the departments of labor, agriculture, interior, and commerce, the federal reserve board, and the treasury.

The entire plan was tested at Washington last December. It is intended after further tests to establish a permanent retail price reporting system based upon conclusions reached in the experiments. The budget for the whole project is about $750,000, a large part of which has been approved as a CWA enterprise. Ultimately 3,000 people will be employed on the program.

600 Committees Included.

According to the plan, the committee will obtain periodical reports on prices of 600 commodities in 305 communities. Representation will be given to commodities and services within each trade and industrial group, and as complete information as possible collected on price ranges and differentials in each field, with a view to economic analysis and control under the codes of fair competition.

Establishment of a retail price reporting system and revision of the wholesale price reporting system will provide bases for comparisons between the two sets of statistics.

Last year Prof. Cover directed preliminary work which established some criteria for the choice of neighborhoods within each community revealing differences in nationality, income, occupation and other factors that cause differences in purchases and prices, particularly of foods.

ELECTRIC POWER OUTPUT RISES 10.1% LAST WEEK

Gain Highest Since September.

Improvement in electric power production became more pronounced last week as the margin over output in the like period of 1933 increased to 10.1 per cent, the most favorable gain since September.

The Edison Electric institute reported that electricity production in the United State amounted to 1,646,271,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 1,495,116,000 in the corresponding week of 1933, and with 1,563,678,000 in the preceding week, which included the New Year's holiday. Output last week also surpassed the total of 1,602,482,000 kilowatt hours for the corresponding period of 1932.

Gain Here Is 10.4 Per Cent.

In the Chicago district, profiting from favorable weather conditions, the production of electric power for the week ended Jan. 13 rose to 103,994,000 kilowatt hours from 99,950,000 in the preceding period. The margin over the total of the like week in 1933 was 10.4 per cent, against 11.6 in the week ended Jan. 6. Production was the highest in three weeks.

It was particularly in southern states that improvement occurred, according to the Edison Electric institute. Output of power there showed a gain of 10.4 per cent over the same week last year, in comparison with a margin of only 1.4 per cent in the week ended Jan. 6.

In four other territorial divisions production improved its lead. The margin was 9.2, against 8.7 in New England; 13.1, against 13.4 in the central industrial region; 19.8, against 19.1 in the Rocky mountains; and 3.5, against 3.4 on the Pacific coast.

East, Central West Lag.

In the middle Atlantic area power output showed an increase of only 8.6, against 11.3 in the preceding week, and in the west central district the margin was reduced from 9.3 to 8.8.

Following are the output and percentage comparisons with last year for the Chicago district, released by the Commonwealth Edison company:

Kilowatt Hour Output.

Week ended	1934.	1933.	Pct. Inc.
Jan. 13	103,994,000	94,232,000	10.4
Jan. 6	99,950,000	89,533,000	11.6
Dec. 30	101,859,000	89,744,000	13.3

GOODYEAR TIRE EXPLAINS PRICE ADJUSTMENTS

Akron, O., Jan. 17.—(AP)—A total of $8,555,000 paid Sears, Roebuck & Co. in the years 1926 to 1932 inclusive as adjustments on tire manufacturing charges today became the center of the federal trade commission's hearing on its charge the Goodyear-Sears contract is in violation of the Clayton act.

The commission and Goodyear officials are at odds over the manner in which tire costs are computed and assessed against the mail order house under the Goodyear-Sears arrangement.

Goodyear officials declare that at regular periods the first billings to Sears, Roebuck & Co. are recalculated and adjustments are made for overcharges.

RFC Liabilities Are More Than Four Billions

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—The widespread activities of the Reconstruction Finance corporation in November called for advances and authorizations totaling $515,813,582. According to the monthly report submitted to congress today. This figure compared with $643,118,403 in October and only $5,009,511 in September.

The balance sheet of operations of the corporation since its establishment in February, 1932, showed that its liabilities, including capital stock and notes sold to the treasury, totaled $4,165,738,732, as compared with $3,766,171,431 at the end of October.

In November and October the largest individual authorizations, $150,000,000 and $250,000,000, respectively, were for the government's commodity credit corporation, set up to aid in the orderly marketing of agricultural products.

Gold Plan Takes 150 Million.

The October total was swelled by a $50,000,000 authorization for operations under the gold purchase plan for, which no additional allocation was made in November. Since that time, however, the total of authorizations for this purpose have risen to $150,000,000, of which about $120,000,000 had been used when the RFC ended its activities of this kind on Jan. 15.

The November report shows that authorizations to banks and related institutions and railroads for the month aggregated $136,631,926, of which $40,535,026 went to the banks, including $32,472,536 to aid in the reorganization or liquidation of closed banks.

In October banks and related institutions were authorized $226,104,543, of which $104,569,536 was for the banks, this including $98,741,502 for closed banks.

89 Million for Bank Stock.

Authorizations for purchase of preferred stock and capital notes of banks in November totaled approximately $89,000,000. These were made in connection with the government's campaign to strengthen the capital structure of banks, facilitate loans to industry, and equip the banks for membership in the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation.

The grand aggregate of authorizations for such purchases at present is almost $900,000,000 and the total of all authorizations which have been made to date for loans to aid in the reorganization or liquidation of closed banks has passed $600,000,000.

Actual disbursements made in November under authorizations of that month, and prior authorizations, including administrative expenses, totaled $343,743,688.

ADAMS EXPRESS NET ASSET VALUE RISES 62 PER CENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 17.—An appreciation of about 62 per cent in the net value of assets, the largest so far reported by a major investment trust company, is disclosed in the annual report of the Adams Express company for 1933.

The value of net assets on Dec. 31 was equivalent to $2,744 for each $1,000 of collateral trust bonds, and, after deducting these and preferred stock at par values, to $6.40 a share for common stock. This compares with $1,693 for debentures and 13 cents a share for common stock a year earlier.

The improvement in the liquid position of the company was accomplished by active switching in the portfolio, which resulted in the purchase of securities reported as having a better prospect of appreciation with less regard to the yield.

CURRENCY WAR FEARED; DOLLAR AND POUND SAG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 17.—The dollar lost ground today in the foreign exchange markets against the principal gold currencies but was strong against the British pound sterling.

The French franc moved up 3 points to 6.31 cents, indicating a gold worth of 62.09 cents for the dollar as compared with 62.38 cents yesterday. Sterling, however, continued to decline and closed at $5.04, a loss of 3½ cents for the day. Proportionately the pound's decline was slightly greater than the dollar's.

Fear Currency War.

The contradictory trend of the dollar against the gold currencies and the managed currencies like the pound lend further weight to fears of an impending currency war between the United States and Great Britain.

Reports from London indicated that purchases of gold in the market there checked a quick rise in the dollar. The buying was attributed to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York acting as agent of the United States treasury. The purchases offset to some extent the substantial commercial demand for United States funds, which, coupled with the increasing repatriation of American capital, is making it difficult to keep the dollar down.

Canadian Dollar Easy.

Opinion here is divided as to the possibility of a real currency war developing between the two English speaking countries. It is readily admitted that the possibility is making exchange dealers and those who must deal in international funds cautious in their transactions.

Most exchange dealers here expected that no real war will develop unless further negotiations between Washington and London fail to bring some sort of an agreement.

London reports indicated that British authorities are not inclined to intervene immediately. If such a war did develop, however, it is pointed out that operations of both countries would probably be carried through operations in the French franc, the principal gold currency. This might force France off the gold standard after which new world monetary alignments would probably result.

NATIONAL BISCUIT 1933 SHARE NET IS EQUAL TO $2.11

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 17.—National Biscuit company for the year 1933 reports net income of $14,995,304 after taxes and charges, equal after preferred dividends to $2.11 a share on 6,289,263 shares of common, compared with net income of $17,104,124, or $2.44 a share, on the common in 1932.

The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, without certificate of independent audit, shows cash of $13,163,790 against $17,207,325; United States bonds at market, $991,337, against $1,011,102 at cost; New York City bonds, $9,779,860 at market, against $12,313,375 at cost; other securities, $92,673 at market, against $1,629,562 at cost.

Have there been any changes in the situation of your dependents or in your own financial position that make it advisable to revise your will?

All wills should be checked periodically, even in normal times, but it is especially important to keep them up-to-date when conditions are undergoing as rapid changes as at present.

We shall be pleased to discuss this important matter with you and your attorney.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 17.—Following early irregularity, the listed bond market rallied and closed strong today, particularly domestic corporation issues.

Most long term United States governments closed higher, up 6-32ds to off 2-32ds point for the day, while leading foreign loans moved irregularly lower.

Trading in bonds on the stock exchange totaled $21,983,000, an active day, although well below the $25,253,000 turnover of the previous day. Transactions in United States government bonds approximated $3,000,000.

Speculative Rails Buoyant.

Railroad bonds claimed the principal gains in the domestic corporation list with the more speculative issues accorded the best support. More active issues were up fractionally to a point or two. Utility obligations did better than industrials although several of the latter recovered 1 to more than 3 points.

In the foreign, United Kingdom bonds were depressed 1 to 1¾ points as sterling weakened against the dollar. French government loans showed fractional variations as did Austrian government issues. Commonwealth of Australia loans were again heavily dealt in, closing unchanged to off half a point. German bonds closed irregularly lower.

Curb Issues Advance.

Although most of the Latin American issues declined, bonds of the Colombian group spurted as much as 4 points on what was attributed to buying for Colombian account.

Curb bonds pointed higher in both domestic and foreign classifications. Advances in the domestic group ran the gamut of small fractions to more than 8 points, while in the case of the foreigns principal gains amounted to 4 points in several instances.

In the over-the-counter market prices were quoted firm with advancing tendencies in fairly active trading.

Shell Pipe Line.

Investors' Guide: Would appreciate information on Shell Pipe Line 5s. Have been informed on good authority that both principal and interest on this bond are guaranteed.—G. R. E.

Answer: Shell Pipe Line corporation operates a system of pipe lines which transport practically all the crude oil used by Shell Union Oil corporation, the parent concern.

Charges have been covered by wide margins for years, even during those periods when conditions in the oil industry were at their worst. Net profit in the first nine months of 1933 amounted to $7,819,000. Charges were earned 9.90 times in 1932, 11.13 times in 1931, 11.11 times in 1930, and 9.96 times in 1929.

At the close of 1932 cash, short term, and demand loans alone aggregated $4,621,000, in contrast to total current liabilities of $1,426,000.

The $26,066,500 debenture 5s, due 1952, are guaranteed as to principal and interest by Shell Union Oil corporation, one of the major units in the domestic oil trade. This organization operated at a substantial profit in the third quarter of 1933. That was not sufficient to wipe out the heavy loss sustained in the first six months. Record of operations is good. The company operated at a profit in nine (including 1932) out of the last eleven years. Current position at the close of 1932 was excellent. Current assets were four times current liabilities, and cash, marketable securities, and short term loans alone were about 125 per cent of total current liabilities.

The debentures are high grade, suitable for a business man's funds.

Suggest Using a Bank.

Investors' Guide: I am thinking of taking a trip to Europe, to be gone a few years, and your advice would be much appreciated. I have some bonds and stocks. Which would be better, to register the bonds and take them along or put them in trust with some bank?—H. P.

Answer: Our suggestion would be to deposit them in trust with some bank, with detailed written instructions as to disposition of interest and dividends and instructions as to disposal in the event of your death.

If you take the bonds with you registered it would probably be difficult to dispose of them in case of need. Even in the country of issue considerable red tape is involved in the sale of registered bonds. In a foreign country there would be even more. All stock is registered. Loss of stock, however, might result in the appropriation and transfer of it by some other individual.

Furthermore, should you die while abroad your heirs would encounter considerable difficulty in liquidating the estate. There would be legal difficulties as to the rights of the foreign government to take their share of inheritance taxes.

STOCKS ADVANCE BUT FAIL TO HOLD HIGHEST LEVELS

Preferred List Buoyant; Volume Heavy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 17.—Sharp advances in a good sized list of preferred stocks kept the share market looking bullish today in spite of a steady drag of realizing sales.

Railroad shares ranged higher as a general rule and an assortment of specialties like Johns-Manville, Celanese and Industrial Rayon attracted speculative attention. Radio, Warner Brothers Pictures, Armour and a number of low priced shares were popular with the rank and file. Oldtime leaders like United States Steel, General Electric and Westinghouse were inclined to lag.

The market was somewhat less active than it has been for the last two days, but dealings were nevertheless heavy, the total being nearly 3,000,000 shares. Final prices in the main body of stocks were higher although shaded from the best levels of the day.

Du Pont Crosses Par.

Among the day's features Du Pont was prominent, pushing across "par" for the first time in three years. American Can also climbed back into the century club class, although neither it nor Du Pont was able to hold the new won honor.

With the two oldtimers back in the fold, the list presented the refreshening spectacle of thirteen common stocks at $100 a share or better.

Buying in Du Pont has been rather persistent lately, and the cause of the sudden interest in this issue has been the subject of no little speculative comment around the board rooms. There has been nothing the news of late to explain the move. Today's peak price contrasted with the bear market low of 22, registered about the middle of 1932 and last year's minimum of 32½.

Raid on Chrysler Dies.

In the automobile division, the selling raid on Chrysler died and the issue was able to make the overnight record with a net gain of more than a point in contrast to its usual dismal showing of late. General Motors, Nash and other motors were higher at times, but the group as a whole finished fractionally lower.

Oils had another of their off days, and the metals came in for more than their usual share of the selling.

More than two dozen preferreds advanced from 2 to 4 points. The list included the preferreds of Brooklyn Manhattan Transit, Case, International Agriculture, Mullins, McKesson & Robbins, Kresge, Kendall, Studebaker, South Porto Rican Sugar, Baldwin, and American Tobacco.

WEEK'S FREIGHT ESTIMATED 9.8% ABOVE YEAR AGO

On a basis of reports on railroad carloadings made thus far for the week ended Jan. 13, estimates are that the total for that week will be approximately 9.8 per cent in excess of the figures for the like week of 1933. The gain for the preceding week of 1934 over the corresponding week of last year was 13.8 per cent.

The estimate plans loadings for the week ended Jan. 13 approximate 556,000 cars compared with actual loadings of 499,639 cars in the corresponding 1933 week.

Important lines to report yesterday were eastern roads. The Pennsylvania reported that it handled 81,927 cars compared with 76,863 in the preceding week and 75,167 a year ago.

Norfolk and Western loadings totaled 18,788 cars, compared with 16,915 in the preceding week, and with 17,111 in the like week of last year.

HOLDERS OF MARCH COTTON LIQUIDATE; PRICES BREAK

Much cotton was liquidated by tired holders yesterday in a way that depressed the entire market and carried prices down 30 points from the top of the bulge on Monday. The south, Wall street, and professionals were free sellers of May, while trade buying supplied the bulk of the support.

At the close futures in Chicago were 5 to 11 points net lower, with other markets off 7 to 11 points. Spots were 5 points lower at New York, being 11.55 cents, and New Orleans 11.20 cents; Houston and Galveston were off 10 points at 11.15 cents. Prices:

WHEAT PRICES DIP, THEN RALLY; CLOSE IRREGULAR

Cash and Mill Interests Are Purchasers.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat developed strong support after an early dip which carried the May down to 89½ cents, and a rally of 2 cents from the lowest figure came later with buying by cash and milling interests. Reports indicated the mills were removing hedges against federal relief business in flour.

Although details were lacking trade gossip indicated there had been a fairly liberal business put through in both cash wheat and rye in all positions in the country, the latter presumably going to distillers who have been taking this grain persistently for some days.

Close Is Irregular.

Best prices were not maintained due to local pressure induced by easiness in other commodities, and in wheat in Kansas City. May wheat, however, closed ⅝ cent higher at 90⅝ cents to 90⅝ cents, while the distant futures were ¼ cent to ⅜ cent lower, July at 88¼ cents to 88⅜ cents. Rye was ⅝ cent to 1⅝ cents higher, May leading and closing at 64½ cents.

Buying of wheat against sales of corn to close spreads, which has been under way for several days, was again in evidence, and the corn closed ⅛ to ¼ cent lower with May at 52⅞ to 53 cents. Oats gained ⅛ to ¼ cent, May at 38⅞ to 39 cents. Barley was ½ cent higher, May at 53½ cents.

Canada Sells for Export.

The continent came into the market as a large buyer of Canadian cash wheat yesterday, and sales totaled about 1,000,000 bushels, including considerable durum taken by Germany. This was reflected in the Winnipeg market which closed ⅜ to ½ cent higher in Canadian funds. Liverpool, however, was ⅞ to 1¼ cents lower, a pause in the milling demand and a lower rate of sterling being the main influences.

Distillers are finding it more profitable to buy rye to convert into alcohol than corn, as the new code forces them to pay about 74 cents a bushel for the latter grain, the excess in the price over the current market and the parity figure being turned over to the AAA to be distributed to farmers who sign up for the corn-hog reduction program. However, there is a fairly liberal amount of corn moving to distillers, and country offerings to arrive continue light. Due to the relatively small stock of rye in sight the market is rather easily influenced.

WOOL MARKETS

BOSTON, Jan. 17.—Improvd demand for territory and Texas wools featured the Boston wool market today. Wool men said that the pickup in business indicated improved conditions in the manufactured field, which would bring about a marked resumption of wool buying if it continues. Prices were stronger to higher, reflecting basic strength all along the line. More and more sellers were demanding advances.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—A total of 10,117 bales of wool was offered at the auction today, of which 9,076 were sold. The good selection went to the home trade and Germany at opening rates. Withdrawals were again large owing to high limits.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw, was steady today. Prices advanced a point to the basis of 3.17c for spots. Refiners showed a little more interest, but only in nearby supplies, and after taking 15,300 bags of Philippines, due the end of this month at the 3.17c level, there was no more available below 3.20c. Futures held steady in sympathy with the firmness of the spot market. Prices ruled within a 1 to 2 point range and closed unchanged to 2 points higher, with the near months showing the maximum gains. Sales were 45,950 tons, of which 41,300 were in exchanges principally from March to later deliveries:

CANNERS EXTEND DELIBERATIONS ON TRADE CODE

Diversification of Products Cited at Parley Here.

Canners, who place a total of 242 different preparations on grocers' shelves for household use in preparing meals, yesterday continued deliberations of the annual convention at the Stevens hotel.

Problems of a marketing agreement to be presented to the federal government's AAA division of the department of agriculture necessitated continuing the convention until tomorrow instead of terminating discussions today according to schedule.

The NRA code has been devised, but various sections of the association yesterday were still deliberating prices to be paid growers for various commodities and marketing quotas among canners and producers.

Lack of Records Deter Action.

The industry was puzzled by the fact it is so relatively new that it was difficult to establish parity "pre-war" prices because there were no records available previous to 1918.

Scores of new products have been added to the list of foods canned by commercial process in the last two decades. In a survey at the beginning of the century the three vegetables—corn, peas, and tomatoes—comprised 35 per cent of the industry, but today it is widely diversified, including mixed fruits and vegetables for salads, meats, and soups and ready made entrées.

Odd Products Offered.

Canned locusts, for soup; dried birds' nests, for soup; noodles, which are similar to the better known spaghetti; chowchow, which is a mixture of seven preserved fruits; jelly candy, bead molasses, black vinegar, and soy sauce for cooking are among the unusual foods cited.

Unique machines that slice apples at a rate of 60 per minute and husk 180 ears of corn in the same length of time were on display at a special exhibition in connection with the convention.

THE MURDERER OF DETECTIVE RYAN

a. Harrison is not killer or lookout.
b. Miller not lookout.
c. Burns not lookout or killer.
d. Lookout and killer pals, therefore as Burns and Harrison neither look or killer, and as Miller not lookout, Miller was the killer and Cranford the lookout.
MURDER MAY PASS UNPUNISH'D FOR A TIME, BUT TARDY JUSTICE WILL O'ERTAKE THE CRIME.
